ELINOR GLYN'S HIS HOUR

AN ELINOR GLYN PRODUCTION

Adapted to the Screen by the Author from Her Own Thrilling Novel.

A Story of Flaming Love Amid the Snows of Russia

With Aileen Pringle
and John Gilbert.
Directed by KING VIDOR.

FROM EGYPT TO ST. PETERSBURG, and then to Moscow, Gritzko followed Tamara. The young Russian Prince was the most daring and fascinating of suitors, but the young English widow was cold and conventional. Finally in desperation, he kidnapped her while escorting her home from a ball and then... Then comes one of the biggest of the many dramatic scenes in "HIS HOUR."

VIRILE AND FASCINATING, he has a debonaire deviltry that all women adore. When he kisses, there is not a woman who sees him that does not feel she would like to be loved by him. He has finesse and polish, and there is a strength about him before which women quaver.

If you want to know what love really means, see "HIS HOUR."

SHAW-ROPER WEDDING.—A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Rev. George C. Taylor, of this city on Thursday, April 2nd, when Miss Mary Victoria Shaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Shaw, Brackley Point, became the wife of Mr. Percy Sutherland Roper, son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Roper, of Sherwood. The bride wore a blue serge travelling suit, with picture hat and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and maiden hair ferns. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary MacCallum was gowned in blue silk trimmed with fur and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations. Mr. Alvin Shaw, brother of the bride, was groomsmen. After the ceremony the happy couple drove to their lovely home, "Woodland Farm," Central Royalty, where a reception was held. A sumptuous supper was served in Mrs. John R. Roper's best style to about fifty guests, immediate relatives of the bride and groom. The bride received in a gown of charmeuse satin. The health of the newly wedded pair was eloquently proposed by Mr. Louis MacCallum, and after the toast had been drunk all joined in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," the groom making fitting acknowledgement of the honor paid his bride and himself. With music and conversation the evening flew swiftly by until the "we sma' hours," when the guests departed, wishing the bride and groom many years of wedded bliss. The large number of wedding presents, including several cheques, for substantial amounts testify to the popularity of the wedded couple.

tion has been presented to the House, for more than one reason. In the first place the mover of this resolution stated that he was not going to reflect on any individual but that of necessity he would have to mention the name of one party in connection with the matter. Now Mr. Speaker, if you can imagine any greater attack on the public character of any public man than the attack made by the mover, I would like to know it.

It seems to me that a young man starting out in public life, when he comes to attack a Minister of the Crown, adopts rather a small policy indeed. It seems to me it would reflect much more credit if he were on the other hand eulogizing a man who has done so much in the interests of this Province, because there is not one person who knows Hon. Mr. Sinclair in the four corners of this Province but realizes that he is a man of honor, that he has always been regarded as the soul of honor, that he would never stoop to anything that would cast any reflection or opprobrium on the Province.

My hon. friend says the proposition was ridiculous, absurd. Is that true? I say if this proposition as represented in the beginning were carried into effect it would have been a splendid thing for this Province. What was the proposition submitted by this man? That he was going to colonize this Province; that he was getting retired Indian officers here, men with considerable means who wanted to stay at some distance from Charlottetown and Summerside; they wanted to be secluded. Can you imagine any better settlers than the settlers selected? What further representations did he make? That these men coming out here had money, some of them twenty thousand, some thirty thousand, some forty thousand and some fifty thousand dollars. One lady I believe had two hundred and fifty thousand. These were the class of people he represented were coming to this Province. What further was his scheme in connection with this?

He was purchasing in one of the finest localities seven hundred acres of land; he was having this land divided into plots of from four to ten acres. This as a matter of fact was done; a survey was made by a competent surveyor, John Mollison. A bungalow was erected, a sample bungalow. The lots were to be laid off and these parties were coming out with a certain sum of money. They were getting an annuity and besides a great many of them were supposed to have some considerable means. If we want immigrants to this Province, what more desirable people would we have than a class of people of that kind; the very best and the very best retired English officers who were serving in India, and who wanted to do a little farming and fox raising. We know what the fox industry means, and we know it does not require very much land in order to put up a few fox pens. Market gardening as we know it in the Grand Convent is carried on, and we know that these people were capable and willing of carrying on a little gardening.

