INVEN "FIRST AID" TO HOBBLE SKIRTS

NEW YORK, July 27—Alexander James Calhoun, of Bloomfield, N. J., has invented a device which he says will assist women wearing hobble skirts in getting aboard trains. The device, which is worked by hydraulic pressure, consists of an iron jack to which is attached a cushioned chair worked by two levers. The "lift" is placed in front of the platform of the car. When the woman is seated in the chair the operator presses a handle which lifts the chair up in line with the platform of the car. He then works a lever which extends the chair straight out and lands the passengers on the platform of the car. It is said persons are lifted to the platform quicker than they can climb the steps.

UPTURNED BOAT TELLS FATE OF YOUNG COUPLE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 27—When the schooner O. A. Nettleton arrived here late today, Capt. P. A. Lanson reported that on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock the schooner picked up a knockabout "jigger" half filled with water, between Captain's Island and Baton Neck, forty-five miles from here. The mainsail and jib were blown down and hanging over the side of the boat, and awash in the water in the boat was a hat and coat evidently belonging to a girl. The boat which is owned by Lorimer Denike, twenty-one years old, of Mount Vernon (N. Y.), and he, with Miss Lillian Sawin, nineteen years old of the same place left New Rochelle Bay on Tuesday afternoon and were last seen at 6 o'clock that night becalmed off Sea Cliff. The boat was brought into the harbor by the Nettleton and the parents of the missing couple have been notified of the finding of the boat.

QUEEN MARY MUCH MISREPRESENTED LONDON, July 26th. — A great deal of nonsense has been written in England about Queen Mary. If half of it were to be believed one might think the queen a narrow minded, snob and a killjoy. As a matter of fact she is a clever, level headed woman, thoughtful and kindly, who takes her position very seriously.

That she objects to this set and that set, to people of one nationality or another, is entirely untrue. No intimate or personal knowledge of the court is necessary to prove this. The lists of presentations, the names of those entertained by the king and of those who entertained them are sufficient proof to the contrary. It is true enough that both kings and queen set their faces against the rickety-rackety, gambling and liquor drinking crowd, but in this they have the full sympathy both of the great public and the greater nobility.

A well known writer on social matters, who knows personally the people and affairs of society, writes of the queen as follows: "The promise of Princess Mary is more than fulfilled in the reality of Queen Mary. Such was a phase yesterday from one of those best acquainted with the court.

"There can be no doubt that the queen has had an extremely difficult career. As a girl she was the companion of her cheery brother, but so-called she was suppressed by the overpowering gentility of her remarkable mother, whose volubility of manner was in curious contrast to her daughter's severe self-restraint. Her engagement to the two brothers had the ferocious tendency to stymie her.

"Then as Princess of Wales it is now universally admitted that she suffered socially from being kept in the background. It was only when she herself was in Ireland or in Greater Britain or when the present queen mother was abroad that our queen consort had, in slang phraseology, 'any sort of a chance.'

"Yet wise folk always declared that when her time came she would prove a remarkable woman, and no one estimated her more highly than did King Edward. We thought her straightened, but he made no secret of manner she would set her mark on the nation. Now the hour has come, and it is no exaggeration to say that those about the court are even more interested in the queen than in the king.

"Think what this naturally stolid lady is accomplishing. She has set the nation the purest example of what a good woman should be as daughter, wife and mother; she is exercising a judicious effect on the moral tone of the court, and therefore on the nation; she does the right things well, and she has the thoughtful brain that foresees and prepares for eventualities.

"She is the perfect type of English domesticity. One delightful trait to which justice has never been done in print is that the queen is awfully good to girls. Most august ladies are occupied with the elders around them.

UPPER CANADIANS IN ST. JOHN MILL ST. JOHN, July 28—Upper Canadian interests, said to be the Canadian Colored Cotton Company, have purchased a controlling interest in the Cornwall and York mills here, formerly known as the Paton mills, and will dominate them in future. Officials of the company said last night that no change would be made in the management of the mills and that they would be run full time as usual. He also stated the York mill would be enlarged in the near future and would have its output largely increased.

GUELPH PEACHER INJURED. PORT HOPE, Ont July 26—E. Robinson, the teaching staff of the Collegiate Institute, Guelph, who has been spending the holiday in town assisting at the Port Hope branch of the department of agriculture, met with a serious accident while jumping from the train at the Walton street station of the Grand Trunk Railway. He was injured in the near future and would have its output largely increased.

TORONTO MAN CARRIED OFF THE HONORS

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 28—Cannadians carried off the honors in three of the six events in today's regatta of the national association of amateur oarsmen on Saratoga Lake, Boston captured two races and the other went to Detroit, in the most exciting struggle of the day. All the races were rowed over a mile and a quarter straight-away course in a drizzling rain.

The champion senior single scull event, the feature of the day's program, was won by E. B. Butler, of Toronto, carrying the colors of the Argonaut Rowing Club, when he had qualified as an entrant by easily defeating his competitors in the association senior single scull race. John H. O'Neill, of Halifax, and Lou F. Scholes, of the Toronto Rowing Club, who had entered in the championship event, failed to put in an appearance, and Butler matches his skill and stamina with Samuel F. Gordon, of the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia, and Fred Shephard, of the Harlem Rowing Club, of New York.

MONTREAL, July 28—W. Leonard Palmer, a leading English journalist, who has arrived in Montreal, after completing a tour of the entire Dominion, from coast to coast, stated in an interview today that while like all others who had visited it, he could not fail to be deeply impressed by the greatness of the Maritime Provinces did not go ahead as much as they did.

"With their marvellous natural resources, and their vast potentialities, the Maritime Provinces, said Mr. Palmer, "offer a splendid field for immigration and development. I have heard it said that we could not hope for the development of the Maritime Provinces until the West has been filled up. But I cannot agree with those who take that view, as the Maritime Provinces offer incentives to a class of people and kinds of enterprise altogether different to the West, and with so great a country as Canada, developments should be general. One portion should not develop to the detriment of another. Personally I believe that there is a very great future indeed before the Maritime Provinces."

LOS ANGELES, July 27—Mrs. G. A. Kenyon Hodges, of Vancouver, B. C., is here today, preparing to plead for her brother, Carry R. Pearce, the British soldier of fortune who was leader of the insurance men in Lower California and who is under federal indictment charging him with murder and arson based on information sworn to by the Mexican consul at San Diego, Cal. Mrs. Hodges fears summary execution should her brother be extradited by Mexico.

KING MAY VISIT CANADA LATER THAN DUBRAH TRIP. LONDON, July 27—The Birmingham Daily Post, which is one of the best informed papers in England, owing in part to its being regarded as the personal organ of the Chamberlain's, father and son, says that the King will possibly visit Canada during the Governorship of the Duke of Connaught.

It will be remembered that the Canadian Associated Press was authorized to deny the rumors that the personal organ of the Chamberlain's, father and son, would take place at a time not yet definitely fixed. The Prince of Wales and Prince Albert will certainly pay Canada a visit probably on starting a tour of the Empire, on British Columbia, has been elected a fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute.
