WASHINGTON ATE HOE CAKES. There was no wheat shortage in America when George Washington was a wealthy Virginia planter before the Revolution, yet that eminent patriot set an example in the conservation of flour which citizens of today would do well to follow, say an exchange.

THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT, 1917

REPORT OF CASES DECIDED BY THE CENTRAL APPEAL JUDGE REPORTER: J. LORN McDUGALL, BARRISTER-AT-LAW.

Re JOHN COMPTON (Serial No 585412 H. C.) Where a community are farming and fishing in co-operation, temporary exemptions may be granted to enable the applicant to show what efforts the community are making to increase production.

March 5, 1918. The Central Appeal Judge: This is a case in which a community of individuals, consisting of men, women and children, are working the property in common and operating a fishing plant.

Before the expiration of the period allowed an application made by the applicant for a further exemption, when it will be open to the applicant to show what efforts the community are making to increase production. It will be necessary to give exact particulars as to the acreage under the plow, the acreage under crop, including the hoed crop, together with the kinds of crop, the acreage of pasture and of hay, as well as the number of cattle, stating how many are milch cows, and of horses, sheep and pigs.

Exemption granted until 1st June, 1918. Re JOHN WHITE (Serial No. 790081) Farm labourer whose exemption is sought by his employer, given temporary exemption? Further exemption made conditional on employer furnishing evidence of preparations undertaken for production for the coming season.

March 5, 1918. The Central Appeal Judge: Exemption is granted until the 1st of June provided the subject of the application continues to work as a farm labourer. In the meantime it will be necessary, before the 1st of May, for the proprietor, Mr. John F. White, of Toronto, to file with the Registrar a written statement showing the acreage under plough, the acreage under crop, and of each kind of crop, the amount of pasture and of hay, and particulars as to cattle and hogs; and on application for renewal it will be necessary for him to satisfy the tribunal that the production for the season of 1918 is likely to be of such magnitude as to justify the withdrawal of John White from military service.

Appeal allowed. Re J. H. ADAMS (Serial No. 504651) A farmer, one of a family of farmers having other members exempted, required on applying for extension of exemption period, to show efforts towards increased production on the part of the family. All exemptions liable to be reviewed.

February 25, 1918. The Central Appeal Judge: Exemption is granted until the 1st of June. The father, John Adams, and the subject of the application, Harry Adams, must report before the 1st of May giving full particulars as to preparation for the season of 1918, including exact information as to acreage under crop, specifying the kinds of crops and the number of acres devoted to each; together with full particulars as to cattle, horses, hogs and sheep.

Report must also be made concerning John Henry Adams. It will be necessary in order to get an extension of the exemption period hereby granted, that the family shall show they are doing their utmost to increase in the season 1918. The attention of the family is hereby called to the fact that the exemption granted to John Henry Adams may be reviewed at any time.

Exemption granted until 1st June, 1918. Re J. RODTKA (Serial No. 377796 M. C.) Temporary exemptions allowed to farmers are in the nature of licenses conditional on the efforts of the person exempted being such as to justify continued exemption.

February 20, 1918. The Central Appeal Judge: The need for troops cannot be exaggerated. On the other hand the necessity of maintaining food production is equally pressing. The exemption granted to farmers is granted solely because of the conviction that they are, or may be, more useful in food production than as troops at the front.

Such exemptions are really in the nature of licenses and the condition that the efforts in the direction of food production of a person exempted are such as to justify the granting of the exemption. In the present case the production is not nearly as great as it ought to be. Exemption has been granted until the 1st of June, and an application may be made before the expiration of that period for an extension of the exemption period; but it will be necessary that, before the 1st of May, J. Rodtka shall file with the Registrar, a statement showing the average under plow, acreage under crop, and the different kinds of crop; also full particulars as to cattle. The statement must further show to what extent preparations are being made for increasing production during the season of 1918, and on any application for an extension of the exemption period it will be necessary to satisfy the tribunal that he is next year, effort to see that the production of 1918 shall be adequate, considering the size and nature of the farm. Exemption granted until 1st June, 1918.

Some Trouble Met For Daylight Saving But Government Bill Gets its Second Reading. If the old rhyme—"Early to bed, and early to rise, Makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise"—is true, then Canadians will most likely increase their brain, muscle and pocket-book power next year; for Canada is to have a daylight saving law. The Government's measure (they call it a war measure) to advance the hands of the clock one hour, got a second reading in the Commons yesterday; it is to be given a third reading almost immediately, and it is expected to pass the gauntlet of the Senate, a proclamation will bring it promptly into effect.