As far as the legal explanation is concerned, and the misrepresentation, as a matter of fact Mitchell didn't have the Island in view in the first place when he was making his representation. He learned of the fox industry here and he represented that the fox business was to be carried on in Western Canada and was going to settle them there. However, be that as it may, I maintain that that proposition in itself was a splendid idea. We know perfectly well, in this Province, that people have become independent through the purchase of a very few foxes. These were retired men with a little capital, only too willing to make an investment of this kind. They understood market gardening. Can you conceive of anything that would appeal more, anything more desirable, than a class of immigrants coming to this Province such as represented by Mitchell, Mr. Sinclair and other members here in this Province? I say that supposing that had been consummated, and the Government of this Province had thrown the thing down, or the Dominion Government had refused to pay this amount and that man had gone on independently and brought these people out, and he had said to us: "Had you supported me, instead of colonizing with a few hundred we would have had five times that number."—What would the people think? Mr. Sinclair was just sincere in that connection, that he was acting in the best interests of the Province, as he always does. It is true he made a mistake, as if afterwards turned out.

Is it true Mitchell had no recommendations but one? Is that true? Let me see. From the debate in the House of Commons, Hansard, March 10, 1924, here is Mr. Sinclair's own statement:—

"In the month of December, 1922, at a dinner given by the Board of Trade of Moncton, N. B., I met Andrew Fraser Mitchell, who said he was a son of Mr. A. P. Mitchell, Superintendent of Education of the Central Provinces of India. Mitchell said he was born in India and that he was a cousin of H. L. Fraser, an Inspector at Ottawa of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Division 'N' and was a nephew of the late Sir Andrew Fraser, who was in his lifetime a well known and distinguished Indian official and whose widow, Lady Fraser, now lives in Edinburgh. Mr. Mitchell informed me that he was wholly concerned in a scheme for settling in Canada Indian retired civil servants; that he had considered locations in British Columbia and elsewhere in Canada, and that though the Maritime Provinces offered possibilities and attractions interesting for settlers of this class. He further intimated that Prince Edward Island ought to be quite suitable for his scheme of settlement, because the proposed settlers would all be possessed of means, would find the Island life agreeable in summer, and would be afforded an opportunity of going south or back to the Old Country for the winter. "Being interested in the question of obtaining immigrants to come into the province, and in consequence of Mr. Mitchell's statement that he was to visit here, I communicated with Inspector H. L. Fraser at Ottawa, who verified Mitchell's statement as to his reliability and character. In addition I caused inquiries to be made from Mr. A. A. McLean, Comptroller of the Mounted Police and formerly member for Prince Edward Island, in regard to Inspector Fraser, and received from him information which confirmed the view that the relative of Inspector Fraser's was a man who could be relied upon. "Mitchell came to Charlottetown about the middle of January, 1923. At his request I met him there and we interviewed the Premier, the Commissioner of Public Works, and the Commissioner of Agriculture, for the province. The Premier, (Continued on Page Seven)

Drink Water When Kidneys Hurt You

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then at last find relief. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving a sufferer's weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, it does not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year. 103 report of the Chief Superintendent of Education one sees that in 1922 the average class 1 male teacher was paid a salary of $1844.6 more than the average class 1 female teacher—and there was no explanation for this difference in salary, either. We accept the fact that the average class 1 male, though no more learned, no more experienced, no more laden, was given the pretty present of $184.46.

In 1923 the salary of the average male DECREASED, in comparison to the previous year, $35.66, and that of the average female proportionately. If teachers' salaries decrease pro rata, from now on, it will not be difficult to predict the number who will, in future, follow this profession.

It is hoped the Teachers' Union will look into this question of raising the female teachers salary to that of the male.
