-Clever Anna Marble, Hippodrome's Press Representative

Of all the women press agents in New York, probably the ablest and most versatile is Miss Anna Marble.

Miss Marble began her professional career about twelve years ago as a special writer for the Brooklyn Eagle.

It was while engaged in newspaper work that her attention was attracted to the publicity end of the theatrical business.

Later Miss Marble was engaged in the same capacity for Miss Elsie DeWolf, during the latter's tour as a star for several seasons in Clyde Fitch's comedy.

Oscar Hammerstein engaged her as press representative when he opened the Manhattan Opera House, with whom she remained for two seasons.

Her work in connection with the amusement enterprise has shown all of the best of the men press representatives.

One of the stunts done by Miss Marble recently was the publication of a four-page newspaper, prepared in up-to-date style, called the New York Hippodrome News.
