The Golden Rule

Tignish was the venue of a very successful theatrical production on the night of St. Patrick's when a strong caste under capable direction presented to a large audience a Four act drama entitled "The Golden Rule".

Father Kelly, an elderly Irish priest, beloved by everyone, especially the poor. Guardian of his two nieces, who finally succeeds in finding a wife for Herman and a husband for Bedelia.

Dick Stanley, husband of a social climber. Driven by the push of society Dick finds himself constantly in the need of more funds so he dedicates himself to Wall St.

Allen Dale, master of millions, the unseen hand in many swindles. In this diabolical role Mr. Hollis Morrissey, whom we welcome to the footlights played the part like a denizen of the underworld.

Thomas Carton, bar tender, with a small fortune and a big heart, who disposes of his dispensary to the Bowery and his heart to Frances. Mr. Carton, Bow Bernard who has been prominent in local performances for some time on this occasion displayed splendid talent.

Herman Hauser, (Dutch man) hired man and bachelor, who appeals to the matrimonial Bee to provide him with a wife, succeeds in obtaining an interview with a respectable widow, middle aged. Under the patronage of Fr. Kelly the necessary formalities are completed and the stage set. Herman appears in his "best to meet her."
