Wreckage Of Missing Plane Is Salvaged

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., June 25.—Bits of aeroplane wreckage, believed to be the first indication of the fate of pilot Arthur Sullivan and Dr. Karl Kuenert, were being carried to St. John's tonight from Cape Borman, where they were found by fishermen.

Sullivan and Kuenert left St. Anthony the night of May 30 on a short pleasure flight. Their gypsy moth plane was seen high over Cape St. Anthony. Fog rolled over the coast, darkness shut down and it was seen no more. A search of the northern peninsula by plane failed to reveal any trace of them, and a fleet of coastal vessels found nothing.

Nothing definite could be learned from the brief message received today from Cape Norman, but it is believed the wreckage will be identified when it arrives here.

Mrs. M. S. Sullivan, mother of the missing flier, who was a passenger in a Canadian Airways seaplane during the search, is back at her home in St. John's.

Dr. Kuenert was a dentist attached to the Grenfell Mission at St. Anthony.

Can. Prelates Hold Meeting

DUBLIN, June 25.—(Canadian Press Cable)—Under the chairmanship of Rt. Rev. J. T. McNally, Bishop of Hamilton, Ont., the Canadian prelates and priests here for the Eucharistic Congress today held the first of their two sectional meetings.

The principal address was delivered by Rev. Father M. Cline of Toronto, his paper being entitled "The Blessed Eucharist; the Lighthouse of Ireland," and the Canadians listened with great attention as Father Cline traced the developments of Irish Catholicism and its effect on the rest of the world through Irish migration down the years.

A Pontifical High Mass celebrated by Rt. Rev. T. O'Donnell, Archbishop of Halifax, N. S. preceded the Canadian meeting.

Harvard Honors Canada's Premier

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 25.—(By The Canadian Press)—The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Premier R. B. Bennett of Canada by Harvard University in the 296th commencement exercises.

Distinguished personages of the United States were also awarded honorary degrees, and 2,205 degrees in class, were awarded to the largest graduating class in Harvard's history.

Premier Bennett, in expressing his appreciation for the honor conferred upon him, spoke of the efforts which Harvard had "wrought mightily" in maintaining "those ideals upon which are founded alike your national life and ours."

"Your present power," said Mr. Bennett "is best proof that you have forever remained true to those principles which safeguard the liberty and happiness of us both. There could be no friendship and goodwill such as we now enjoy if either of us had faltered, if either had refused the other support in the common duty which the richness of our heritage has imposed upon us; that common heritage which we call love of truth. Passion for knowledge and freedom to search them out and make them ours; that heritage which in days when civilization upon this continent had but hazardous foothold, was kept safe for us at Cambridge and not less safe at other seats of learning in the old world."

In doing its duty, said the Premier, Harvard's "profound contribution to the upbuilding of your own country has not been halted at its frontiers."

"We have known the value of it," he continued, "in almost as full measure, I think, as if no boundary divided us. Your international influence reflects your national strength."

Premier Bennett interpreted the honor he received as a further sign of the friendship and good will Americans have for Canada.

Among other recipients of honorary degrees were former Judge Samuel Seabury of New York who is now engaged in an investigation of the affairs of the administration of Mayor James J. Walker of that city; Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the United States Treasury and Professor John Dewey of Columbia University.

Serum Made From Fleas Held As Typhus Preventive

WASHINGTON, June 25.—In a then was rubbed into scratches on the bodies of two guinea pigs.

Dr. Dyer was to be awarded an honorary degree today by Kenyon College, Gambier, O., from which he graduated in 1907. He received his medical degree from the University of Texas in 1915 and almost at once began his experiments with typhus.

Typhus has been dreaded in Europe for centuries. During the Middle Ages, typhus plagues swept throughout Central Europe. Serious outbreaks usually follow a war and the disease is still extremely virulent in Europe and the mortality rate high. Until 1854 typhus was believed to be identical with typhoid fever.

The disease takes a less severe form in this country, known technically as endemic typhus. In 1930, 48 cases were reported to the health service, with nine fatalities. Until 1910 the United States was considered free from the disease, except for occasional cases brought in from other countries. Since then however, there have been outbreaks along the Atlantic coast in Southern States, particularly Alabama and Georgia.

To make a serum, fleas which had been fed on infected rats were crushed in a mortar. This material

Barry Jones Essays Enoch Arden Figure

LONDON, June 25.—(By The Canadian Press)—"Queer Cattle" written by Philip Johnson, which was produced at the Haymarket Theatre, London, by Basil Dean, actor, producing manager, stage director and dramatic author, ran but a short time and was withdrawn. Barry Jones, well known in Canada, took the leading role, but did not make a brilliant success of it, as he has done with so many characters he has enacted on the stage. E. A. Baughan, drama critic for the News-Chronicle, writing of the first night of the play, says:

"There were titlers when Barry Jones, as an Enoch Arden, tenderly carried Mary Ellis to her bed, at the end of the play, after the players had been applauded a raucous shout of Rubbish heralded the gramophone playing of 'God Save the King.' I am glad Philip Johnson did not take his call, for it would probably have discouraged him. He is a Macclesfield shopkeeper who has written a number of plays. Some of them have been produced at the Liverpool Repertory Theatre, and 'Queer Cattle' is one of three bought by Basil Dean. I have been told on good authority that it is not the best of the three.

Killed In Plane Crash

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 25.—Death waved the checkered flag for Richard Bennett at the international air races that opened here today. The 35-year-old manager of the Binghamton Airport plunged earthward in a burst of flames as he was rounding the second pylon in a race for small-motored planes. He was dead when attendants reached him.

While the other planes roared over the final leg of the triangular course, attendants lifted the smashed plane from the mangled body of the aviator and carried him from the field. Pilots who viewed the wreckage said his motor had exploded in mid-air.

Two other pilots experienced mishaps while flying to the meet, but escaped serious injury. Charles Thompson of Baltimore was forced into a river near Olean by a down-wind current of air. His plane was wrecked beyond repair, he said. He suffered only a bruised leg, while his 15 year old son, Charles, Jr., flying with him, suffered a bruised cheek. Charles W. Brown of Baltimore, another passenger, escaped injury.

N. B. APPLE TREE HAS 107 GRAFTS

FREDERICTON, N. B., June 25.—(By The Canadian Press)—The famous apple tree on the farm of Major F. A. Good, which has received press recognition in Europe and America, has now a total of 107 grafts. Of this number, planted by Major Good, only two or three are to be replaced through failure to grow, and there is still room for a dozen more grafts on the tree.

Major Good, one of the instructors in the Provincial Normal School took up this branch of horticulture in an amateur way and continued in an attempt to find out how many grafts would thrive on an apple-tree of an ordinary variety. His experiments in grafting include apple-wood on growing on rowan and Hawthorne trees, and pear grafts growing on apple trees.
