E. W. Hornung's "Stingaree" With Irene Dunn and Richard Dix At Capitol

Irene Dunne and Richard Dix came to the screen of the Capitol Theatre yesterday in "Stingaree," a romantic tale of the seventies in Australia, with Mary Boland, from the well known story of the same title by E. W. Hornung.

The story deals with the great mutual love of Stingaree, a dashing bandit, and Hilda Bouvier, who druggies in the home of the Clarksons, her rich relatives. Stingaree hears Hilda singing when he enters the Clarkson home to rob it, and immediately falls in love with her. When the police surround the place to capture him, he abducts the girl and makes his escape.

Two melodious theme songs, "Stingaree Ballad" and "Tunight You're Mine," are so woven into the plot as an integral part of it. Scenes of Hilda's operatic triumphs in Italy, Berlin, Paris and London give added glamor to the production and afford glimpses of notables of the period, including Edward Prince of Wales, and Disraeli, who become worshippers at Hilda's shrine. Convent Garden, world famous opera house in London, is also shown and Miss Dunne is heard in excerpts from famous operas.

Both Miss Dunne and Dix give splendid performances and their respective roles are ideally suited to their talents. Lavish settings and beautiful photography add to the enjoyment, and members of the supporting cast contribute excellent characterizations.

"Stingaree" is a musical, dramatic and scenic treat, well worth seeing for any of these three qualities alone. The work of Miss Dunne and Dix is at least equal to that in the epochal "Cimarron," than which it would be indeed difficult to give higher praise.

Tells in Sworn Statement How Fruit-a-tives Gave Him Quick Relief from Constipation

Isaac P. Booth, 70 Wayland Avenue, Toronto, suffered for years with constipation and rheumatism brought on by military service. Now he is well again and is so thankful that he tells his experience in a statement sworn before a notary so everyone can be sure of its truth. Mr. Booth says,—"I had been greatly bothered with constipation brought on by military service. I tried Fruit-a-tives and found they gave me quick relief. I can always depend on them to keep me regular. I also suffered from rheumatism. It would keep me in bed for a week or two at a time. Since I have used Fruit-a-tives, however, my rheumatism does not bother me any more unless I take foolish chances in wet or cold weather."

Attempt to Kill The Former Kaiser?

(A.P. By Guardian's Special Wire) LONDON, Jan. 27.—The Daily Mail in a dispatch from Doorn, said tonight it was asserted in some quarters there that a chief of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany had attempted to kill him.

As a result, the Mail asserted, the chief was suddenly sent to Germany about 10 days ago after 15 years of service in the former Emperor's household.

The report said the "official" version was that the man showed signs suddenly of a disease, he had contracted in the trenches and was removed to an institution in Germany.

"Rumors that are prevalent," the paper asserted, were responsible for the "unusually quiet nature" of Wilhelm's 76th birthday celebration today.

Little Publicity

BERLIN, Jan. 27.—(A.P.)—Berlin's Sunday newspapers dismissed with a few lines today the 76th birthday of former Kaiser Wilhelm and several did not mention it. "The German people will today recall the tragic figure of the ruler who wore the Imperial Crown for 30 years," said the Lokalanzeiger.

Believes "Hurry" Will be Refloated

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

CANNO, N. S., Jan. 28.—"I have every reason to believe the 'Hurry On' will be refloated," Captain Albert Moore said today as he made plans to refit his motor vessel Nova IV for another effort to transfer the cargo of the stranded 638-ton freighter.

Owing to heavy storms and high seas, drift ice and other hazards, the Nova IV was unable to get close enough to the "Hurry On" to remove her cargo of salt herring, consigned for New York from Newfoundland. The "Hurry On" has been aground off Grady's Island near St. Francis Harbor in Chocomaquo Bay for more than a week now, but the Nova Captain says the stranded vessel appears in "no danger" and is "free from water."

