—ANGLICAN YOUNG PEOPLES' ASSOCIATION—A very special feature of the usual afternoon service held in St. John's Church St Eleanors Sunday Sept. 10th was the installation of the A. Y. P. A. officers of the Local Counsel for P. E. I. by the Rector Rev. G H Harrison. Those assisting in the service were Dr. Hunt and Rev. A. H. Hart-Davies. Before conducting the installation ceremony the Rector made special reference to the purpose and aim of the council. Following are the officers: President, Stanley Maynard, Port Hill Vice-President, Jessie Hunt, St. Eleanors, Secretary Treasurer —Mamie Mill, Kensington. The speaker Rev. A. H. Hart-Davies brought a very inspiring message to the members of the A. Y. P. A explaining the origin of this Association in 1903 and its transformation to a Dominion organization. In conclusion he made fitting reference to the duties of a member and a true christian from the shield placed behind the pulpit, with its colors blue and white are emblematic of the Christian life—hopeful and pure.

—DEATH OF MISS PATIENCE INMAN—There passed away on Tuesday at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Frizzell Bedeque Miss Patience J. Inman after an illness of some months. Miss Inman was a native of Bedeque and was the daughter of the late Nelson Inman. She was a woman with many fine characteristics of heart and mind which endeared her to a large circle of friends. She resided with her parents, and tenderly cared for them until their death a few years ago. Of late years Miss Inman lived alone, but always welcomed visitors to her home. When she became ill she went to live with her sister. She was a member of the United Church and was devoted to her church and did much toward the ..ly activities in the church. She leaves to mourn one brother, Mr. T. G. Inman, Bedeque and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Teed of Northwilmington, Mass., and Mrs. John Frizzell Bedeque. The funeral took place from the United Church on Thursday afternoon and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. George Somers, assisted by Rev. W. A. Nicholson. The pallbearers were Messrs. Calvin Leard, Horace Wright, Albert Wright, Leonard Schurman, Howard Schurman and Stirling Tucker. S.

Re-Opening Elmsdale United Church

The opening of the Elmsdale United Church, which has just undergone extensive renovation, took place on Sunday, Sept. 11th. The old church, built in 1883, was moved into the centre of its beautiful site, and nearer to the road, a well proportioned tower was built at the front, a chancel was built on, new cement foundation put in, a vestry for the choir to assemble was added and the building painted inside and out. There were three services in the Elmsdale church, the other services being cancelled.

The service in the morning had as guest speaker, Rev. W. S. Godfrey, Superintendent of Home Missions and secretary of Christian Education for the Maritime Provinces, who gave a very eloquent address from the text "Behold I make all things new". The music was rendered by the Elmsdale United Church choir under the direction of Miss Jean Williams.

The afternoon service had as guest speaker, Rev. M. D. MacLeod of West Cape United Church, a former pastor of Elmsdale. Mr. MacLeod spoke feelingly of the achievement of the people in beautifying their church and believed that great things were in store for the congregation. He chose as his theme "Philip and the Eunuch and he preached unto him Jesus". The music for the service was rendered by fifteen members of the O'Leary Male Choir under the direction of Mr. Shelfoon.

The evening service had again as guest speaker, Rev. W. S. Godfrey who brought a soul-stirring address upon the text "Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile." The choir of Lot 14 United Church supplied special music under the direction of Miss Phillips.

The weather was ideal, and large numbers attended all three services which were conducted by the resident pastor Rev. W. A. Paterson. Those attending the services were wonderfully impressed by the solemnity and the dignity of the building—more especially the new chancel which will impress itself upon the minds of all within the community and call all to worship God in the beauty of holiness. Special collections were taken at these services and a goodly sum was realized towards defraying the debt incurred in the work. Great praise is due the carpenter Mr. George Adams and his son Howard. The chairman of the trustees Mr. Irving Williams, and all those associated with him, the pastor Rev. Mr. Paterson and his congregation for the energy expended in this work; their beautiful church is a credit to Elmsdale and vicinity.

NEW YORK COUPLE ADMIRE CANADA'S HUNTING GROUNDS

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15 —(CP) — Canada is the finest hunting and fishing country in the world in the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lerner, adventurers and big game hunters from New York.

The couple like Canada's hunting grounds because they are situated in what they consider the healthiest country in the world. Tropical countries pack too much danger and fever to be ideal sites, they believe.

