Your Freckles

NEED ATTENTION IN FEBRUARY AND MARCH OR FACE WILL STAY COVERED

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish it to look well the rest of the year. The February and March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all Summer unless removed. Now is the time to use Othine—double strength.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of Othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.—There was a good attendance at the Institute meeting held last evening in the School Board Room. T. C. James, Esq., member of the Board, read an admirable paper on Thomas Hood, poet, humorist, and punster. He outlined the general features of his life and gave an estimate of the character of his writings, illustrating the different characteristics by copious extracts. On the motion of Principal Landrigan thanks were moved and conveyed to Mr. James and suitably responded to.

ABOUT FOXES.—Mr. Ferdinand Dubord, of Edmonton, who has been in the city for the past few days, will leave on return tonight. Mr. Dubord has had an extensive connection with the Hudson's Bay and other fur companies in the North West. Asked by a Guardian representative as to the prices obtainable for fox pelts, he said that the present demand is very great, the different trappers and traders vying with one another in the endeavor to secure good stock. During his experience of twelve years in the fur trade he has seen a rise in the value of fox pelts of over 600 per cent. He says that Peace River pelts are bringing high prices today in London and Amsterdam. Silver foxes from that particular section, with prime pelts and markings and well furred fetch from $400 to $1800 each; sometimes higher for an exceptional good skin. Mr. Dubord believes that the Peace River fox, given the financial situation which exists in the West, will produce pelts which will bring very much higher prices than wild stocks. He is very enthusiastic over the fox industry and asserts the opinion that it is only in its infancy, and that the next few years will see it established all over the Continent. He says that silver foxes are now very difficult to obtain in the West, prices having advanced very appreciably, owing to big demands from New York State, and other parts. The new law which prohibits the exportation of foxes and which is to apply throughout the western provinces will come into effect shortly. This will mean that nothing but ranch-bred stock may be exported. Mr. Dubord thinks that those who have bought cross-foxes here have made an excellent investment. Shown some photographs of Island foxes he was much struck with their appearance and the quality of the fur exhibited. Asked his opinion regarding the smaller fur animals, Mr. Dubord said that he was not particularly interested in them. He believed, however, that mink and martin could be raised profitably. Martin is very difficult to obtain, while mink presents difficulties in raising; but these will, Mr. Dubord thinks, be eventually overcome.

THE SONG OF THE LATHE. By R. C. Reade.
—From The Canadian Magazine for March.
Oh, this is the song of the lathe, And this is the song of the loom. We are young in the workshops of nations, But the nations have found us room.

This is the law of the builders: "Ye must make, if ye would have fame." Else ye stand, at the forge of the Titans, with pigmy blushes of shame. Yea, this is the age of the Titans, but have our hands shown their worth? Do we beg from the spindles of others, seek we alms in the workshops of Earth?

Are we drones in the hive of the world, are our talents all buried in words? Are we clad with the fleece of our sheep are we shod with the hides of our herds? Are we housed in the castles of Spain, are we couched on the carpets of Turkey? Lo, here are our works made known, and we are made known by our works.

Lo, here are the things that we make, yea, here at the works of our hands? For we are heirs of the nations and the skill that the nations command. Ask, and it shall be created: demand, it shall not be denied. We have covered the land with our mills, but our strength is yet to be tried.

For the iron and the coal obey us, and all things bow us the knee. Where the prairies call to the mountains, and the lakes flow into the sea. We have paved the prairies with lakes, we have furrowed the lakes with ploughs; But we are not ploughmen alone, we are the makers of ploughs.

Oh, the broad axe rings through the forest, and the ploughshare cuts through the plain. But this is the song of the makers of the reapers that reap the grain. Oh, this is the song of the lathe, and this is the song of the loom. We are young in the workshops of nations, but the nations have found us room.

MORWENNA IN ACCIDENT.—On her way to New York after her recent rescue at sea of a distressed collier, the steamer Morwenna had a serious breakdown in her reversing gear just outside that port, and, in consequence, was for one whole hour rolling at the mercy of the tempestuous sea in a dense fog. But the untiring efforts of the second and third engineers resulted in the speedy repair of the damaged machinery and the steamer eventually made port without further mishap.

