FARMERS NIGHT AT ROTARY DAWES OPENED CONDITIONS IN G. B. MINING DISTRICT

Forty Farmers Attend Monthly Meeting of the Club Last Night

About fifty farmers from all parts of the island were guests of the Rotary Club at their regular monthly meeting last evening.

President W. M. Rowe was in the chair and carried a splendid program through in a very capable manner.

Musical numbers were rendered by Wm. Rowe and Albert Blanchard during the serving of supper.

President Rowe extended the good will of the club to the visitors telling them about some of the ideals of Rotary. Mr. Rowe in his remarks told his hearers that there are now 1900 clubs in 28 different countries.

W. A. Stewart chairman of the business methods committee gave a short address and introduced as the first speaker of the night Rotarian Jim Robertson.

J. A. Robertson speaking on business methods of International Rotary stressed the necessity for cooperation between Farmers and Merchants and of good will. General business methods were then reviewed showing that honesty and service were the keynotes of successful business.

Mr. Robertson spoke strongly for a united Prince Edward Island and of our own Independent Farmers as the great backbone of it.

Dr. Jack Jenkins spoke for five minutes on behalf of a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. The education of children to be kind to animals is one of parents great duties, Dr. Jenkins asked the help of the Rotarians when a meeting for the formation of this society was called.

Vocal solo—Miss Lucie Blanchard, Miss Blanchard has seldom been heard to better advantage than last evening in singing "A May Morning" and as an encore she sang Annie Laurie rendering this old favorite in a beautiful manner.

Miss Blanchard was accorded most hearty applause and a vote of thanks. Mr. Albert Blanchard accompanied her on the piano.

Rotarian A. A. Pomroy brought the regrets of Col. Innes who was called to Summerside to attend a special meeting of the Board of Trade. Col. Innes expects to be able to come back and address the club in the near future.

Mr. J. J. Trainor expressed his delight at being a guest of the Rotary Club and said that the farmers present enjoyed the hearty fellowship accorded them by the Rotarians.

Solo by Prof. Dixon, It Never Pays to Worry. Mr. Dixon's rendering of this comic song was heartily received as an encore he sang "Somebody Lied."

Hon. J. H. Myers said the punishment of a political life is making speeches. Mr. Myers spoke a few words in lighter vein and then thanked the Rotarians for kindly inviting the farmers to its regular monthly meeting.

Mr. Myers spoke of the prestige which Charlottetown enjoyed and how happy the farmers were to visit it. His words of warning were look to our advantages and make the best of them. Mr. Myers also spoke on the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and stressed the need for a shelter for the city teamsters and their horses.

After His Attack He Left That Body Gasping in Astonishment.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 5.—Chas. G. Dawes assuming today the office of Vice-President of the United States, fractured so many Senate precedents that he left that body gasping in astonishment.

His inaugural address turned out to be an attack on the Senate rules permitting a one man filibuster. On top of that Mr. Dawes brushed aside the old method of swearing in new Senators in groups of four by swearing them all in a bunch, abruptly recessed the Senate for the inauguration of President Coolidge on the Capitol portico, and then left the body without a duly constituted presiding officer for the rest of the day except to get adjourned until tomorrow as best it could.

The Presidential inaugural ceremonies gave Senators time to catch their breaths. Then followed a fusillade of statements, most of them attacking, but many praising Mr. Dawes' stand on Senate rules. Republican leaders generally were silent, but Democratic leaders were vigorous in their characterizations of the new vice president's verbal broadside.

These statements in general indicated that the occasion and positive manner of the delivery of the attack on the rules had drawn attention more than had the previous announcement that unless there was a change in the method of procedure the effectiveness, prestige and dignity of the Senate must be lessened.

Mr. Dawes spoke with all the vigor with which he once lectured cabinet officers on the subject of economy when he was director of the budget. When he wanted to strike home one special sentence he leaned across the desk toward the Senators grouped in one part of the chamber and shook his fist or his forefinger at them.

Some Senators sat through the address in silence, and with glum expression over the same joined more or less heartily in the laughter that frequently swept the chamber, and there was some applause from the Senatorial quarter when the speech was concluded.