Mrs. Lerner impressed interviewers as being "112 pounds of sporting dynamite and charm." She is less than five feet in height.

"Women can do anything a man can do," was her firm belief. She is the first woman ever to catch a broadbill swordfish in Canadian water. Mrs. Lerner caught a 295-pound swordfish off the coast of Louisburg, Nova Scotia this year. The fish fought two hours and 50 minutes before she landed it with a 28-ounce rod and a 39-thread line.

She revealed her femininity in one respect. "I would rather face a dozen lions or tigers than one insect. You can fight big game, but there isn't much you can do about insects."

The Lerners plan to spend six weeks in British Columbia hunting grizzlies and big horn mountain sheep this fall. They will travel to New Zealand next winter for an expedition under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History to study migratory habits of broadbill swordfish and other tropical fish.

W.T.C.U. Holds Annual Meeting At Bedeque

The annual meeting of the Provincial W. C. T. U. was held in Bedeque United Church yesterday afternoon and evening. Mrs. Hazen Howard of Cornwall presided. There was a large audience considering the bad weather. Miss Laura Baines, a missionary home on furlough from India, was the guest speaker in the afternoon and spoke on the work of the W. C. T. U in India.

Mrs. Arthur Long of St. John N. B., addressed the evening meeting and gave the audience an idea of the workings of Government control in N. B., stating that there was far more bootlegging under government control than in our Island under prohibition.

Mr. Horace Wright M. L. A. addressed the meeting and commended the ladies on their efforts on behalf of prohibition and particularly their educational work among the young.

Mrs. Hazen Howard, Cornwall, was re-elected president, Mrs. John Frizzel, Bedeque, and Mrs. T. M. Linkletter, Summerside, vice-presidents. Other officers were re-elected.

Resolutions were passed that the union go on record as upholding the prohibition law in the province and the distribution of educational literature in the schools.

In the afternoon a memorial service for departed members was held with particular reference to the passing of Miss Patience Inman whose funeral had taken place that afternoon previous to the meeting. Flowers were sent to her sister, Mrs. John Frizzel president of the Bedeque W. C. T. U.

Prayers were offered for world peace led by Mrs. John Profit.

Ruth MacFarlane and John Craig gave recitations. The choir of the United Church assisted in the evening devotional period.

Semi-official Government sources said the principal hope for peace lay in the likelihood that until now Hitler had never believed that France and Great Britain really would fight invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Even so French commentators were divided on Mr. Chamberlain's chances of persuading Hitler not to use force to "protect" the Sudeten Germans. Most, however, regarded the fact that Hitler had consented so readily to talking with the Prime Minister as a happy sign.

Premier Daladier, while watching the turn of events at Berchtesgaden, sought to stifle a growing campaign at home to free France from her treaty obligation to assist Czechoslovakia in event of invasion.

Flandin Leads Move

The campaign was led by former Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin Political and diplomatic sources, including some in closest touch with the Government, reported vice-premier Camille Chautemps and Labor Minister Charles Pomaret were among those standing with Flandin.

Certain Socialist Party leaders also were reported as favoring the Flandin movement, bringing the possibility of an adverse majority for Daladier should parliament be called to debate the crisis. Flandin, writing in the newspaper, Le Journal, advocated convocation of Parliament.

Daladier was reported alarmed at the "peace at any price" campaign in several Paris newspapers and the effect Flandin's moves might have in London.

Flandin wrote in Le Journal that Daladier must call Parliament as his "moral duty" before taking moblization steps.

NOVEL WEDDING PROCESSION

MOOSE JAW —(CP) —Something new in wedding processions marked the marriage of Drewatt Davey and Wilma Johnson, both of Moose Jaw. The couple proceeded from the church to a gayly decorated dray bearing the label, "Super-Luxury" and drawn by a sleepy, white mare, which took them through the city's main streets.

Will Be Easy To Fix Guilt

Magnificent Gamble New York Times Declares

NEW YORK, Sept. 15—The New York Times, in an editorial that called Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement he would fly to Germany, "breath-taking" and "startling", said today that should it fail "the immediate consequences are unpredictable, but never will war guilt have been more firmly or more dramatically fixed."