The measure did not get a second reading yesterday because, as a matter of fact, few bills introduced under Government aegis in recent years have met with a greater measure of hostility; and at one stage of the debate, when Sir George Foster, Government supporter, expressed antagonism, it looked as if the legislation would have to be withdrawn.

In the Danger Zone. Last year, it will be recalled, a daylight saving measure encountered such a storm of disapproval that the Government, which fathered it, had to beat a hasty retreat. This year it was hoped that Union would make the passage of such legislation much easier, but the early trend of debate, when Sir George Foster, yesterday launched his bill a second time, showed that this belief came near proving a dangerous mistake. In fact, it soon developed that the House was full of men who believe with Harry Lauder that although "it's nice to get up in the morning, it's nicer to stay in your bed." Then, too, farmer members discerned between the four corners of the bill a monster conspiracy to get shorter hours for the hired man; while finally, a few insurgents, probably intent on nothing more than working injury to the Government, subjected the proposal to a severe verbal barrage.

The debate resolved itself into a scolding, unrelenting stream of speech, more or less acerbic in form and matter, but all fortunately enough possessing the virtue of being brief. Then it Won Out. When Sir George Foster rose at nearly eleven o'clock to sum up for the bill, it looked as if the daylight men were considerably in the minority. Sir George, however, is still the "Old Master" of debate, and his neat little speech converted many to his side. When the speaker finally called for the "ayes" and "nays," the opponents of the bill shrank from taking up the gage of battle, the farmer representatives were silent; and if the insurgents were willing to wound, they were also afraid to strike. Daylight saving won without as much as a show of hands.

Then, however, the House belied its fondness for saving daylight by proceeding to discuss a lot of estimates until nearly midnight. Clearing Sale by Auction. We are authorized by Patrick C. Quinn, Auburn, Lot 36, to sell ON WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1918. COMMENCING AT 1 O'CLOCK, P. M.

Opportunities for Competent Men and Women

We require a number of Solicitors in Country Districts throughout the Province and shall be pleased to hear from Returned Soldiers and others who would like to take up Life Insurance work.

EXTRAVAGANCE, always a folly, in these days becomes a crime, Thrift, always a virtue, in these days becomes a national duty.

Is there any more intelligent manner of exercising the virtue of thrift than by regularly saving the amount necessary to pay for sufficient Life Insurance protection? The numberless premiums contributed by thrifty people are redistributed by the Companies in helping to finance the country and the War—as well as in providing homes and other necessities for thousands of widows and children.

More than half a century of statistics develops the fact that only three men in every hundred are self-supporting at the age of 65, and that the other ninety-seven are absolutely dependent upon others for the common necessities of life.

A large proportion of this unfortunate situation is due to the failure of young men to establish a definite financial plan for the future. For such a plan, Life Insurance is the medium most available and dependable.

The Policies of the Great-West Life give the most protection for the least money and pay the highest dividends to Policy-holders.

SOCKS ACKNOWLEDGED

The following letters have been received by the Ladies of the Summerside Branch of the Red Cross from soldiers in France who have received parcels of socks from this Branch.

To Summerside Branch of Red Cross: Very many thanks for the socks which your members have sent. I can say in behalf of those who received a pair that they were indeed greatly appreciated and each fellow started first of all searching for the usual note which always makes the socks the more welcome and I am sure that each donor will be individually thanked. Thanking you all for your kindness, I remain, Yours truly, W. E. DALEY

President of Red Cross Society, Summerside. Last night I received a parcel containing a sweater, a pair of gloves, and a number of pairs of socks, for which please accept my thanks. I have helped myself to a few pairs of socks and have passed the remainder around among my comrades who wish me to thank you for them. Thanking you again for so kindly remembering me, I am Yours truly, BDR. W. HAYWOOD MORRISON

"I'm all in the dark about how these bills are to be paid," said Mr. Hard-up to his wife. "Well, Henry," said she, as she pulled out a coloured one and laid it on the pile, "you will be if you don't pay that one, for it's the gas bill."

"Would you die for me," she asked, sentimentally. "Now, look here," he returned, in his matter-of-fact way, "are we supposed to be planning a cheap novel or a wedding?"
