PERSONALS
Mr. Murchison Gordon of Appleton Road and Mr. Lee Gordon of Charlottetown, left Thursday morning for Halifax, N.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cairns, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Webster, Boston, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Scott Cairns, Dunstaffnage.

Miss Pearl Costello, and Miss Helen Costello arrived home from Newlin, Mass., to spend their summer vacations with their mother, Mrs. E. Costello, Elmwood, P.E.I.

Registration will probably begin on Monday, Aug. 19, and continue for three or four days, he said.

Mr. Butler said it was impossible to give further details of the Government's shift of policy. Britain had moved for economic sanctions against Italy when Mussolini's legions marched into Ethiopia, but recognized the Italian conquest in 1938.

It is expected to be a long and arduous task, he said. The registration cards would be sent to the registrar for the constituency who in turn would send them to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in Ottawa.

The Dominion government was working out a designation of essential industries, a list of which would be provided for each judge. The work would also be done with an outline of principles to be followed.

"Naturally we will only be able to outline broad principles and the judge will have to apply the same to the individual case," he added.

The judge would have these principles, the individual registration card and "any written representations that his (the person registered) employer or any other person will be able to give in his classification."

"On first sight its origin is suspicious," the paper asserted.

PARIS, July 10.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Hostility has developed in the press of German occupied Paris to reform of the French constitution under Marshal Petain.

"Persons responsible for the past seem hardly qualified to take care of our future," the newspaper Paris Soir said.

The newspaper "La France au Travail" called Petain a "dictator," and reported a proposal by Vice-Premier Pierre Laval for formation of a single party and semi-Fascist type of government.

"On first sight its origin is suspicious," the paper asserted.

Red Cross Executive Holds Meeting

At a meeting of the Executive of the Prince Edward Island Division of the Red Cross, held at the Provincial Office on Friday the following resolution was moved by Mr. R. H. Rogers, Executive Secretary.

"Resolved that this Executive, having learned of the promotion of our Vice-President, Mr. Clarence N. Bissett, to an important position in the service of the Eastern Trust Company, which necessitates his removal to Montreal, desire to extend to Mr. Bissett their hearty congratulations and to record their great appreciation of the services he has rendered to this Division during the years he has been associated with the Red Cross in Charlottetown. Mr. Bissett has always been ready to undertake any duties which the Executive has assigned to him as a member of his sound judgment and his ever ready assistance in our department, and the program, regret not only the loss of his valuable services but also the severance of the delightful personal relationship which has existed between him and the members of this Division, and offer him their heartfelt good wishes for a long life of success and happiness."

The Honorary Secretary, Mr. Rogers, read a letter from Dr. P. W. Routley, National Commissioner, containing the information that the Executive had been notified that the Red Cross in Charlottetown, which is to go on the air for the first time on Sunday, July 14th, from 6:50 to 7:00 p.m. Atlantic Standard Time over the C.B.C. network.

New Shiploads

the prospect of a haven from war.

Another of the several ships in the arriving convoy lay just astern, with hundreds more 'evacuees' aboard. An augmented immigration and customs staff worked at top speed to clear passengers, but many seemed fated to spend another night on ship.

In the passenger list were internationally-known names—Sir Norman Angell, British author and lecturer, Andre Maurois, C.B.E., French political commentator in the French press appeared under the pen-name "Pertinax," A. Leger, undersecretary for foreign affairs in the former French Government and others.

They were, too, about 200 Canadian children returning to the Dominion, Canadian and British officials and the wives of officers and men of the Canadian Active Service Force.

Spotlight on Children
But the spotlight swung to the children and rested there for a long time. They came slowly up the harbor, they lined the rail three and four deep and sang and cheered. Along the wharf of the ship's deck, a wide smile of an adult face could be seen.

Then, as tugs warped her into berth, a boy leaped down into his pocket, came up with an English penny and threw it into a group of soldiers and youngsters who were waiting on the pier. Scrambling for the coin, the children were shouting the concrete dock with pennies.

The soldiers and youngsters were cheering for the Canadian pennies and tossed them to the deck. A series of scuffles for the tokens followed. Then, almost as one, the children disappeared below to the sternal for good reason.

Most of them were accompanied by their mothers or relatives who, as well, will remain in Canada during the war. The boys will visit Canadian relatives or friends.

Some passengers said not possible to sleep in the cabin during the voyage, but back to back on the day trip and one submarine was believed to have been sunk.

Sight Submarine
A flying boat which accompanied them on the first part of the voyage, flew back while they were in the Irish Sea, and signalled that a submarine had been sighted.

One warship, they said, opened fire. Another sped ahead and dropped depth charges. Later, the flying boat had signalled that a thick oil slick had appeared on the surface near where the depth charges had been dropped.

(Naval headquarters at Ottawa said they had no knowledge of such an incident.)
"You can't imagine how precious Canada seems to us," said Mrs. L. M. Daviney, a former resident of Jersey, who had been in England with her son, Meredith, who is going to visit friends in Montreal.

"It's going to be wonderful to go to sleep tonight, knowing that I am in Canada," she said, and she said she had escaped from Jersey only a few hours before the German occupation, taking only a few possessions.

Tribute to Canadians
Another woman passenger paid tribute to Canadians with the Royal Air Force steward had been stationed near her former home.

"They are simply fearless. They take their life in their hands and laugh about it. They are going across to the continent with Hitler for a few hours."

Some Canadian family is due for a pleasant surprise. A golden-haired boy, about 12 years old, had been attracted a throng as she waited outside the special train. A nurse who accompanied her said she had never seen a Canadian family before.

The nurse wouldn't give any name, but the steward told the National Parliament that the boy was a Canadian. He had never seen her or knew her parents.