"Viewed as a final peace move, a supreme effort to save mankind from the horror of another war, it takes on the epic quality of a magnificent gamble for the highest stake in the world," the paper said.

"No doubt Mr. Chamberlain figures that by this appeal he is giving Hitler the victory that will enable him to accept a peaceful solution of the Sudeten question with more prestige than he could win by the successful use of violence.

"So indeed he does, but the stake the Prime Minister risks is his own prestige and the prestige of Britain. The world can only wait in hope that it will not be played in vain. Every other development in a thickening crisis is now only background for the momentous conference at Berchtesgaden."

HENLEIN FLEES

areas, bringing about two-thirds of the Sudeten German population of 3,500,000 under military rule.

Official Government reports listed at 29 the number of persons killed in fighting between Sudeten Germans and Czechoslovak gendarmerie since Monday night, when Hitler made his speech at Nuremberg promising help to the Sudetens.

In his proclamation Henlein charged "to the whole world that the use of machine-guns, armored cars and tanks against defenceless Sudeten Germans has reached the highest point of Czech oppression.

"Thereby the Czech people have demonstrated before the whole world that it is definitely impossible for Sudeten Germans and Czechs to live in the same state."

He recalled how "in the year 1919 we were denied the promised right of self-determination" and how the minority tried "to find a proper place in the Czech state," only to fail because of the "irreconcilability" of the Czechs and their leaders.

"We wish to live as free German men! We want to work at peace in our homes! We want to return to our home in the Reich! God bless us in our just fight!"

The Government tonight clamped martial law tighter upon Sudeten German cities, adding the communities of Reichenberg, Rumburg and Schluckenau—all near the German frontier in north-western Czechoslovakia—to the area under the control of troops.

It also placed the city of Warnsdorf, on the German frontier, under martial law after reports circulated that Sudeten Germans were gathering at nearby Komotau for a march on Warnsdorf.

The march failed to materialize but at Warnsdorf windows of Jewish shops were smashed. Swastika banners flew in the streets of Komotau and large numbers of residents, fearing new disorders, fled to Prague.

No New Disorders

Officials in Prague tonight said they had no reports of any new disorders in Sudeten German regions but a general strike in Reichenberg, one of the largest industrial areas in the country, gave the authorities new worries.

Eger, regional Sudeten German Party headquarters, and Schwadenbach where bitter fighting occurred yesterday, were reported quiet. Authorities said four to six persons, including one woman, were killed in the Eger class between Sudeten Germans and gendarmes. They said the incidents at Schwaderbach had been "liquidated" and order restored.

In Prague the authorities confiscated copies of the newspaper Narodni Politika which published reports that the French were favoring a plebiscite in Czechoslovakia to satisfy Sudeten German demands.

News of a shortage of gas masks brought large crowds to distribution centres in Prague. They demanded that equipment be issued to them immediately. All citizens by law are required to be equipped with gas masks.

Government officials meanwhile anxiously awaited to see what course the talks between Chamberlain and Hitler would take. The newspaper Prager Mittag took the occasion to recall the visit to Kurt Von Schuschnigg, then Chancellor of Austria, to the German Chancellor before German troops marched into Austria last March.

"When Von Schuschnigg went to Berchtesgaden," the paper said, "it was the German Chancellor who spoke and presented the issue. This time Neville Chamberlain will speak."

Montreal: Paper stocks led a general advance, with St. Lawrence Paper Preferred shooting up five points.

Winnipeg: Closing wheat prices (up sharply Tuesday and Wednesday) were off 2 3-8 to 2 7-8, with the revival of peace hopes.

Chicago: Wheat prices ranged decidedly lower—1 7-8 to 2 5-8 cents a bushel; calmer attitude.

Paris—Bourse (stock exchange) —Trend higher, some issues up nearly 10 per cent.

precautionary military measures These would be important if the Prime Minister's unprecedented mission failed. Few in Britain, however, thought of failure.

The nation appeared united in its prayers and hopes when the 69-year-old Prime Minister took the first airplane ride of his life today through rain and fog over parts of France and Germany to keep a hastily made appointment at Hitler's chalet on a Bavarian mountainside.

"I am going to see the German Chancellor because the situation seems to me to be one in which discussions between him and me may have useful consequences," he said before he departed.

"The Fuehrer's reply to my suggestion (for today's meeting) encourages me to hope that my visit to him will not be without results."

