IN MEMORIAM

PHILEAS DesROCHES.

A deep gloom was cast over the home of Wm. J. DesRoches, Miscouche, on Saturday when a telegram, was received announcing the death of his son Phileas in Denmark Hill Hospital, England. This young man before enlisting gave promise of a long and successful career. In 1915 he received his First Year Diploma from Prince of Wales College and immediately went to teach in Alberta. After four months teaching he felt the great need of soldiers for his country and he answered the call by joining the British Navy. He served in patrol boats for a while and then was transferred to a minesweeper, the Plethos, which was sunk in the North Sea, April 23rd, 1918. Four on board were killed, the others were rescued by another minesweeper which was called to their help by the noise of the explosion. Among these was Seaman DesRoches who clung to a piece of the wreck for 35 minutes. The poisoned water, which filled his lungs caused a disease which the best human skill was unable to cure. He was sent to six hospitals where different treatments were tried. After two operations, when part of his left lung was removed, the doctors thought he would recover but once again human hopes proved vain. A third attack, longer and more painful, came on and his weakened body could not stand it. Another victim was sacrificed to German cruelty, another name was added to Canada's honor roll. Three years ago he had willingly given up home and happiness and now at the early age of twenty three he bravely gave up his life. In his last letter written Sept. 1st, he says:—"Dear Mother, do not worry, if God calls me I am ready. He gives and He takes away." What consoling words for his family in their hour of trial. Besides his father and mother he leaves to mourn him four brothers and one sister: Sylvère in St. Dunstan's University, Antoinette teacher in the Normal School, Willie, Andrew and Ben at home. To all of these the Guardian extends deepest sympathy for the loss of a dutiful son and a loving brother.

STOP PRODUCING CHEESE IN OXFORD.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 30.—Robert Johnston, the well known cheese buyer of this city, stated in an interview on the cheese situation in Oxford County that he doubted very much whether in two years there would be any cheese manufactured in the County of Oxford, at one time the greatest cheese producing centre in Ontario. In reviewing the cheese situation Mr. Johnston stated that the cheese business had decreased greatly because of the fact that the condensers and milk products companies were buying the bulk of the milk offered for sale.

"Since coming to Woodstock I have seen thirty or more cheese factories go out of business in this immediate district," said Mr. Johnston, and he added that in the part of Western Ontario through which he travels he knows of more than two hundred factories which have ceased manufacturing cheese. Lately the condensers have been paying a little more than the cheese factories at the retail, but he said that they have been getting the milk.

"I have seen the time when several thousand boxes of cheese would be boarded each week at the Woodstock cheese board, whereas now there are only a few hundred offered. There was a time when hundreds of thousands of boxes of cheese would be stored in the county while at the present time I doubt if there is a total of ten thousand," he said. This decrease in the production of cheese is not by any means confined to Oxford County. It is a condition existent in other counties and districts as well, he asserted.

LEGAL BATTLE OVER SIR R. G. REID'S WILL

MONTREAL, Sept. 30.—Argument has been commenced in the superior court on the petition of Miss Harriet D. Reid, only daughter of the late Sir Robert G. Reid, for the sequestration of certain shares of the capital stock of the Reid-Newfoundland Company, in this petition Miss Reid alleges that the executors and trustees of her father's estate failed to realize the disposition of the testator's interest in the Reid Newfoundland Company as directed by her father's will, therefore, causing her great loss and damage; that they have in breach of their trust transferred 13,256 shares to each of the three sons of the testator and that two sons, Harry D. Reid and Robert G. Reid, Jr., by means of this partition and by the purchase of Lord Shaughnessy's shares have thereby obtained control of the majority of the Reid-Newfoundland Company and are enabled in their discretion to manage and operate the company.

Her action, the plaintiff-petitioner, who claims a one-fourth interest of the capital stock prays for an order that the 54,768 shares of which 13,256 are now held by each of three sons be argued in part yesterday asks for the sequestration of these 54,768 shares pending final judgment in the action.

VISCOUNT GREY'S FAILING SIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—In a formal statement prepared on the voyage Viscount Grey, British Ambassador to the United States, who arrived on the steamer Mauretania, said: "I wish to take this opportunity of saying that a special appeal is made to me when I was asked to undertake the duties of British ambassador to the United States. So much goodwill has been shown to me already by American as well as British friends that I feel both grateful and encouraged.

"My regret is that the partial failure of sight, which has made me withdraw almost entirely from public life for nearly three years, and which makes all public work difficult, renders it impossible for me to undertake the duties of a permanent ambassador, and must make my mission comparatively short.

"We have to make a new start after the war to repair and to rebuild the old world which the war has left in ruins. We wish to build a better one but the British Empire in common I am sure with other countries feels that without good understanding and friendship with the United States international progress is impossible and even international security is doubtful.

"I do not come to put forward any new proposals for treaties or alliances; I am not charged with any mission of that kind. Good understanding can best be established on cordial feeling between the peoples. There are some things that do not exist in common between any two other countries—a common language is one of them—which make strongly for friendship between the American and British peoples. On the other hand there are some things which cut across this happy tendency and make for misunderstanding arising partly out of old historical memories, partly out of British political problems, which do as a matter of fact excite a special interest in America.

"My own hope and belief is that the things which make for misunderstanding may by time, by wise and sympathetic policy and by a fuller knowledge of the facts and difficulties be dissolved and disappear. The things which make for friendship I believe to have their roots so deep in the minds of the American and British peoples, and to be so inseparable from the nature of each that they must endure and grow.

"The difficulties will not be overcome by ignoring or underrating them and that it is why I refer to them. But it would be an even greater terror to underrate the strength and possibility of growth of things that draw us towards each other.

"It will be the object of my mission while it lasts to promote goodwill as far as I have strength or opportunity between the American and British peoples in the hope that this may be one great element of security leading to the greater international good will on the broadest possible basis."

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do. To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify, and freshen the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.
