

MONTAGUE, SOURIS and KING'S COUNTY

It pays to buy in this Province.

Jack Campbell arrived Friday from Boston at his home in White Head, after an absence of a year.—L. L.

Edward McGrath, of the Montague Farming Co., spent the Christmas holidays at his home in Upper Valley.—L. L.

There will be services in Christ's Church, Cherry Valley, Sunday afternoon at 11 a. m. and evening at 8.30. M. H. White, priest in charge.

Great praise is due to Miss Florence Matheson, teacher of New Park school, for the very successful concert held in New Park Hall on Friday evening, the 1st of December. The children's part of the program which consisted of recitations, songs, readings and plays, was so well appreciated and enjoyed that the children's dialogues, and solos by the older members of the place after a two hours program the curtain was drawn and a beautifully decorated Christmas tree was displayed.

John M. Peterson, of Charlottetown, delivered an inspiring sermon in the Protestant church at Upper Valley on Sunday, the 1st instant, to the assembled congregation.—L. L.

CHURCH REOPENING AT MARIE

New Year's day, 1911, will be remembered in the Parish of St. Peter's on St. John's street, as the day when the church at Marie was reopened after a long absence. The church was reopened after a long absence. The church was reopened after a long absence.

There were no changes in the Montague Market prices yesterday.

James Shaw of Upper Valley was in Charlottetown on Tuesday.—L. L.

Hon. J. Richards, m. p., registered at the Halifax hotel, Halifax, on Thursday.

Malcolm McDonald, merchant of Upper Valley, was in Charlottetown on Tuesday.—L. L.

Warren Campbell of Montague has purchased a circular saw to use in connection with his H. F. gasoline engine in sawing wood.—L. L.

On Monday, the 10th inst., a play, "The Upland Seven" in three acts, and by different characters, was presented in the Auditorium at Montague to a large audience.—L. L.

Capt. High Daly, of Commercial Cross, has gone to Cape Breton on business connected with the wrecking of his vessel there.—L. L.

At 10 road siding, the railway house has been recently repaired, a new window put in the west end, and a door placed on the north side. This was an improvement, but the accommodation is insufficient for the traffic, and particularly for the mail-carrier and the merchants shipping and receiving freight there. The house is provided and the wait for mail is rendered tedious and uncomfortable by the lack of proper accommodation.—L. L.

IRISH PLACE NAMES.

The peculiarity of Irish place names may possibly have had something to do with the suggestions of some accounts of Irish elections in bye-gone times. The frequently occurring prefix "Kil" meaning church has a sinister sound to unaccustomed ears. A young Englishman went to Ireland to assist a college class at an election. He was started on hearing at a railway station the following conversation between two well looking peasants: "I'm just after being over to Kilpatrick," said one. "And you're going to Kilpatrick?" "And where are you going?" "Oh, I'm going to Kilmore." "Kilmore is the Pair, you'd better be coming with me to Kilmore." The Englishman took the quietest route home.

PARLIAMENTARY ETIQUETTE.

Mr. Chamberlain's observations about the opposition's practice of "badgering my leader" recalls the most notable interchange of amenities in parliamentary history. I was in 1884, after the London riot, and the first man of the opposition was in full cry against Mr. Chamberlain. They invited him into a perhaps intentionally punning reference to Sir Henry Drummond Wolf as Lord Chamberlain's pack. There was trouble about it, but the speaker said that as a figurative expression, "that" was permissible, and he asked Sir Henry for saying that Mr. Chamberlain had spoken "with his usual insolence." With his usual courtesy, Sir Henry cheerfully suggested that Mr. Chamberlain suggest as well that the "opponents" and "small Lord Chamberlain" taking advantage of the speaker's ruling, announced his intention to move an amendment which would "draw the halger."

SIGNS IN SNAKES.

In all times superstitions have had a powerful hold on men and women, high and low. The great Napoleon himself, was a believer in omens, it is chronicled. As time and knowledge have progressed most superstitions have been repudiated to their proper sphere, yet even today almost every common belief is prone to superstitions, influence, whether seriously or more out of habit. For instance, how many men choose it as a designating number? Those who do believe the re-

WOMEN IN OWLS.

When you find the grounds freezing in your own back yard, that you are going to have a company. If the grounds are long the person coming is tall. If short, the visitor will be short. If you dream of falling and are awakened by the landed land of landing, it is a sign that you are going to die. If, however, you awake with still in mind, you may be assured you will continue in good health. To dream of a funeral is a sign of a sign of a funeral. If you dream of snakes it is a sign of a sign of a snake. If a young woman has a four leaf clover over the door, and the first married man who comes in the door will be the one she is to mar-

THE THIRD DEGREE

Chas. Klein's greatest play, "The Third Degree" which the Paul Gilmore Company will present in this city on January 11th, will undoubtedly be the theatrical event of the season. Mr. Klein has written a play which is a masterpiece of dramatic literature and a masterpiece of art and heretage. This play marks a step forward in the evolution of the drama, the tendency of which is to deal with conditions that exist, and which by reason of the apathy of the public are allowed to continue.