King Approves Move

It was understood the King approved the Government's move to recall Parliament in the course of long conferences with key ministers at Buckingham Palace.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer who acted as deputy minister, had two audiences after which Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, Sir Thomas Inskip, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, and Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, were closeted with the King. His Majesty returned from Scotland this morning.

It was recalled that every aspect of the Czechoslovak - German crisis was discussed. Sir Samuel as Home Secretary is responsible for protection of civilians against air raids.

The latest developments in Czechoslovakia—including Konrad Henlein's demand for union of the 3,500,000 Sudeten German minority with Germany—raised fears in some embassies in London for the success of Mr. Chamberlain's venture.

Seek To Bridge Gap

The only semi-official hint of the course Mr. Chamberlain was taking with Chancellor Hitler was a suggestion that the Mediation Mission headed by Viscount Runciman would leap to new prominence—perhaps with representatives of the Sudeten Germans and the Prague Government sitting down again to a conference table.

Mr. Chamberlain's dramatic move sent new optimism through London financial circles, and the stock market opened with prices showing a higher trend for the first time during the past two tense weeks.

On the other hand Lloyd's underwriters decided to void war risk insurance contracts and not to issue war risk coverage after midnight Saturday except negotiations in individual instances and at prices likely to be high.

"Call To National Prayer"

The Archbishop of Canterbury, supported by the Free Church Leader, Rev. M. E Aubrey, issued a "call to national prayer" for next Sunday while an almost endless stream of Londoners filed silently past the unknown warrior's tomb in Westminster Abbey.

Mrs. Chamberlain walked alone in St. James Park and then went into the Abbey to join a hundred others in supplication for peace.

General Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army ordered all Salvation Army centres the world over to remain open for prayerful intercession throughout the crisis.

The Conservative National Farmers Union withheld a scheduled statement criticizing Mr. Chamberlain's policy "so as not to add to the burdens of the Cabinet."

The Duke and Duchess of Kent, who had been holidaying in Yugoslavia and Germany, unexpectedly cut their tour short and returned to London.

Berchtesgaden

trip through a winding valley under towering Alps.

All Berchtesgaden and the surrounding countryside turned out to "heil" the British Leader and the station platform was jammed.

The party went immediately to the Grand Hotel but less than an hour later Mr Chamberlain proceeded to Berghof, Hitler's mountain home at Obersalzberg, some eight miles distant.

It was raining as the party drove up but Hitler walked down the spacious steps of his retreat to greet his guests.

The Fuehrer immediately invited Mr. Chamberlain to have tea and the official parties of both leaders participated before the conversations began.

The Prime Minister and his entourage returned to their headquarters at the Grand Hotel after 8 P.M. and the announcement made by Mr. Chamberlain's plan to return to London to consult the Cabinet and then come back for further conversations with the Fuehrer.

TEACHER WRITES THEME SONG FOR YOUTH TRAINING

EDMONTON, Sept. 15 —(CP) — A theme song has been added to the physical drills and games learned by instructors in training here for Alberta's youth training course. Classes in the scheme will swing into action throughout the province in October.

Words of the song were written by William Cromb, an Edmonton school teacher attending the training classes. Set to the tune of "Anchors Away" it is sung as a preliminary to drills and exercising bouts. It goes:

"Stride forward full and free,
"Reach for the sky;
"Our health fraternity
"Builds strength and keen agility.
"So swing freely down the line,
"Breathe full and strong!
"Alberta's great health program builds em and marches right along!"

SPECULATE ON PEACE TALKS

Chamberlain May Be Seeking New Basis For General European Appeasement.

BY GUY RHOADES

LONDON, Sept. 15 —(CP Cable)—Hopeful British observers their gloom scattered by Neville Chamberlain's peace flight to Berchtesgaden, today expressed belief their Prime Minister might have sought not only a solution on the Czechoslovak-Sudeten German crisis but a new basis for general European appeasement.

As churches called for prayers for divine intercession, political soothsayers sought to guess the possible outcome of the Berchtesgaden program. The fact the Prime Minister will return to London tomorrow for a conference with the cabinet and later see Chancellor Hitler once more caused wide comment.

Some believed Mr. Chamberlain had reviewed with the Chancellor all German demands and present territorial ambitions, even going so far as to include the question of her war-lost colonies.

