BRITAIN'S FIGHT FOR HUMANITY

Inspiring Speech by Mr. Lloyd George

face that fought for a generation under Glendower, against the greatest captain in Europe—I should like to see that race give a good taste of its quality in this struggle in Europe; and they are going to do it. (Cheers.) I envy you young people your youth. They have put up the age limit for the Army—(laughter)—but I march, I am sorry to say, a good many years even beyond that. But still our turn will come. It is a great opportunity. It only comes once in many centuries to the children of men. For most generations sacrifice comes in drab weariness of spirit to men. It has come to you today; it has come today to us all, in the form of the glow and thrill of a great movement for liberty, that impels millions throughout Europe to the same end. It is a great war for the emancipation of Europe from the thralldom of a military caste, which has cast its shadow upon two generations of men, and which has now plunged the world into a welter of bloodshed. Some have already given their lives. There are some who have given more than their own lives. They have given the lives of those who are dear to them. I honor their courage, and may God be their comfort and strength. (Applause.)

"CONSECRATED DEATHS.

But their reward is at hand. Those who have fallen have consecrated deaths. They have taken their part in the making of a new Europe, of its coming in the glare of a new world. I can see signs the battlefield. The people will gain more by this struggle in all lands than they comprehend at the present moment. It is true that they will be rid of the menace to their freedom. But that is not all. There is something infinitely greater and more enduring which is emerging already out of this great conflict; a new patriotism, richer, nobler, more exalted than the old. I see a new recognition amongst all classes, high and low, shedding themselves of selfishness; a new recognition that the honor of a country does not depend merely on the maintenance of its glory in the strict-en field, but in protecting its home from distress as well. It is a new patriotism, it is bringing a new outlook for all classes. A great flood of luxury and of sloth which had had submerged the land is receding, and a new Britain is appearing. We can see for the first time the fundamental things that matter in life and that have been obscured from our vision by the tropical growth of prosperity.

May I tell you, in a simple parable, what I think this war is doing for us? I know a valley in North Wales, between the mountains and the sea—a beautiful valley, snug, comfortable, sheltered by the mountains from all the bitter blasts. It was very enervating and I remember how the boys were in the habit of climbing the hills above the village to have a glimpse of the great mountains and the distance and to be stimulated and freshened by the breezes which came from the hill-tops, and by the great spectacle of that great valley.

We have been living in a sheltered valley for generations. We have been too comfortable, too indulgent, many perhaps, too selfish. And the stern hand of fate has scourged us to an elevation where we can see the great everlasting things that matter for a nation, the great peaks of honor we had forgotten—duty and patriotism, clad in glittering white; the great pinnacle of sacrifice pointing like a rugged finger to heaven. We shall descend into the valleys again, but as long as the men and women of this generation last they will carry in their hearts the image of these great mountain peaks, whose fingers are unshaken though Europe rock and sway in the convulsions of a great war. (Loud cheers.)

The speech lasted for an hour and a quarter, and the Chancellor resumed his seat amidst loud cheering, the audience rising and shouting itself hoarse.

The choir sang the inspiring tune of "Hyrfydd"; then choir and audience joined in the chorus of "Land of my Fathers." It was a memorable, thrilling scene, followed by an outbreak of frenzied cheering.

There was a big rush of recruits to the Recruiting Room after the meeting.

MAKE READY FOR WINTER EGGS.

Preparations that are to be made in the poultry yard for winter should be made early in the fall so that the birds will become accustomed to the changes and have time to get back to laying before cold weather sets in. Now is the time to do the work.

Remove all the old litter and nesting material and burn it. If allowed to accumulate in the yards it will serve as a wholesale incubator for disease germs, which may mean death to your fowls. The best plan is always to keep everything clean. It is the cheapest, too.

After everything has been removed from the house and it has had thorough scrubbing, give to a good painting all over with whitewash and a disinfectant made of crude carbolic acid. If you cannot do this, any of the commercial disinfectants will do. Paint the roost with it an hour or two before the hens go to roost and it will do away with the lice.

If you are planning any new buildings or yards, they should be made at once, for it will be fatal to the production of winter eggs, if you wait until cold weather comes. The hens naturally require some time to get accustomed to new things.

Gather a good supply of road dust for use in the dust box this winter. There is nothing that the hens enjoy more than a good dust bath and it is by far the cheapest lice remedy you can get. Gather up a barrel full and you will have enough to last all winter.

If nights get pretty cold in your locality in the winter time it will be a good plan to make roosting closets for the laying hens. It will keep up the production of eggs. It costs little and will more than repay you for the trouble and expense of making it.

If you need food hoppers, get them now. Nothing like being prepared for winter when it comes. If we keep putting things off we are apt to forget them altogether.—Chesla C. Sherlock.

INDIAN RUNNERS ARE GOOD LAYERS.

As the name implies, this breed of duck was first imported into this country from India. The breed remained in obscurity till about twenty years ago, when it began to be more widely known, and since that date it has made great and rapid headway.

Indian Runners are exceedingly small birds, and adult drake weighing no more than 4 lb. to 4 1/2 lb., and a duck 3 1/2 lb. to 4 lb. They are thus much too small for marketing purposes, because, though they possess excellent flesh, there is no demand for birds of this weight. The body is long, narrow and fairly upright, the neck is long, the head fine but flat, and the wings and tail are carried rather high. In color the body is fawn and white; the bill is green in adults, yellow in ducklings; and the head is a greyish-fawn in the dark and bronze green in the drake. As already indicated, Indian Runners are too small for the market, their great utility-characteristic being their marvellous laying powers. It is by no means an uncommon thing for a duck to lay up to 200 eggs in a season and they continue profitable years longer than other breeds.

The eggs very closely resemble hens' eggs—in fact, they are often sold as such, and as these ducks cost less to maintain than hens, this is a point worth consideration. Indian Runners are non-sitters and excellent foragers, being able to procure the greater part of their own food.—"Feathered Life."

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it. (Get 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes 16 ounces—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 54 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex. Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in gualiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces Pinex" do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.
