Dealers declare that the price must come down if not the market will be lost.

Chief of Police Rudland of Halifax has an inquiry from Cincinnati for a supposed former resident of Halifax. The inquiry writes: "There is an official report at this office showing that Christina Regina Muller (Miller-Miller nee Herrmann, born Oct. 11th, 1823, wife of Hans Mueller, who when last heard of resided in your City is entitled to a share in an estate and I have been requested to look into the matter. I beg you to inform me if she is still living in your City, or dead, leaving children. A Halifax exchange says there is a Herrmann family residing in Charlottetown, the members of which were residents of Halifax forty years ago.

Every farmer knows that the first step towards a good harvest is to sow good seed. Too much care cannot be taken in the securing of good quality. A Home & Co. who have been in the business for the past thirty-five years have had a wide experience in the selection of seeds and can be relied upon to sell none but the best obtainable. Their continued success in the past demonstrates beyond a doubt that their endeavors to supply the purest seed has been appreciated. They have a large fresh stock now in readiness for the cropping season and will be pleased to answer any enquiries with regard to prices or have anyone call to see them.

The Dry Goods Review, the leading journal of the Trade and an admitted authority and judge of unquestioned ability in all that relates to dry goods advertising reproduces in its last issue a two page advertisement of Moore & McLeod of this City. The advertisement was set up in this office and first appeared in The Guardian. The Dry Goods Review makes the following reference to it: "Moore & McLeod, Charlottetown, P.E.I. send in one of the best ads. both from the standpoint of layout and subject matter, that I have yet received. It occupied two full pages of The Charlottetown Guardian, and I regret that space does not permit of reproduction in sufficient size to do it justice. However, a good idea may be obtained of the general typographical arrangement. The man who produces Moore & McLeod's advertising knows his business, and he has the co-operation of first-class printers."

A correspondent who takes a live interest in the older residents of this Province has forwarded to The Guardian the following list of names of the older residents of New Glasgow and vicinity which will be found most interesting. Henry Terrel, Milton, was taken ill on Wednesday, and though now slightly improved, his friends will regret to learn that he has since been confined to his bed and under the doctor's care.

At the meeting last week of the quarterly official board of Portland street Methodist church St. John a unanimous invitation was extended to the present pastor, Rev. Neil McLaughlin brother of Dr. McLaughlin of this City, to remain for a third year. This invitation was accepted. Rev. Mr. McLaughlin's connection with his congregation has been of the happiest, and his continuance in the pastorate is being heard of with pleasure.

Robert P. Neil, president of the International Brotherhood U. R. E., addressed the meeting in Sydney this week giving an interesting outline of the value and importance of organized labor, not merely for the purpose of obtaining increased wages, but with the object of co-operating with the railway management and ensuring the railway a profitable and expeditious railway service. There were at present in the vicinity of sixty local divisions on different railways in this brotherhood, nine of which are on the Intercolonial, with three more to be organized in the P. E. I. branch. This will make it one of the largest and strongest, and as it takes in all classes of employees not at present fostered by other organizations should prove one of the best.

The supper and entertainment given recently by the Ladies' Guild, New Glasgow, P. E. I., was a decided success. About three hundred people were in attendance. Jas. Dickieson was in the chair. The following program was rendered: Opening chorus, choir; recitations, by Emmerson Warren, Regina Parkman, Laura Dickieson, Ella Warren, Mable Parkman, Hattie Wyand; duet by Sadie Stevenson and Ruth Dickieson; quartette, by Nellie Bagnall, E. McKay, Geo. Stevenson and D. Nesbitt, Myrtle Weeks, Robert Hill, Ed. Selick and Miss Yeoo; instrumental music by Winnifred Craswell, Ruth Dickieson; chorus, ten young girls; male trio, Frank Stevenson, Robert Hill, Edward Selick; solos by Robert Hill, Mrs. Allan Wyand; quartette by Ella Hattie, Allan Wyand, E. McKay, Special mention should be made of the Misses Elizabeth and her clever work. Home made candy was sold and a sumptuous repast was served. A goodly sum was realized.

"Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from now on, rest with the Spirit for their works do follow with them." On March 23rd, 1908 after severe illness Mrs. Norman McLeod, late of Brookfield, passed peacefully away into Rest. For some years she had been suffering but with all her household duties and cares she bore her cross in patience and courage. She was one of those choice souls, whose refinement and kindness never fail to win confidence, and affection. Mrs. McLeod was born in 1849, the daughter of Thomas and Margaret Drummond, who came from Forfarshire, Scotland and settled in Brookfield in 1835. Of her brothers two are living, James of Freetown and John of Bloomfield, and three sisters Mrs. McLean Isabella and Mrs. James Sleson O'Leary. Her relatives, and many friends will indeed miss her, but none can take a mother's place in the household. To mourn her there, she leaves a husband and five children, Walter and Sadie at home, and Alexander, John and Margaret residing in Bangor, Me. For her to live was Christ and to die was gain. She rests beside her son Angus Leslie in the cemetery at Brookfield.—Com.

THE PARTIES AND THE BALLOT. Sir.—I see by the report in the Guardian of 21st March that the Government have made the sad mistake of rejecting the ballot. This is indeed, as you say, regrettable, but much more so from the untruthful reasons given than from the act itself. Premier Hazzard says, "The open vote is the only fair and square way for British subjects to vote, and that the ballot has been introduced years ago by the Conservatives and a year later had been repealed by them." I had always thought that Glad-
