SUMMERSIDE, June 15.—In the Supreme Court here today the case of King vs. Thomas Murray, charged with intimidating a witness, which case was commenced yesterday before the Chief Justice and a jury again occupied the attention of the Court all day.

Taking of evidence was concluded about four o'clock after which the addresses of the Counsel and the judge followed, the case going to the jury at 5.35. At ten p. m., they reported as being unable to agree and His Lordship ordered them to return until morning. At eleven o'clock they were still out and no prospects of a decision. Accordingly they were locked up until eleven today.

On court resuming this morning the case of King vs George Murphy, charged with having carnal knowledge of a girl under sixteen will likely be taken up.—S.

GEORGETOWN, June 14—The preliminary hearing of the Molyneaux case in Georgetown was again resumed at 11.50 this morning, Mr. Inman conducting the case for Crown.

The following evidence was received for the prosecution:

Mrs. Henry Campbell (sworn). Have been acquainted with prisoner fifteen years, and had known deceased seven or eight years. Am a neighbor of Molyneaux's. Deceased called at our house on May 4th, about tea-time. The little girl, Elsie, was with her. She asked if Mrs Campbell was home. (Mr. Stewart objected, on the ground that any evidence not directly related to the res jesta of the case should not be given). She said she wanted to see my husband to law Will for saying she was crazy. She said she went to William Molyneaux's, senior, and they wouldn't let her in, and then she went to Finlay McBeth's and her husband came in and put his arm around her and put her outside, and she said he winked at McBeth. She said, "I am not crazy, Mrs. Campbell; but they are killing me by inches." I said to her never mind them at all.

I told my husband to go over, that she was asking for law. Prisoner was at our house one Sunday since the tragedy. I told him what she said about them killing her by inches. Do not remember of him saying anything in reply.

Cross-examined by Mr. Stewart. Remember the death of Angus McPherson. On the 4th of May deceased said she wished she was in Angus McPherson's place. During the winter I heard her say that her husband was trying to kill her to get Sadie McBeth. She said also that before the summer was over, the settlement would be surprised, or words to that effect.

Finlay McBeth, who had been previously examined, was recalled to give evidence as to burial of deceased.

Henry Campbell recalled, was asked by Mr. Inman if there was any conversation he could recollect which he had not given in his previous examination. Mr. Stewart objected. Witness said: Deceased was at my place during the winter and asked me if her husband had been over there trying to get her in the asylum. I said no. The man never mentioned it. Shortly before the tragedy I was at prisoner's house. His wife and children were there. Deceased was not in very good humor that day and she told me prisoner had kicked her. Prisoner said when we came out that she was cross to him, and I said he should try to be kind to her and that was all he could do.

To Mr. Stewart. I didn't pay much attention to what deceased said that day.

Mr. Inman announced that this was all the evidence to be produced for the prosecution.

Court adjourned at 12.45 to meet at 1.30.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Court resumed at 2 o'clock. Prisoner was asked by the magistrate if he wished to have the depositions read over to him. He replied that he did not.

Upon being asked whether he had anything to say in answer to the charge preferred against him, he replied, "I have nothing to say."

Prisoner was then asked by the Magistrate if he wished to call any witnesses on his behalf.

Mr. Stewart stated that prisoner did not intend to call any witnesses.

Mr. Inman then addressed the Court. He said that he did not propose reviewing the evidence to any great extent or entering into any lengthy discussion. He said that the purpose of this investigation was not to try the case on its merits but to determine whether or not there was sufficient evidence to send prisoner up to the Supreme Court for trial. Mr. Inman said in part:

Now the body of deceased was found hanging in a pantry on the night of May 4th. The question is how came the deceased to be there. Was it an act on the part of herself or on the part of some other person? In this connection there are certain circumstances which I would ask you to consider.

