SAFE MILK SUPPLY

So much has been written from time to time about milk, the dangers of Impure Milk, and the benefits of Pasteurized Milk, that it might be well to note what Dr. George Fleming said in the course of his address at the public meeting of the C. M. A. in Charlottetown last week.

There are those who quibble about the value of Pasteurization as a means of making milk supplies safe. This will assuredly seem absurd when it becomes historical. In seeking an explanation to account for illness and death from preventable diseases, and for the lack of health, we find two of the chief factors is ignorance and laziness. People in general will agree as to the need of Pure Water, Safe Milk and Pure Food, they favour those measures which improve things for us providing that they call for no personal effort. This sort of community health work does something to protect citizens from disease that is carried by milk, water and food. But the question of health must be a personal matter. Do not think questions of general health do not apply to you but is intended for someone else.

There has been a great reduction in mortality in the last few years but this has been chiefly in the younger age group. There has been but little increase in life expectancy for those of forty years of age. This has not happened by chance. It is for one simple reason that health conditions amongst children has received a great deal of attention in many places. In vital statistics you find a rapid decline in infant death rate, you ask for the reason, and you find two things, the establishment of well baby clinics and second the safeguarding of the Milk Supply. The extent and rate of the reduction in infant death rates depend on the extent and thoroughness of these two efforts. Simply to know and to talk of this hygiene work among children means nothing. It must be practised if infants lives are to be saved.

In another address of Dr. Grant Fleming, on "The Health of School Children", he said: "It is strange how long it takes to educate the Public in the matter of Safe Milk for children. Impure Milk is largely responsible for the sacrifice of young life."

Dr. Grant Fleming is a man of great intelligence, wide experience, and a forceful speaker, and his address on Personal Hygiene, Periodic Health Examinations, Pure Milk, Pure Water, and Pure Food, will, we are sure, have a beneficial effect on the minds of our Charlottetown citizens.

Barthelmess In Classic Screen Portrayal

SCORES SPECTACULAR TRIUMPH IN JOHN FOX'S "LITTLE SHEPHERD OF KINGDOM COME" - EXCELLENT SUPPORT FROM NOTABLE PLAYERS.

Richard Barthelmess, whose character portrayals in classics, have won him the plaudits of millions, again demonstrates that he is one of the finest actors on the screen in his current vehicle, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" at the Prince Edward Theatre.

As Chad, the mountain boy in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," a picturization of John Fox, Jr.'s story of the Kentucky mountaineers, the star surprises even his most ardent admirers in a role that is comparable to "To Liable David." In fact, in this picture he surpasses that role in many respects.

When a barefoot mountain lad walks into an early scene in "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" we have our first glimpse of a character that will live long in the hearts of Bethlehem followers. It was difficult to believe that this boy was Barthelmess. And the characterization that follows is a sincere, convincing piece of acting that stamps the star as a natural actor of unsurpassed ability.

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is the story of a group of plain mountain folk living in the days into this group comes a homeless waif with his dog. The adventures which befall this boy make up a romance tense with drama and thrilling in the extreme. Through it all Barthelmess never for a moment wavers from his characterization.

Playing opposite Barthelmess is the clever young actress Molly O'Day, who made such a sensational hit in her first dramatic role with the same star in "The Patent Leather Kid." The cast is a large and capable one, some of the best work being done by Doris Dawson as the Blue Grass mountain belle, Claude Gillingwater and David Torrance as aristocrats, Martha Mattox, Walter Lewis and Ralph Yearles as the mountain folks. William Bertram is excellent as the schoolmaster and the work of Buck, the dog, is little short of marvelous.

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is a pictorial treat we advise you not to miss.

Other features are the Prince Edward serial and a comedy feature with an excellent musical score.

ROVERS WIN ANOTHER GAME

Playing consistent and snappy ball and taking advantage of every weakness shown, the Rovers have once again demonstrated their superiority as league leaders by severely trouncing the Anchors last night in the first game of the second section by a score of 8 to 3.

The score, however, does not by any means reflect on the brand of cricket, neither does it reflect on the ability of the Anchor ball team, especially their pitcher, Tom McFarlane, who mounded in excellent form, forcing his opponents to trail in the score until the seventh inning, when the North Enders, with the help of costly and inexcusable errors, crossed six runs over the plate to put the game on the proverbial ice.

McFarlane, wise enough not to ruin his arm entirely abdicated in the eighth in favor of smiling "Happy" Hobbs, who held the Rovers hitless and runless for the remainder of the game.

With the expiration of the seventh frame it was a great game to watch and anybody's in every inning. Hard hitting, great backfielding and fast work inside the paths featured, but the break had to come and it was McFarlane's hard luck that it came when it did.

Carbonell, who hurled for the Rovers, made a splendid job throughout the game, maintaining his speed and control in every session. His teammates behind him worked hard and efficient and deserved the well merited victory.

The class of ball the Rovers are playing this season is going to make them a tough team to even take a game from. They seem to hang on, even when trailing on the score sheet, and are there every time when opportunity knocks.

The infield of Blanchard, Williams, McInnis and McEachern at short, make a combination equal, if not better than any city league team ever had. Their hurlers Carbonell, McLean and Carbonell measure up favourably with the best we've ever had, and Diamond on the receiving end completes an infield that is good to look upon.

The various outfielders, led by Frank Cronin, have yet to doff their chapeaus to any of the other gardeners.

This team deserves the special mention. They have to date won seven straight and to all appearances will win the rest of their games.

Let's hope they get a good licking next game, and we'll all cheer the team that administers the medicine, but, oh boy! they are bears for punishment and will stand a lot of beating before quitting time comes, as they have demonstrated in the past.

Score by innings.

THE MARKETS

MONTREAL, Que., June 29 - Owing to the continued indifferent demand from the United Kingdom and the continent for wheat business here today was again very quiet. There was some demand from New York interests for oats and sales of no. 3 feed were made at 4 1/2c per bushel over the Winnipeg July option C I F Montreal. Owing to the strength in the Chicago future corn market and the steady upward tone of prices of late local dealers advanced prices for cash corn here two cents per bushel. Sales of American number 2, commercial yellow at $1.14 per bushel ex store. The trade in oats was quiet and prices were unchanged. The trade in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was quiet but prices ruled firm. There continued to be a demand from buyers in the United States for millfeed and as the prices bid were in line with some millers' views, some business was done for July shipment and the prospects are that the movement in this direction will be fairly large in the near future. Owing to the shortage of the trade on spot and with local and country buyers business was fair with a steady undertone. An easier feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats and prices were reduced 10 cents per bushel. A feature of the egg trade continued to be the good demand from dealers for fresh extras to meet their immediate wants and all supplies offering meet with ready buyers. Further sales of Western grades were made at 33 1/2c and firsts at 31 1/2c per dozen F O B and Ontario extras changed hands at 38c and firsts at 37c per dozen F O B shipping points but the volume of business was not large as only small lots were being offered and trade was done in a jobbing way. The receipts were 2,068 cases. There were no further developments in market for potatoes, prices being steady owing to the smaller arrivals of late and the fact that stocks on track on spot were small. There was some demand for local account. Owing to continued small arrivals of imported beans and the fact that stocks on spot are not large a very firm feeling prevailed with steeper demand. Sales of car lots of choice
