Annual Meeting Of Tennis Club

Charlottetown Association Look Forward To Banner Season—Improvement Of Club Grounds.

The annual meeting of the Charlottetown Tennis Club was held last evening in the Y. M. C. A. Parlors. The increasing popularity of tennis was evident from the reports read by the Secretary Treasurer. Two years ago it was found necessary to enlarge the club grounds at Victoria Park by the addition of two new courts in order to accommodate the demands for membership and the maximum membership was accordingly raised from 100 to 125. The membership for 1928 was 127 so that the question is again acute and caution must necessarily be exercised this season in the admission of new members.

The discussion at last evening's meeting centred about the further improvement of club grounds and about the difficulties encountered by some of the committees, in carrying out their responsibilities, particularly the Tea Committee. Changes will be made this coming season whereby these difficulties will be overcome and on the whole the 1929 season bids fair to be even more pleasant and successful than in past years.

The officers and committees elected for 1929 are as follows:

Hon. President—His Honor Governor P. R. Hearst.
President—Mr. J. A. Bentley, (re-elected.)
Vice President—Miss Jean Tait.
Secretary Treasurer—Mr. M. McKinnon, (re-elected.)
Executive—Miss Eleanor Bourke and Messrs H. M. Simpson (re-elected) and J. W. Johnston.
Tournament Committee—Messrs J. O. Hyndman, R. Spillett and E. Hornby.
Tea Committee—Misses Helen Jamieson, D. Kirwin, Kathleen Bourke and Marie Mutch.
Dance Committee—Messrs J. W. Rodd and E. Hornby.

Can't Go Any Lower

By QUIN HALL

There is some consolation in finishing a good last in any man's ball league. This may sound like a tricky remark, one of those paradoxes such as Mr. Tunney might speak of learnedly, but—

Take Bill Carrigan and the Boston Red Sox, for instance. (We can almost hear some wise cracker saying—"You take 'em—we don't want 'em!") Last season Bill and his scarlet stockings finished a good job in the American League. If there had been a ninth place in the league, the Red Sox probably would have fallen carelessly into that. Fortunately there were only eight spots and the Boston club got as low as it could.

This year Carrigan and his crew can't do any worse than they did in 1928. That's something which the Red Sox fans can rest assured of. There are still eight clubs in the league.

But while Carrigan had his team conditioning at Bradenton it was noted that there was more class being shown by the squad. The Red Sox didn't get into their working clothes until later than most of the clubs who were using Florida as a training ground, and Bill brought them along rather slowly—much slower than some of the clubs who would push a fellow into an exhibition game before he had washed the cinders of travel off his map. Bill's idea in this was to keep the Sox from reaching mid-season form before they galloped out of the citrus belt.

At Bradenton, Carrigan had one of the biggest squads in Florida working out. Just what will come of it all remains to be seen. He wasn't pushing them fast, but there was a chance for almost anybody to grab himself a job and, as a result, the boys were all hustling around and doing some heavy perspiring. Just what this will get them also remains to be seen. The fear was being expressed that the fellows were working so hard to land a regular berth that they might wear themselves all out even before the season started, despite the precaution that Carrigan had taken to keep them in the pink—at least for the opening game.

With the size of the squad at Bradenton taken into consideration, Boston fans are likely to see a lot of new faces among the players when the rigging is unwrapped for the first game. Take the outfield, for example. At Bradenton Carrigan had eleven candidates trying for berths in the pastures. Among a short dozen one is likely to find, here and there, a player who can take a hoe and do more than just stand up like a blade of grass. In the early days of training Carrigan was specializing in quantity, and hoping that quality would be uncovered before the gang trekked north.

Early indications were that the Red Sox would have much more power than was exhibited last year. This wouldn't require any large amount of building. Bill took hold of his squad in Florida with a determination to spear some real talent for his club.

One thing seems sure. Boston will enter this year's grind with quite a few new names on the payroll. Some team must be in the cellar, but Carrigan feels that Boston has had the distinction long enough and is out to do a little menacing in the American League.