NEED OF NEW

drop remained unsold for the reason that former buying countries were producing more than they could use.

It had been necessary to balance the advantages against the disadvantages and endeavor to achieve the greatest good for the greatest number.

Unprecedented Conditions

The conditions that confronted the Nova IV were such as had never existed before, Mr. Bennett said. "It is my profound conviction that we will never return to former conditions. Some may disagree with me and I respect their views."

"More and more the ideals of the state must be apparent with less opportunity given for the exploitation of our resources or our people," Mr. Bennett said.

"How otherwise are you going to meet the situation? You may say 'bank' but what is the alternative? Human nature as it asserts itself in Germany and Russia is at variance with our ideals of the laws of civilization."

Duty of Statesmanship

The man of the hour would be the one who could foresee disaster and prevent it, Mr. Bennett said. He had held different views in the past but after living through strange conditions these had been changed. "I ask you," he went on, "do you think these things can continue without bringing the results they have brought in other parts of Christendom."

"I am a lover of old things and I am a conservative without using the political sense of the world. But when conditions have created a state no longer beneficial it is our duty to top it off."

The institutions built up through the centuries have served well but such an accumulation of habits and methods gathered through the ages must include bad as well as good, Mr. Bennett went on. "In these times among you who will not admit there are abuses, the only way to deal with social inequality and economic uncertainty: Charity was a noble sentiment but there had to be something more than that."

Gives Address On "Courage"

"Courage" was the subject of an inspiring address yesterday before the Rotary Club by Rev. G. Carlyle Webster, pastor of Zion Church.

"Courage," said Mr. Webster is one of the inherent qualities of the soul, cowards die in under universal condemnation. The late Theodore Roosevelt well said, "courage is the prime necessity of the average citizen. Physical and moral courage dares and endures. It fights valiantly against the foes of the soul and the body."

"Physical courage," the speaker said, takes its roots in the constitutional life of man. We find strong-nerved men of iron constitution, of powerful physique who do not know the meaning of the word fear; but insensibility to danger is not the one great test of courage. The brave man is intelligent, he weighs and considers the situations before he presses forward he is keenly alive to the perils of life.

It is not necessary to be strong physically to be brave. Frail women have gone forth to missionary work in the darkest Africa, facing danger and disenchanted natives drunk and debauched, without fear. He instanced too, a woman who was known as "the white queen of Tokyo," who did noble work among the prisoners of Japan. Moral courage had its roots in the higher nature of man, it draws its powers from the invisible.

Mr. Webster also pointed out that all courage, physical and moral is not displayed amid the excitement of the battlefield. We have women in the homes today air and struggling against ill-fated odds. He gave a number of examples drawn from his own experience. He told of visiting a home where a Christian's time, where the father had died not long before leaving a widow and seven children destitute. He brought her a basket of supplies, but she said "No, my friend, if the time comes, I shall let you know. If I get help for my two oldest children, I hope I may keep the family together."

It was a case of true courage. Many other examples may be given in this city by other clergy-men, by our physicians, by our social service workers. That life is needed in every walk of business day, that it is needed by every man, in order honestly and honorably to be conducted, other statements made in the course of an inspiring and eloquent address.

The courage displayed by such great men as Sir Walter Scott, Robert Stevenson, and others was also touched.

In closing he quoted the well known lines written by Norman Macleod ending in these words: "Trust in God and do the right."

Rotarian T. W. L. Prowse was chairman. The guests were Frank Doyle, travelling auditor of the N. R., Rev. Ennis Fraser, President of the New Glasgow, N. S., Rotary Club, Rev. Dr. Legate of Charlottetown.

Rev. Mr. Fraser on being called upon extended his greetings to the new Glasgow Club. He brooks a large attendance at the district conference to be held in St. John's, Newfoundland, the first week in July.

A letter was read from the Canadian Red Cross acknowledging receipt of the Rotary donation of the proceeds of the Rotary Auction.