PLEDGES

whim of a self-appointed or autocratic government, while in the presence of the British Empire, discipline self-imposed by the majority of the democratic voters.

"The limit on the number of prescriptions available to doctors will necessarily involve the closing of all private medical practices. The result in a loss of revenue for the Government. I have, however, never seen a doctor who has not been able to carry out his duties, which a province obtains from the sale of intoxicating liquors. For the government derives from this source probably two dollars are sent outside the province, and no corresponding value is secured by the people."

Loss of Revenue
The limit on the number of prescriptions available to doctors will necessarily involve the closing of all private medical practices. The result in a loss of revenue for the Government. I have, however, never seen a doctor who has not been able to carry out his duties, which a province obtains from the sale of intoxicating liquors. For the government derives from this source probably two dollars are sent outside the province, and no corresponding value is secured by the people."

It is commonly stated by critics of the Prohibition Act that there is a loss of revenue to the Dominion. Prince Edward Island that in any other province or state. If there is a loss in this respect, it is probably due to the fact that enforcement efforts have been directed towards the bootlegger rather than the consumer. The police are therefore being used to direct a vigorous campaign to drive out bootleggers who sell intoxicating liquors, but against those who consume them, the police are not being used. It is found intoxicated in any public places will be prosecuted.

Need For Economy
The other course of events affecting provincial policy is the prospect of a war, and is particularly grave since the collapse of our British Empire is a possibility. During the past session of the Legislature I announced the necessity of greatly curtailing our provincial construction program to one of maintenance. Since then, events have arisen which have necessitated a still more drastic curtailment.

I deem it advisable at this time to outline to the people of Prince Edward Island the extent to which provincial services are being curtailed. In order that as possible money, credit, and materials may be available for the Dominion Government in Canada's war effort.

I need not refer to the number of Island men who have enlisted and the number of Island men who are in the active forces of the Dominion Government, or who are employed in some other form of war production or activity. I need not refer to the large number of Island men who have contributed and will contribute by way of taxes, investment in war bonds, or voluntary contributions to various organizations for war purposes; these are matters which are Dominion-wide in their aspect, and which are being handled by the Dominion Government.

The battle between Great Britain and Germany for supremacy in the air began in earnest in the early part of the year. The British bombers ranged over the congested industrial areas of western Germany, while at home the air force was being retrained on the new type of bomber. In one day 23 of the Nazi attacking planes were shot down.

For military reasons, little information has been given on the damage the Germans have been able to inflict in Britain, but judging from the small number of casualties it has not been great. On the other hand, the damage done to Germany by the R.A.F. has been considerable. The industrial areas of Germany have been hit by our bombers, and the damage done to the R.A.F. has been considerable.

In France, Marshal Laval, upon the receipt of the report of the cabinet powers. Eighty votes were cast in the National Assembly against the Petain-Laval group's proposal. The vote was 80 to 10. The spirit of the opposition was not strong. Petain announced the seat of government would be moved from Vichy to Versailles in the occupied area.

Britain kept twenty units of the French fleet out of enemy hands. The fleet was kept out of the hands of the British attack in the harbor of Dakar, French West Africa. French naval units at Alexandria gave in to the British. The surrender of the fleet of the Petain government was reflected in its order for a raid by French aircraft on the Rock of Gibraltar, which happily caused no damage.

With the danger of the French fleet removed, British battle ships were free to take the task of running down the Italian navy. Contact was made briefly east of Malta and one hit scored on an Italian battleship. As the Italian steamer and a submarine were sunk. Panzetta claims of Italian successes in this struggle were declared in London, but without foundation. In the Balkans the crisis was averted. REGISTRATION

Preparations for the Transfer of Thousands of Evacuees Despite Postponement of Scheme.

LONDON, July 12.—(CP Cable)—The Evacuees Reception Board, created to prepare the way for transfer of thousands of British children to the Dominions and the United States for the duration, continued its work tonight, although the Minister of Education has announced a postponement of the scheme.

Continuation of the Board's work emphasized that the plan, under which the government was to accept the evacuation of the children, had not been abandoned entirely, but only postponed. The Board was to continue to study the Royal Navy is able to spare ships for conveyance purposes.

The hope of ships to guard the vessels to carry the evacuees led to the government's decision that the scheme must be postponed for the present.

The announcement said private evacuation would be allowed to continue at the parents' risk or at the risk of private organizations behind the private sailings.

Several British ships arrived at an eastern Canadian port Friday, carrying nearly 2,000 children sent out under private sponsorship.

Canadian officials said there would be much disappointment in Canada if the scheme were abandoned. From Sydney came word that a number of appointments had been made for the transfer of children over Australia following reports of the proposed government action.

Appropriate shipping space is available for the transfer of children, the Information Ministry announced said, but "owing to the fact that the government has not sufficient naval vessels available for the duties of conveyance."

In view of the fate of the Australian Star (a fast liner which was torpedoed with a loss of nearly 1,000 lives, while carrying alien prisoners of war) the government is unable to take the responsibility of sending shiploads of children away from the country without a convoy.

The Reception Board, however, still is busy handling thousands of applications which poured in before the war broke so many that it was suspended July 5. An official said the scheme revealed an extraordinary number of children in families in Britain and the Dominion. Many parents had hoped to send their children to relatives.

New Chamberlain was expected to announce the government's decision to parliament next Tuesday.

The decree which will appear tomorrow in the official journal referring to Laval's right of proclamation as Chief of State, says: "If for any cause whatsoever before the nation ratifies the new constitution, the President is empowered from exercising the functions of Chief of State, Pierre Laval, Vice-President of the Council, will assume them in his stead."

"In case Laval is impeded for any reason whatsoever from assuming these functions, he is authorized to designate a person designated by a majority of seven votes of the council of ministers."

"That this person's investiture his functions would be exercised by the council of ministers."
