

S'SIDE AND PRINCE COUNTY.

Messrs. James A. McNutt and Alex. Allen were nominated yesterday to contest the civic election which will be held on the 15th.

Dr. A. W. Laird will be at Tryon, Monday May 14th, until Wednesday evening the 16th and at Hampton on Thursday 17th until Saturday to do dental work. D & W.

Mr. Marcus Deacon of Freetown received a letter yesterday from his son Mr. Benj. L. Deacon who enlisted at Winnipeg with the Strathcona Horse. The letter was written at Cape Town immediately after their arrival and reported all well and about starting at once for the front.

A horse belonging to Mr. P. Gallant, truckman, while hauling a load on railway wharf yesterday broke through the plank covering and fell fracturing his fetlock joint. The animal was taken at once to Dr. James McDonald who will no doubt be able to effect a cure as he can cure almost anything in that line but in the meantime Mr. Gallant's loss is a serious one to him. Whether the accident was due to the driver's carelessness or to a defect in the wharf is a question which the owner of the horse will no doubt endeavor to decide.

Dr. McNeill will speak on "Some functions of the Brain" in Willard Hall next Monday evening the 14th inst. This is a particularly interesting subject and should be heard by all.

KEEP in mind Mr. Earle's big concert and opera in the Market Hall tomorrow night. A crowded house is expected. A special train leaves Charlottetown at 3.30 local, returning after the entertainment.

THE death occurred Monday night of Sadie McDonald who was so seriously burned last Saturday evening as already reported. The poor little child suffered terribly until utter exhaustion brought relief through death.

W. C. WOODSIDE formerly of Alberton and now Editor and proprietor of the East Boston Free Press is in town and purposes spending the summer on the Island with his family. Mr. Woodside, who is another of our successful Islanders abroad, began his newspaper career in the Pioneer office when that paper was started by Mr. John L. McKinnon.

APROPPOS of the article in Monday morning's GUARDIAN on Canada's Vast Peat Bogs, it is probably not generally known that there is on this Island a block of 1200 acres most of which consists of Peat Bog of a quality that has stood a more than satisfactory test. This bog was formerly owned by the late Arthur Ramsay Esq. of Lot 8, now owned by his daughter and is under the management of Messrs. Hugh and John Ramsay formerly of Rose Hill, and now of this town. The depth of the Bog varies from the margin to some 20 feet and contains, it is estimated more fuel than could be used on the Island during the next fifty years. The Messrs. Ramsay have already been approached with a view to the organization of a company to develop this property, and such a company is within the possibilities of the near future. In view of the advance in the price of coal, it would appear that unlimited wealth awaits those who are fortunate enough to secure a share in this immense tract of land.

THE concert in aid of the Sufferers by Ottawa fire, although not as largely attended as when first given in aid of the Patriotic Fund, drew a very good audience and fully sustained the interest. Mayor Campbell opened with a short introductory address after which the program, as published Monday morning was carried through without a break. The solos by Miss Jessie Hunt, Mr. Johnston, Miss Bearsto, Miss Wright, Mr. Johnston (of the Bioscope Co.) Miss Frizzell and Miss Compton, accompanied by Prof. W. J.

Whitney, were really excellent and richly deserved the enthusiastic applause they received. The ladies' drill by the Queen's Own under the leadership of Mr. K. J. Martin was simply perfect, their difficult maneuvering, figure marching and bayonet exercise could scarcely have been excelled by veteran warriors. The Boys' Brigade under Capt. Rev. J. M. Withycombe also showed to excellent advantage, and did some very pretty drilling. The recitation by Miss Gladys McIntyre, the little daughter of Inspector W. D. McIntyre was excellently rendered. Rev. W. H. Smith gave an excellent address, dealing with the Ottawa fire. The Boys' Own Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. John C. McDonald did some very fine playing and added very much to the evening's entertainment. The proceeds amounted to $51.90.

The Soldier Tailors.

Why sneer at the tailors? The craft has given to the world more than one famous soldier. What of John Hawkwood, who gave up his needle and thimble for a sword and a shield? His life was, indeed a marvellous one. Knighted by Edward III. on the field of battle, he received the praise of the chivalric Black Prince at Poitiers. And George Dorfling, he, to had been a tailor failing to stick to his needle and skeins of thread, he gave up sewing button holes, for a knapsack and a soldier's life in the service of the Elector of Brandenburg. His rise was a rapid one and he became a celebrity, so much so, in fact, that the great Count Thurn solicited his co-operation and the ex-knight of the goes in epaulettes fought like a lion at Prague.

Under the mighty Augustus Dorflings, served as major general in the Swedish army in 1612, and never once sheathed his sword during the Thirty Years' war. It is indeed a long journey from the shop-board of a tailor to a field marshal's saddle and to be an ambassador to kings. But Dorfling accomplished the feat. He was ever gentle, this successful soldier, and never was there a man more brave. On one occasion in his old age his origin was sneeringly alluded to. "True," roared the old warrior, "true, I have been a tailor, and have cut cloth: but, hark ye! the sword at my side is the instrument which I shall cut the ears of those who are audacious enough to make of that fact a ground for mockery or reproach." George Dorfling lived to enter his ninety-fourth year. Long before his death he was accounted to be as rich as all the retired tailors and living field marshals in Europe put together.

When the Spanish Armada was threatening English shores, the tailors were among the first to enroll themselves as defenders of the country.
