HEAVY POULTRY BUYING. — The past week has been a busy one in the poultry trade and yesterday's buying by local shipping firms was particularly heavy. Most of the firms are now well stocked for the Christmas season and from now on the wholesale buying will not be so brisk. The large buyers at yesterday's market included R. E. Mutch and Co., Harris Abattoir Co., Mr. J. D. Jenkins, Swift Packing Co., Mr. Leonard Wood, and Mr. P. J. McDonald. Saunders, Newsom and Co and other firms bought up a considerable quantity of geese, ducks and fowl for the retail trade. R. E. Mutch and Co report the heaviest day's buying of the season. They are about finished now. The Harris Abbatoir Co picked up yesterday about 800 geese, 400 ducks and two ton of fowl. This about finishes their local buying but they still have quantities of poultry coming in from outside sources. The Swift Company have been buying steadily all week and yesterday picked up about 10,000 lbs. Mr. J. D. Jenkins reports heavy buying. His firm purchased 1,000 turkeys at Summerside Thursday, paying forty cents a pound, and yesterday paid out over the counter $2,500 in poultry purchases. Mr. P. J. McDonald picked up yesterday about two tons of geese, chicken and ducks, also a few turkeys. The prices paid yesterday ranged as follows: Chicken, 20 to 25 cents; geese, 23 to 30 cents; ducks 25 to 28 cents; turkeys, 40 to 41 cents. Altogether, it would not be unreasonable to estimate that within the last few days about $25,000 changed hands in poultry purchases in the city. Despite this fact, however, some of the buyers are complaining of high prices charged for poor quality of poultry which has proved a loss to them when purchased.

Never has there been a wider vogue for embroideries than that we are witnessing this autumn. Materials, coats, suits, hats, frocks, gloves, and shoes are all lavishly embroidered. Day- dresses of serge are entirely covered with minute designs worked in silk, wool or braids: borders ornamented in the style and coloring seen in the work done by Czecho-Slovakian peasants, trim smart frocks. On some of these frocks the only trimming appears on the sleeves, which are very wide and decorated gaily from wrist to elbow. No waistline is seen on some of the new methods; the gowns are close fitting and have bands running round the lower part of the body. Several leading dressmakers are showing almost skin-tight tailored gowns. The tightness is not uncomfortable, however, for clever flat draperies conceal extra width. Marked originality is seen in the treatment of cuffs. Some have two—one at the other at the elbow. For winter coats are extending past the elbow.

House With Yard Is Built in Studio

FARM SCENES IN "NICE PEOPLE" ARE MADE TO ORDER

Despite the fact that most of the dramatic action of "Nice People," William de Mille's latest Paramount Picture occurs in and about an Old New England farmhouse, the producer had adhered to his long established rule of filming every possible scene in the studio.

To achieve these results it was necessary to build a complete farm house in the studio. This elaborate set includes both the interior and exterior of the house, an extensive yard, fence and roadway.

In spite of these elaborate stage settings, it was necessary to make several brief excursions into the country for some of the scenes in which actual out doors was an absolute necessity.

A notable all-star cast headed by Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel and Julia Faye was selected by Mr. de Mille for this production. "Nice People" will be the feature at the Prince Edward Theatre Wednesday and Thursday next, showing for two days.