First. We have abundant evidence that the relations between prisoner and his wife were not pleasant. Then their relations on that very day should be considered. It appears that there was a great commotion over this bell and the same evening the incident of the spilled milk occurred, a quarrel ensuing between prisoner and his wife. Harry Molyneaux said that although they quarrelled frequently this was the worst one they ever had. In that connection Harry says he went asleep that night and afterwards was awakened by hearing a scream. He then looked out the window and saw his father going away from the house.

Then, Wm. McKinnon's evidence as to prisoner's conduct that evening is important. He said that when prisoner called at his house his first query was, "what time is it."

Then when prisoner arrived home he fell prostrate upon hearing the news and instead of rushing immediately into the house he first put the pig in the barn.

Again he appeared to have a knowledge as to where deceased had been hung, suggesting the roller rack without having first received information to that effect. He also said there was only one other place she could hang herself and that was upstairs. Then the prisoner's conversation while at McKinnon's and afterwards might be considered. He spoke about sudden deaths and said that these did not effect his wife very much.

In conclusion Mr. Inman asked that prisoner be sent up to Supreme Court for trial. Mr Stewart followed and said that he agreed with what Mr Inman said as to it not being the province of this court to deal finally with the innocence or guilt of the prisoner, but, before prisoner could be sent up for trial there must be some evidence to justify such a proceeding.

A good deal of evidence was given which really was not relevant and after sifting out the chaff the amount relevant was indeed very small. "I submit;" said Mr. Stewart, "that if you look at the acts of the prisoner in the light of ordinary events you will come to the conclusion that he did or said nothing more than an ordinary man would do under ordinary circumstances. I submit that if you take the actions of any man under ordinary circumstances and throw upon them the light of suspicion then every one of those acts will appear suspicious. But if you take away the idea of the alleged crime and look at his acts in the light of ordinary events there will be nothing extraordinary in connection with them."

"As to prisoner's speaking about sudden deaths it is common knowledge that when a death occurs in the country it is one of the first things talked about when two or three persons meet. Was it any sign of guilt on the part of the prisoner that he should mention these to a neighbor."

"There is no particular evidence of any serious quarrel or disagreement between this man and his wife, but there is evidence that the woman had been acting strangely for months before this took place. The bell accident is an instance of how her mind was afflicted by little things. It seems ridiculous that this quarrel about the bell and the spilt milk should be such as would culminate in murder.

"As to prisoner's going for the pig it has been proved that McKinnon sent him a postal card to come, indicating that this was a bonafide transaction and that his going there was not premeditated."

"As to the medical evidence it leaves the matter entirely open. The post mortem appearances in both hanging and strangulation are practically the same excepting that the medical authorities seem to lean to the opinion that more symptoms are liable to be absent in hanging than in strangulation. The situation of the sink in the pantry was such as to have enabled the woman to have committed the act. There was an absence of any mark of a struggle and further if the evidence of Harry Molyneaux is to be believed it would be impossible for the prisoner to commit the act for he would have but ten minutes to kill the woman, hang her up and go away."

In closing Mr. Stewart contended there was no evidence on which to send prisoner to Supreme Court for trial.

The Stipendiary remarked that he had taken and considered the evidence very carefully and he could come to no other conclusion than that there was sufficient evidence to justify him in placing the prisoner upon his trial. Consequently he committed him to the Supreme Court for trial which meets in Georgetown in July.

But a few days ago The Guardian published an article giving the scores and commenting on some of the excellent performances on the Transvaal rifle range of W. J. Kennedy, Johannesburg, formerly of Southport.

Once more it becomes the pleasure of this journal to record similar accomplishments on the part of Mr. Kennedy—but this time even more noteworthy than previously.

Quite recently, in the earlier part of the present month, the Natal Bisley Matches were held and Mr. Kennedy was a competitor—and a most successful one. He scooped in $138.50 in cash and a good share of silverware, besides putting on some really remarkable scores.

Writing to Major A. A. Bartlett, city, Mr. Kennedy says that that was the finest shooting he had ever done. "The conditions here," he adds, "are far from easy, when you consider one lying down in the boiling sun and holding on to a red hot rifle."

