ALTERATIONS AND REPAIRS TO FUR GARMENTS.

OTTAWA, June 30.—An order by Michael Morris, administrator of fur skins and fur garments, War-time Prices and Trade BOARD, regulates the charges to be made for altering and repairing garments made wholly of fur.

Furs and fur garments are exempt from the price ceiling in respect of alterations and repairs, because the maximum prices regulations include "repairing of all kinds," and in general the services being established for such services during the basic period apply. The new order specifies that no person wholly or partly engaged in the business of altering and repairing fur garments shall make a charge which exceeds a mark-up on cost greater than the mark-up obtained by him in the basic period: Sept. 15-Oct. 11 last.

All persons engaged in this business are required hereafter to keep an accurate record of all costs of labor and materials involved in each contract for repairs or alterations. Where the cost is to exceed $15, written authorization of the work is to be obtained from the person to be charged. This written authority is to show the nature of the alterations and repairs and the estimated charge, and if upon completion of the work the actual cost is less than anticipated the customer is to be given a rebate.

BOMBS AND EGG LAYING

According to reports from Great Britain, exploding bombs do not seem to effect production seriously. Soft-shelled eggs may be laid for a day or two, and in some instances a premature molt has followed a bombing. One newspaper correspondent reported that a bomb blew a dozens hens from a henhouse, and next day their combs turned pale with shock. A couple of days later, however, they laid six eggs and have continued at a high rate of production ever since.

Poultry keeping in Britain incurs added expenditure, because the blackout regulations require opaque screens on all henhouse windows or openings. Several times poultry men have been fined for having an unshielded light in the henhouse. "Bombed Chicken" recently appeared on a menu at a dinner served to Mrs. Winston Churchill and 150 honours people. Birds killed in air raids are donated by farmers to the bombed-out people.

Leading Aircraftman John MacPherson, of Coleman, P.E.I., who graduated recently from a Bombing and Gunnery School at Mont Joli, Quebec.