Held Consultations

In this connection they noted Malcolm MacDonald's participation in conferences which preceded the Prime Minister's precedent-breaking move, although it was suggested alternatively that the Colonial Secretary might have been active on behalf of Lord Stanley whose office as Dominions Secretary Mr. MacDonald previously held, Lord Stanley is in Winnipeg where his Canadian-Newfoundland tour was interrupted by recurrence of a leg injury.

Foremost in the minds of observers appeared the question of whether the Czechoslovak situation might be solved by a plebiscite, possibly with an international police force to guarantee non-partisan supervision.

Some saw in the Prime Minister's approach to the northern end of the Rome-Berlin axis the possibility of a move to include the drawn-out Spanish civil war in a plan of appeasement. In this connection a report from Rome that Mr. Chamberlain telephoned Premier Mussolini before going to Berlin was received with interest.

These persons called attention to the stalemate in efforts to liquidate the Spanish problem, in which both Italy and Germany have taken an active, though unofficial, part through their "volunteers."

It is well known in diplomatic circles that Premier Mussolini was disappointed when the new pact was left stranded and it is generally believed his disappointment led to the renewal of Italian press attacks on Britain.

Chamberlain enthusiasts, whose number grew by legions after the morning papers appeared, felt a sober admiration for the lone, aging man making what they regarded as a gesture of friendship and good will which was unprecedented in Europe's political history.

Many including some Germans in London, believed the Prime Minister's dramatic yet simple move was a master stroke likely to appeal to Hitler's love of the spectacular and directness.

These persons saw initial indication of their belief in press accounts of the cordiality with which the Fuehrer received the British Mission on the steps of his Alpine retreat.

Would Support Great Britain In Time Of War

(Written for The Canadian Press by Prof. Norman A. M. MacKenzie)

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 15—Different types of relationship must be provided for the dominions in the future development of the British Commonwealth, some attaining completely sovereign status, some accepting British foreign policy automatically as their own, it was suggested today in the British Commonwealth Relations Conference meeting here.

Wide variety of opinion was indicated in the conference's discussion of the future of the Commonwealth and the increasing of co-operation among its member nations.

Some delegates, advocating varying status for the different dominions, foresaw some dominions with such control over their foreign policies they might remain neutral when other members of the commonwealth were at war.

Others favored closer cooperation in the form of an imperial federation, although this was viewed generally as impracticable. There were those, too, who saw advantages in continuation of the present arrangement, with its undefined relationships and responsibilities.

As attention of the delegates tended to centre on the European crisis, British delegates anxiously asked what Britain could expect from the Dominions. Australian and New Zealand unofficial spokesman gave assurance of complete support. Canadians did not see how Canada could remain neutral and South Africans and Irish felt circumstances would compel them to take part in any world war on Britain's side.

A broad range of proposals in Commonwealth development was threshed out during the day, views of the delegates being generally varied. These suggestions included:

Modifying the Ottawa trade agreements by inviting foreign countries to share the benefits, on condition their wages and living standards do not constitute a threat of unfair competition to commonwealth countries and that they renounce resort to war.

Establishment of a public, unofficial commonwealth assembly representing all political parties in all commonwealth affairs, to meet once or twice each year.

Appointment of a liason officer for each dominion in the Foreign Office at London.

A cooperative defence scheme in which each dominion would be assigned primary responsibility for defending its own territory and contiguous areas.

Submission of all commonwealth disputes not otherwise settled to the international court at The Hague.

Creation of a general economic council for the commonwealth, to study and advise on all questions of trade, finance and industry between the commonwealth countries.

British Industrial Leaders Cancel Tour

OTTAWA, Sept. 15—(CP)—Possibility of British industry being called upon to speed up its output in the event of war is believed responsible for the cancellation of a proposed tour of members of the iron and steel institute and the institute of metals through Canada and the United States.

Some 175 leaders in the British metals industries including wives were expected to arrive in Quebec, Sept. 22 and to make a brief tour of Canada, visiting important industries, as a prelude to their autumn meeting which was to have been held in New York opening Oct. 3.

In Canada the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy had arranged to act as hosts. At a dinner in Ottawa Resources Minister Crerar and Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University had been invited to speak. Mr. Crerar has now been advised the visit and the dinner have been cancelled.