Below is appended a condensation of the reports of the matches and Mr. Kennedy's shooting.

The last words of mother when I left the farm—
A bright, happy boy, never dreaming of harm—
She wept, and she left her sweet kiss on my face,
While looking to God, in the parting, for grace,
And then as I galloped away she called, "Roy,"
I turned in my saddle—"God bless you, my boy."
The years quickly vanished, I wandered afar,
Grew reckless and weary, it seemed every star
Was blotted from Heaven, so dark was my night,
So cruel my fate, when, at last, shone a light
In the heart that sin's curse had long sought to destroy,—
The last words of mother, "God bless you, my boy."
The waves rolled between us, I ne'er saw her more,
And yet as I'd done in the sweet days of yore,
I sat in the twilight and sang mother's songs,
And wept bitter tears o'er the past and its wrongs.
When others have cursed me these words gave me joy—
The last words of mother, "God bless you, my boy."
Methinks in the light of the beautiful home,
When toiling is over, no longer to roam,
The words that recalled me from sin and its charm,
When I went a-roaming and left the old farm,
When mother shall greet me, perchance, then in joy
She'll murmur these loved words, "God bless you, my boy."

CUT THIS OUT AND PASTE IT UP.

Almost every day The Guardian receives orders by mail to insert news matter of an advertising nature. In most of these cases the senders, who are frequently not known to any member of the staff and who have no account in the advertising department, write "Please insert the following and oblige," thus apparently implying that they think the items will be inserted free. Only a few weeks ago a reader wrote asking that his advertisement of Farm for Sale be inserted free from day to day until he cancelled it, as he is a subscriber to The Guardian. In this connection it may be said that the subscription price is not sufficient to even pay the actual cost of paper, ink, presswork, mailing, bookeeping and other expenses of the Circulation department proper, and thus subscribers have no privileges of free advertising and are on the same footing as non-subscribers. Seldom ever does the sender state whether the item is to appear in the Morning Daily or the Rural Daily, whether for one or more times in either Daily, or in both, whether as a display advertisement, announcement, business local, classified ad or otherwise. When for church or charitable purposes they seldom ever say so, or do not enclose sufficient money to pay for same all of which will be returned by first mail in the event of the item not being chargeable; or if more money is sent than necessary to pay for the item the surplus will be returned at once, there being a greater discount for cash with order for advertising of churches &c than for regular business. In all such cases the Advertising department communicates with the sender as quickly as possible by mail or phone, often paying the messenger service to get them to the telephone if not too far distant, thus saving all possible time. People write this office to know if News, Letters to Editor, etc., are charged for, and to all such there is but one reply—all items etc of a money making nature, even though they be somewhat of a news nature, are chargeable. For instance, the advance notice or notices of a concert, lecture, pie social, picnic, etc., are chargeable if an admission fee, silver collection, sale of pies or sale of food or refreshments, etc. Advance notices of purely religious services, even tho a silver collection is to be taken up, are not chargeable. The particulars of any of the above, after they have been held, are, however, news and thus not chargeable. The news of any past, present or future business, which is still being conducted, is chargeable, if it is apparent that the object is to make the business more widely known and thus increase it. Verses accompanying death notices are also chargeable. Even items which are actual news and not chargeable for but once in either Morning Daily or Rural Daily or both are chargeable for more than one insertion, as they are thus not news.

The above facts are given for the purpose of assisting persons who have items, etc., to mail to this office, so that delay and disappointment will be avoided. 3-16drtf.

FOR TEETHING BABIES.

There is only one medicine for teething babies—that is one that will make teething easy and at the same time can be given with absolute safety. That medicine is Baby's own Tablets—every box of which is sold under the guraantee of a government analyst to be free from all those injurious opiates and narcotics which make "soothing" stuffs so harmful Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. George Leblanc, St. Pamphile, Que., says: "I used Baby's Own Tablets for my baby when he was teething and constipated and found them an excellent remedy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
