Bears On The Rampage

(Continued from Page 4) wiped out enough to make the business unprofitable for many farmers, who have thereupon disposed of their remaining stock. This is said to be particularly true in the Sussex rural area. It would not be surprising if new Brunswick woods, at this moment, contain more bears than they have in years — a probability which underscores the urgency of the point made by the association. Last year the bounty was claimed on 755 bears killed in this province, compared with 1,106 the year before and 1,430 in 1941. In other words, only about half as many bears were slain as two years previously. This might be taken to indicate, misleadingly, that there are fewer bears to be found these days. On the contrary, the decrease in bounty claims merely reflects the fact that the wild fur market has been depressed for some time, and few trappers have found it worth their while to go into the forests and tend their lines and pick off the odd bear to earn ten dollars to the side. As a result, the number of bears in the New Brunswick hinterland has probably doubled upward because they have not been hunted so diligently as before.

If the provincial game warden and other responsible officials agree that bears are causing severe losses to our sheep industry, then it would seem to be sensible to step up the bounty, as asked Bears do little good for the country in any event. Besides their present indictment for lamb slaughtering, they are known to kill young moose and deer, destroy woodmen's food caches, ransack lumber camps. One benefit they do bring New Brunswick is by attracting sawing hunters, especially from the United States, in April, May and June. Non-resident hunters receive complimentary licenses, for four bears, if accompanied by licensed guides. The visitors are not eligible to apply for the bounty — which suits most of them just as well, because they often want to keep the head and skin to be made into a rug trophy. (Anyone seeking the bounty is required to have the bear's head cut off in the presence of a warden or ranger, and destroyed by burning.)

Issues Caution Re Potato Handling

"Potatoes are perishable. Break the skin and you invite disease. Save the skin and you save all." Such was the warning issued yesterday by Mr. S.G. Peppin, District Inspector, Seed Potato Certification when urging growers, truckers and warehousemen to harvest and handle this year's potato crop with the greatest of care. Stating that the losses due to rough handling are "tremendous" Mr. Peppin said the Island reputation for high class seed and table potatoes "will soon go by the board unless greater care is exercised all along the line." In harvesting, potato diggers should be so adjusted that injury to the crop is reduced to a minimum. The speed of the apron, the angle at which the blade is set, the amount of soil lifted and the speed of the tractor or horses all have a bearing on the amount of field injury. When hauling from the field, the tubers are particularly soft and susceptible to injury, and truckers and warehousemen are urged to treat the Island's leading crop with the utmost respect. Rot producing organisms may enter the potato through the most minute injury resulting in storage rot and completely useless and unmarketable potatoes. That is the reason Mr. Peppin suggests that in every grower's and dealer's premises wherever potatoes are handled, large printed signs should be posted conspicuously to read "Potatoes are Perishable: Handle with Extreme Care."

Winnipeg Grain

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21.—(CP)—Shipper buying appeared in both oats and barley trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange; while American houses also were on the buying side in oats and making interests in barley. However, hedging sales expanded in both grains and prices took on an easier tone towards the close. Ry's futures prices also took on an easier tone as selling became more liberal than in previous sessions and support was not as aggressive. Small offerings appeared in flax dealings but were absorbed by seaboard actively during du. trade. Class two wheat prices remained unchanged from yesterday. In the only export business reported, 900,000 bushels of wheat were allocated to the United Kingdom under the Canadian wheat agreement. Cash prices: Oats: 2 CW 78; ex 3 CW 71 1-4; 3 CW 70 1-2; ex 1 feed 70 1-2; 1 feed 70; 2 feed 68; 3 feed 66; track 73. SMALLMAN-HARRIS WEDDING

On the beautiful evening of August 10, 1943, about ninety guests gathered on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Avarad Harris, Knutsford, to witness the marriage of their niece, Annie Etta Orell Harris, to James Foster Smallman, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Smallman, Knutsford. The bride was escorted to the beautifully decorated arch by her uncle, Mr. Avarad Harris, to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus played by Mrs. Watson Salliker. Before the ceremony Mrs. Arthur Harris sang very effectively, "O Perfect Love" and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer." The double ring ceremony was