METHODIST SOCIAL.—The congregation of the First Methodist Church held a social in Hearts Memorial Hall last evening, at which there was a large attendance. The following program was carried out: Musical numbers by Misses Mitchell and Taber; address, Mrs. A. McNeil, President of the Ladies' Aid Society; solo, Mr. J. W. Stanley; reading, Miss Maud McLean; solo, Miss G. Coombs; reading, Mr. James Paton; solo, Mrs. Arthur Newson; solo, Miss Dockendorf; accompanist, Prof. Thompson. After the program had been rendered there was a social half hour during which the Ladies' Aid Society served refreshments. Mr. E. T. Higgs presided at the Social.

GUIDE BOOKS.—The Geological Survey has published a series of annotated guides to excursions to many of the leading mining centres and points of geological interest throughout the country. They are well illustrated and are accompanied by numerous maps. The areas described are the several sections of country lying adjacent to nearly all the leading transportation lines. They are of convenient size and should be of interest to the geologist or mining engineer visiting these sections of the country for the first time. Applicants should name the part of the country concerning which information is desired.

A WRONG IMPRESSION.—With reference to the address on the Bible which was given by Rev. Dr. Campbell, of St. Dunstan's, in the Pro-Cathedral on Sunday evening last, the following passage occurred in the Guardian's report: "Dr. Campbell said there would be found many parts of the Bible which could not stand the test of critical analysis, both scientifically and historically." The several names of countries, and the scientific terminology, than in doctrinal parts where the Scribe's knowledge would guide him. In the world of Biblical criticism, at any rate, the passage in question would have another meaning and one to which the speaker could not subscribe.

THE GIRL WHO WENT
A group of high-school girls stopped their way home to talk over the day's happenings, and to regret the serious illness of one of their class-mates.
"I should like to go to see her," said one, "but it wouldn't do any good, Margery can't see any one."
"Of course not. We can go as soon as she's better."
"But might we not call, anyway?" asked Laura, thoughtfully.
"What's the use. She couldn't see us yet."
Laura walked home, still thoughtful.

"Mother," she said, when she had laid down her books, "could I call at Margery's house, just to inquire for her, and leave my card?"
"Certainly, my dear. Write a little message on your card, and draw a line through the formal 'Miss.' That makes it more cordial."
At the door of her schoolmate's house, the maid told Laura that the patient was better; but she hastened to add, "She does not see any visitors."
"Oh, no. I did not expect to see her," Laura answered, and she gave the maid her card.
That was not the last of Laura's calls. Several times before Margery was convalescent, her card, with its pleasant message sometimes accompanied with a rose or a few violets, brightened the dragging days in the dim room.

Several months later the group of high-school girls stopped again on their way home; this time Margery was among them.
"I do think you are very ungrateful, Margery," one was saying. "I am sure we all went just as soon as we knew you could see us."
"I know you did, and it was good of you. I'm not ungrateful, Jean. But Laura"—she laid an affectionate hand on her friend's arm—"came when she knew she couldn't see me. That was what counted so much."

THE FRIENDS AROUND HOME

Oh, there's power to make each hour As sweet as heaven designed it; Nor need we roam to bring it home, Though few there be that find it. We seek too high for things close by, And lose what Nature found us; For life hath here no charm so dear As home and friends around us.

We oft destroy the present joy For future hopes—and praise them; Whilst flowers as sweet bloom at our feet.

If we'd but stoop to raise them, For things afar still sweeter are, When Youth's bright spell hath sound us; But soon we're taught that earth hath nought Like home and friends around us.

The friends that speed in time of need, When Hope's last reed is shaken To show us still that, come what will, We are not quite forsaken.

Though all were night, if but the light From friendship's altar crowned us, 'Twould prove the bliss of earth was this: Our home and friends around us.

RAILWAY INTO ALASKA COMING.

NEW YORK, March 9.—D. A. Thomas, Welsh coal operator, arrived on the Lusitania to spend three weeks in this country. His object here is to meet several gentlemen from Seattle and Vancouver and talk over with them the proposed charter that they are expecting to get from the Canadian Government for the development of coal and mineral lands along the Peace River into Athabasca. It is a very ambitious project and if the charter is granted they will build a railroad into the territory from the Pacific Coast northwest, passing through the famous Ground Hog coal field and enter a country comparatively unknown as to its mineral resources.

They will develop everything within the territory granted them for the purpose and may export coal and minerals westward as well as eastward.