Cliff Bricker And John Miles Canadian Hopes

Boston Writer Picks Bricker to do Well in Big Marathon Coming Friday—The Weather has Lot To Do With Miles.

(By ARTHUR DUFFY)

Cliff Bricker of Galt, Ont., will be Canada's pride in the big Boston Marathon to be run over the roads from Hopkinton to Boston, Patriot's Day. Already having a reputation of being one of the greatest long distance runners that Canada ever produced, Bricker is being favored by those in the know to trot home across the line a winner in the coming American Marathon championship.

Not Entered Yet

Bricker as yet has not sent in his entry to the coming Boston race, but I have it from the best of authority from some of my staunch Canadian friends that when the runners are finally called out for the 26 miles, 385 yards jaunt, that this remarkable runner will be right there in the front line of starters. Strange though it may seem, Bricker has had a rather meteoric career in the long distance running game, though when he has come to the scratch in some of the most important races he has failed to show his real prowess, but no one will deny that he is not a fine performer.

Already he has been a starter in the Boston race and finished fourth two years ago, when he should have won. He finished as strong as a lion and his Canadian followers wondered why he did not win. In the last Olympic games he was sent to Am-lympic Marathon and was selected as a favorite, but he finished far in the rear, and Marathoners are still wondering how it all happened.

But it will be a different Bricker to come to Boston this year. He has been so disappointed over his showing in the Olympic Marathon that he figured that a win in the Boston Marathon will set him right in the eyes of his many admirers. He will come to Boston a few days before the race, but in the meantime he is said to be burning up the roads in his home town, getting right for his biggest race.

MILES ENTERS IN THE BOSTON MARATHON RUN

Nova Scotia Winner In 1926 Files Entry For Annual Marathon Classic

BOSTON, Mass., April 15—Four former winners of Boston's famous April 19th marathon yesterday were added to the entry list bringing the total up to 125 runners. They were Johnny Miles, of Hamilton, Ont., formerly of Sydney Mines N. S., who won the 1926 race; Bill Kennedy of Fort Chester, N. Y., bricklayer; and Carl Lipder, of Boston and Clarence Demg, six times winner.

Miles the Canadian distance star, who recently won a 15-mile race at Hamilton, Ont., against a strong field and Whitey Michelson, of the Milrose A. A., appear to be Demar's strongest rivals.

Michelson probable setting the best long distance running hereabouts this season and it was only a few weeks ago that he won the 26-mile race at Pawtucket, R. I.

TOM THEVENOW THE HARDEST LUCK PLAYER

In the Major Leagues—Injuries Have Played an Important Role With Shortstop

If there is such a thing as a line that pursues certain luckless ones it seems that Tommy Thevenow, shortstop of the Philadelphia Nationals is one of those unfortunate.

Thevenow has been seriously injured in an automobile wreck in Florida.

With another Philadelphia player, and in a rented car, Thevenow was going from Lakeland to Winter Haven, a distance of 12 miles, when the accident happened. In attempting to avoid a passing machine their car swerved into a ditch. Both players were thrown from the car and Thevenow suffered serious injuries.

Thevenow, in all probability, won't be able to play with the Philadelphia club this season.

This is unfortunate, not only for Thevenow, but also for the hopes that the Phillies had of being a team of some importance in the National League race this season.

The Phillies have earned a great deal of praise from the experts by their improved play this spring and no little of the nice things said can be attributed to the work that Thevenow was doing.

His presence seemed to have put plenty of life in the infield.

"I've got a good man at shortstop," Manager Shotton told the experts. "He fields well and he throws nicely, and he is able to hit somewhat more than a lot of shortstops. Thevenow is doing wonders for this infield."

Thevenow has had more than his share of bad luck in his major career of four years. This would have been his fifth. His four previous years were spent with the St. Louis Cards.

Never a very great hitter, but a good man in the pinches, Thevenow was the batting hero of the 1923 world series between the Yankees and the Cards. He batted .417 in the series, being the only man on either team to hit above the .400 mark.
