Rt Rev. Dr. Garbett's Call To Christians

From the Anglican "Church Times," London The Archbishop of York has issued a statement on Communism to his diocese this week. In his view, it is folly for this country to close its eyes to the grim fact that the world is now divided into two great camps with hostile ideologies. On this point, the Archbishop said: "In the past I have repeatedly expressed the hope that the world would not be divided into two great camps with hostile ideologies. Recent events, however, have made it plain that the two camps are now in existence. The eastern camp is well organized and confident; the western camp is hastily making ready to protect its heritage of ordered freedom."

CRYING TOWELS

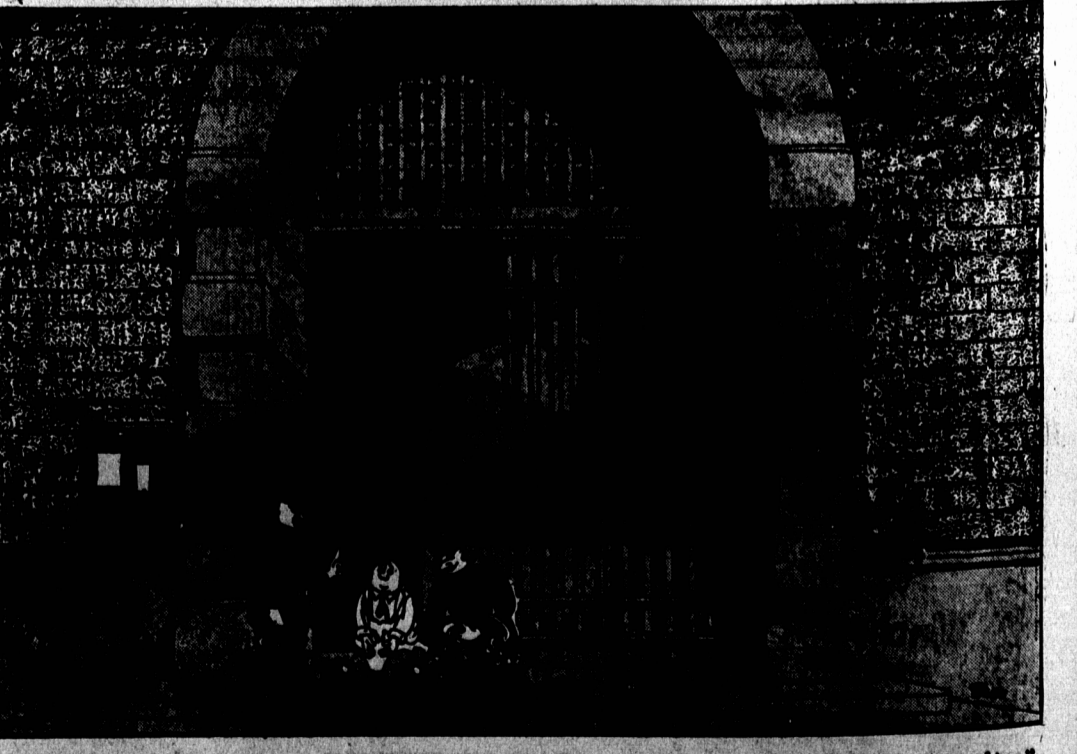

Britons might use these towels to weep in over the shortage of clothing and textile goods but they can't have the towels because they're all tied up with red tape. They are just part of tons of merchandise stacked in wholesalers' warehouses that can't be sold to stores because the retailers lack ration coupons. Merchants' squawks forced review of ration coupon system.

"Secondly, we must make our camp as attractive as possible. Communism finds its most fertile seed-ground where there is poverty and hunger. The general standard of life is high in this country; we must struggle to maintain it so; especially we must see that the people have houses, for a home is the best defence against revolution. Bankruptcy all Round Both here and on the continent there is a threat of bankruptcy. Only by hard work, mutual aid and international fellowship can Europe, with the help of the Marshall plan, avoid disaster. But the attractiveness of our camp must be spiritual as well as material. In it there must be found freedom of speech and action which will be in complete contrast to the police state. "Thirdly, we must make it clear that our camp is one of defence, and not of offence. We shall continue to hope that in the future friendship with Russia may again become possible; and Christians will always remember that both in Russia and among her allies are millions of Roman, Orthodox and Protestant Christians.
