STRIVES TO AID HOMELESS BOYS

WINNIPEG, July 6 (CP) — J. Whittla, Winnipeg cafe proprietor, ran away from his Edmonton, Alta., home years ago, and suffered so many hardships he is now devoting his life to aiding homeless boys. He has a standing offer to house and feed boys at his restaurant. Above the cafe he has a number of rooms. "I'll never rent the rooms," he said, "so why shouldn't I let the kids sleep in them." "Every restaurant in the city throws away food daily. Why shouldn't this be given to the young boys who are drifting along?" "I like to help these kids along for I know what a tough ride it can be when you're down and out."

Second Chance

"It isn't from me. It's from Sir Wallace." "But he, too..." "Anyway, there it is." He tossed a small packet across the desk between them. It proved to contain a ring in which one fine emerald was mounted. "It is from the necklace," Simon Dale said. "They found it in the petrol tank of that car. In the circumstances, I suggested this as a gracious act on Sir Wallace's part, and he jumped at it. There are two tales on this afternoon, by the way; we shall have to take one each." "Right!" said Ferguson Hallett.

National Parks Of Canada

OTTAWA, July 5—A brief description of the scenic and recreational attractions of Canada's twenty national parks is contained in a new illustrated booklet, "The National Parks of Canada," just issued by the Department of Mines and Resources, Ottawa. This worthwhile feature of this timely publication is a map of Canada in colours, showing the location of the various national parks and their proximity to the main high-ways and main railways. With one exception (Glacier National Park in British Columbia) all units of the national park system may be reached by motor highway, for they are either traversed by or linked up with the main avenues of motor travel. In addition, nearly all the parks are served either directly, or with the assistance of motor road connection by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railway systems. "The National Parks of Canada" points out that: "Among Canada's greatest tourist attractions are her national parks, areas of outstanding scenic beauty or interest which have been set aside by statute for the use and enjoyment of the people. Including a total area of 12,525 square miles, these national reservations differ widely in character and vary in purpose. They conserve the wild life of Canada under natural conditions, preserve sites memorable in the nation's history, and help to maintain the primitive landscape in its original state. Not the least is their value as national recreational areas, for they provide, in contrasting settings, unequalled opportunities for the enjoyment of outdoor life." For purposes of comparison, Canada's National Parks are divided into separate classes, which include the scenic and recreational parks, the wild animal parks or preserves, and the national historic parks. In the first group are Banff, Jasper, and Waterton Lakes National Parks in Alberta; Kootenay, Yoho, Glacier, and Mount Revelstoke National Parks in British Columbia; Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan; and Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba. In Ontario are Point Pelee, Georgian Bay Islands, and St. Lawrence Islands National Parks, recreational areas typical of the region. Recent additions to the system are Cape Breton Highlands National Park in Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island National Park.

The special wild animal parks which exist for the protection of once nearly extinct species such as the buffalo, wapiti or elk, and the pronghorned antelope, were established as preserves for these interesting creatures whose former habitat disappeared with the settlement of the west. Buffalo and Elk Island National Parks in Alberta are noted for their herds of buffalo, as well as for large numbers of elk, mule deer, and moose. In Nemiskam National Park, also in Alberta, was established for the protection of the pronghorned antelope.

In addition to the maintenance and development of scenic, recreational, and animal reserves, the work of the National Parks Bureau of Canada includes the marking of sites connected with outstanding historic events, and the preservation of some of the ancient buildings on such sites. Fort Anne in Nova Scotia and Fort Beauséjour in New Brunswick are examples of important historic sites which have been set aside as national historic parks. Copies of "The National Parks of Canada" may be obtained by writing The Controller, National Parks Bureau, Ottawa.

Women Newspaper Workers Owe Much To Suffragettes

WINNIPEG, July 6 (CP) — There is no better time than the present for women to engage in newspaper work, Ishbel Ross, New York Herald Tribune writer, told the Women's Canadian Club in an address here. "News is more potent than ever before," she said, "and we are more internationally minded. Women today are capable of filling any newspaper post and more than 12,000 are employed by the press in the United States." "Here and there women are editing and running newspapers," she said. "They have gone far in syndicate, feature and tabloid fields." Women's fight for suffrage blazed the trail for newspaperwomen half a century ago. It got them on the front page. Success could be attributed to pioneer club women such as Jenny June whose perseverance and enthusiasm broke down the wall that confronted women 50 years ago.

MRS. ROBERT B. AULD

The death occurred at her home in Freetown on Monday, June 6th, of Mrs. Robert B. Auld at the age of 71. Mrs. Auld, who before her marriage was Nettie Found, was born at Found's Mills, New London, and lived there until her marriage when she moved to Freetown to a beautiful home which nestles at the side of the famed Birch Grove. She was an estimable woman, loved by all, and fond memories will ever be recalled by those fortunate enough to have been numbered among her friends. Sixteen years ago she had a serious illness from which she never fully recovered. She led a retired life, but her Christian life and wonderful personality will never be forgotten. Surviving are two daughters, viz. Mrs. Everett Schurman, Freetown; Mrs. (Rev.) W.A. MacQuarrie, Hunter River; and one son, Rev. Walter R. Auld, Midland, Ont. One son, Brewer, died two years ago, and to his widow fell the task of caring for his invalid mother. This task was carried out with unstinting cheerfulness and love. One sister, Mrs. J. S. Ross, Vancouver, B.C.; four brothers, George Found, Vancouver; Harlan P. Found, New London; William A. Found, Deputy Minister of Fisheries, Ottawa; and Walter Found, Merced, Calif., also survive. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon to the People's Cemetery, Freetown, and was very largely attended. Rev. J. W. A. Nicholson officiated, assisted by Rev. W. J. MacLeod, New Glasgow, and Rev. J. M. Murchison, Saint John, N.B. The pallbearers were: Colby Lewis, John Lewis, Robert Auld, Frank Deacon, Aubrey Found and Heath Found.
