Smith, Clerk of the Court. Two youths charged with possession of stolen goods (under $25) were remanded until this morning. A drunk and incapable and a man charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated were both remanded until tomorrow. A man from out of town charged with being drunk and disorderly was released on $10 bail and will appear this morning, along with a second drunk and incapable.

ST. JAMES CHURCH. — In the absence of the Minister the Rev. T. H. B. Somers, the morning service in St. James Presbyterian Church on Sunday was conducted by the Rev. F. Norman Young, minister-elect of Marshfield. Mr. Young delivered a forceful and timely sermon on the desirability and necessity of religion in the home, pointing out that there the foundation of character was laid. There would be considerably fewer divorces and domestic troubles if the rising generation had the benefit of religious ideas obtained in association with the family at home, Mr. Young emphasized.

LONDON. — (CP) — A small oak arm chair, believed to have belonged to William Shakespeare, is to be sold at auction.

And then this evening James and I sat with the small daughter in the house across the lane while her parents were absent, returning her good nurse of the day—her other grand-mother—home. Indeed we have just come from there, our way lit by the stars, and piped by the delightful pond music, which lingers on the air exquisitely at present. And now James remembers some thing as he makes his way toward the stairs. He turns to regard my present hair-do, which I believe can be considered as having its good points, then "Humph!" he exclaims expressively, and goes to slowly climb to his rest in the old bed in the room above.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night.

Ellen's Diary
By an Island Farmer's Wife

(Continued from Page 2) and sky when I returned remarking with much insinuation: "If some women would only see themselves as others see them, they would never bother wasting money on a hair wave". And then in silence he turned and went back to his work. I suspect that my attempt at beautification would not have received such pointed comment if I had chosen a more convenient day for it. Though at the time we were unaware of the scene, being enacted on the home front. We expected the men would be engaged in building a bridge across the sizable stream in a meadow up at the other farm. I remember saying to Jeanie when we stopped a moment to admire a gown in a store window: "We'll be home before our men folks." But, alas, James was not the back verandah when we returned—and came there for a breath of air and incidentally to scan the surrounding landscape for a sight of "wandering footsteps". Presently, after the one sentence and in an injured silence which indicated a lack of interest on the part of his women kind he descended again to the depths of the cellar. In our absence, our surplus of turnips was being made ready for market.

"And Ellen I suppose you hardly realize that its so near the cropping? And you wouldn't know that these are to go shortly—perhaps by tomorrow or the next day?" James asked me when my supper fire laid, tea-kettle in place and working well downed, I too repaired to the scene of my industry. "Pshaw!" I dared to say—doubtless under the influence of the new wave, which does tend to increase ones ego—"I could get the whole amount ready in an hour or two, with a pen knife." "All right, Ellen," he replied, with approval, scenting a brisk endeavor the result of his challenging words: "Now's your time to prove it!" Basement lights had been opened and as we continued to work busily, delightful bird song drifted in on the afternoon breeze and high sunbeams stole in to light up the heap of turnips decorated now, each one, with small curling yellow leaves. Our return there after our evening meal and until the shadows were gathering, brought the end of the task. These were some about which there had been moments of indecision. "We could easily have fed them," James said, as on a low stool, he prepared them one by one for market. But they had kept well and with the present price our farmers decided it was as economical and "just as good" to sell them and with the money buy other feed that would require less time and labor in handling, now that each day seems to bring increased duties in the line of field work.

After death came to her, she gave back her sanctified soul in the spirit of the prayer she so often recited, "Into Thy hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit."

Of her immediate family three brothers survive her: Frank of this city, James, Dorchester, Mass., and Patrick, Tyrone, Ld. 65. SISTER MARY CLARE, C. S. M.

In the death of Sister Mary Clare, which occurred at Mount St. Mary's, Charlottetown, on Saturday, May 17, the Sisters of St. Martha of Prince Edward Island have suffered the loss of one of the oldest members of their Congregation. Sister Mary Clare was born at Tyrone, Ld. 65 the daughter of the late Bernard Murray and Bridget Hagan. Brought up in the religious atmosphere of a truly Christian home she early conceived the desire of one day consecrating herself to God in the religious life. When in 1915 the Sisters of St. Martha of Antigonish, N. S., upon the request of the late Archbishop Henry J. O'Leary, agreed to establish a diocesan branch of their Community in Charlottetown, Sister Mary Clare was one of the two young ladies who first obtained admission and formed the nucleus of the new Congregation. She completed her Novitiate training in Antigonish, and in 1917 pronounced her first vows at St. Dunstan's College, Charlottetown. She entered wholeheartedly into the work of the young Community, bringing to each successive task that quiet efficiency so characteristic of her, and seeking no recompense save the consolation of knowing that she was doing the Will of Him Whom she tried so hard to serve. For thirty-one years she served the Community with the utmost fidelity, edifying all with whom she came in contact by her unflinching cheerfulness and her Christ-like charity.

Incapacitated for work for the past few years, she found her great comfort and consolation in passing several hours each day in silent adoration before the Tabernacle. During those years, filled with suffering but rich in merit for eternity, she gave to all associated with her a perfect example of complete resignation to the Divine Will.

When death came to her, she gave back her sanctified soul in the spirit of the prayer she so often recited, "Into Thy hands, O Lord, I commend my spirit."

Of her immediate family three brothers survive her: Frank of this city, James, Dorchester, Mass., and Patrick, Tyrone, Ld. 65. The funeral was held on Monday, May 19, following a Solemm Requiem High Mass in the Chapel of Mount St. Mary's. In Memoriam

In fond and loving memory of our dear Son and Brother, Everett Clow, who passed away May 20th, 1944.

The month of May is here again. One of the saddest of all the year. The blow was hard, the shock severe. To part with him we loved so dear. But never forgotten by us will he be. Gone and forgotten by some he is. Four little words not hard to write. But we will remember them all our life.

Sadly Missed and Lovingly Remembered by His Father, Mother and Brothers.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Warrent Officer Everett Clow, who gave his life in the service of his Country, May 20th, 1944.

Somewhere over there he is sleeping. There with his comrades brave. For home and friends and dear ones. His bright young life he gave. There is a picture in our memory. That time shall not erase. It is the kindly deeds and ready smile. Of our dear Everett's face.

Lovingly Remembered by His Wife and Family.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of Edward Johnston, who passed away May 20th, 1946.

God knew that he was suffering. The hills were hard to climb. So he closed his weary eyelids. And whispered "Peace be Thine."

Remembered by His Wife and Daughter.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my sister, Mrs. James Devine, who passed away, May 20th, 1946.

She suffered patiently and long. Her hope was bright, her faith was strong. The peace of Jesus Christ filled her breast. And in his arms she sank to rest. Some day we hope to meet again. Some day we know not when. To clasp her hand in the better land. Never to part again.

Inserted by Angie Stewart.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our daughter, Mrs. James Devine, who passed away May 20th, 1946.

Day by day we miss her more. As time goes swiftly on. But some day we'll meet again. In that bright land beyond. The blow was hard, the shock severe.

We little thought the end so near.

Inserted by Mother and Dad, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Connell.

WHY DO SOME PEOPLE HAVE SO MUCH PEP?

Do people gossip about your lack of pep? If you feel dull, listless, only half-well, look to your liver. For unless it produces enough liver bile to digest foods and help eliminate food waste every day, you may suffer from headaches, indigestion, biliousness, that "always-tired" feeling which often adds years to appearance. Look forward to a brighter, peppier tomorrow by taking BILE BEANS—the leading British remedy for keeping fit. Purely vegetable. Bile Beans work pleasantly, ever so gently. DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

BEAUTY ONLY SKIN DEEP. Men are traditionally slaves to beauty, and it is generally believed that any girl who can't qualify as Miss America had just as well espouse a career and prepare to be an old maid. Yet if you will cast your eye upon the married ladies of your acquaintance, you will not see many faces that have launched even a canoe, to say nothing of a thousand ships.

Also, wives are sold to the belief that the only way to retain a husband's affections is to keep looking like a bobby-soxer instead of Ma. Which is a mistake that costs them millions of dollars a year and gets them nowhere. For if the middle-aged man still thinks the Little Woman the one and only, it is not because of the hours she puts in at the beauty shop for repairs that count. It is the time she spends in the kitchen and the nursery that holds him.

Another thing about beauty is that it is unpredictable. All of us know many women who were homely girls who are stunning looking in their middle years and beautiful in their old age. They may have lost their complexion, but they have gained poise, grace and dignity. They have learned how to dress and make the most of themselves. They have read and studied until they are fascinating companions. They have cultivated the graces of the heart and soul, and the years have been sculptors that have chiseled their faces into a beauty that is far more compelling than any mere physical pulchritude.

Perhaps the women who are mean, little and selfish do deteriorate in looks $85 worth a year, as the beauty statisticians say they do, but the women who radiate intelligence, kindness and helpfulness grow better-looking all the time. For love and goodness are the great beautifiers.

POWNAL Y. P. U. PLAY "SHE'S MY DAISY"

The Pownal Young People's Union three-act farce comedy "She's My Daisy" which was presented in Pownal Garage Hall on Thursday and Friday evenings, April 17th and April 18th, and which has since been presented in many different halls, throughout this part of the Island, is receiving very favorable comment, wherever it has been seen, and except for one occasion when the weather was very unfavorable full houses, and in some instances capacity houses, have loudly applauded this very fine drama, which is acted by an all-star cast. The cast are as follows: Daisy Darling—Miss Donalda MacTavish; Donald Darling—Mr. Elliott Robertson; Freddie Adair—Mr. Edward Wood; Anne Adair (his wife) Miss Margaret MacDougall; Lucy Bell Barrett (Daisy's aunt); Miss Dorothy Ings; Peter Barrett (her husband)—Mr. Alec MacRae; Queenie—Miss Edna Robertson; Dr. Apple—Mr. Arnold Bruce; Mrs. Snooks—Miss Lois Weatherbie; Mrs. Kelly—Miss Eliza Lane.

Specialties between acts, include, humorous readings by Mrs. Harold Smith, Vocal solo, Mr. Matthew Acorn. Instrumental music by Mrs. Richard Brehaut. Director—Mr. Robert MacRae. Chairman—Rev. E. R. MacVicar.

NEEDS TO TIME TO DRY

When Dr. Charles Elliot was the head of Harvard, a student bumped into him on the campus and scarcely paused to apologize. He gaped out a scanty explanation. "I'm sorry, Dr. Elliot," he panted, "but I am chasing a fellow who assaulted me, and I am going to knock his teeth in."

"Come and have a cup of coffee with me," suggested Dr. Elliot. "Remember that an insult is like mud." "That's right," agreed the student, "and I mean to clean it up." "You're overlooking one thing," Dr. Elliot reminded him. "Most angry people do. Mud brushes off a whole lot easier when it is dry."
