

The SUMMERSIDE GUARDIAN

AND PRINCE COUNTY CHRONICLE

THE WESTERN GUARDIAN

AGENTS: Mrs. John Pond, 31 Church Street—Phone 233
SUMMERSIDE AND PRINCE COUNTY

News, Subscriptions Advertising should be left with Mrs. Pond.

The Guardian may be bought daily at any of the following stores in Summerside:

Bell Bookstore, Water Street, Gourlay Drugstore, Water Street, Toronto Bakery, Water Street, Mark Gaudet, 67 Granville Street.

The Guardian will be delivered to any home in Summerside by carrier day after day for one week. Phone 233 for this service or give your order to the boy responsible for deliveries on your route.

This column is reserved for news of local interest, but advertising of a nature may be inserted at 2 cents a word, strictly payable in advance.

—MOIR'S CHOCOLATES in boxes or bulk at Taylor Drug Co., Kensington.

—RED CROSS DANCE, MacNeill's Warehouse, Kensington, July 14th. Ted Ahearn's Orchestra. 7-13-11.

—HOUSE for sale or to rent, 110 Harvard Street, Summerside. Apply H. K. S. Hemming, Charlotte town. 7-11-31.

—BICYCLE for sale, in good condition. Phone 198, Summerside. 7-13-15.

—VISITING P. E. I.—Mrs. William Dodd of New York City is visiting friends on P. E. I. and is at present the guest of Mayor W. J. Lidstone and Mrs. Lidstone.

—FOR SALE—Percheron mare, driving mare, general purpose horse 4 and 5 years, draft mare 4 years with extra good foal at sale $100.00, milk cow and 2 large heifers to freshen, 2 brood sows. Walter S. Weeks, Bayview. 7-13-11.

—CORRECTION—The Guardian regrets that owing to a line of type dropping out, in the news item of the regrettable accident to Alan Andrews a wrong impression was created about the time that he was picked up and taken to the hospital. It should have read "he was picked up and taken to the hospital and hours after was still unconscious." Last night the young man's condition was reported as changed. He is in the Prince County Hospital.

—GAVE AFTERNOON TEA—The Ladies' Club of Trinity United Church entertained on Friday afternoon at Mrs. Victor Travers' pretty home on the outskirts of Summerside in honor of Mrs. Osbourne who is leaving shortly for the United States to take up Red Cross defence work. Afternoon tea was served, Mrs. A. S. Mackay presiding at the tea table. A most enjoyable evening was had and farewells said, all wishing Mrs. Osbourne the best of luck.—S.

—FUNERAL SERVICES—The funeral of Mrs. Fred Peters was held on Friday afternoon from her late residence on Beeson Street, Summerside. Rev. W. J. MacGowan conducted the service assisted by Ven. Archdeacon G. R. Harrison. The pallbearers were Messrs. Geo. A. Reeves, J. C. Mountain, Gordon Barbour, Watson Hardy, Horace George Callbeck, Mountman in the People's Cemetery. S.

—MEETING OF THE SOURIS C. L.—A record attendance of members met in the League rooms on July 3rd to enjoy a social evening and also to honor their former president and valued member, Mrs. Adrian McInnis, now Diocesan President. The president, Mrs. St. Clair Paquet, presided and addressed the members, presenting her, in the name of the members, with a gift on the occasion of her departure in a few days for Montreal. The annual meeting of the National Council of the C. W. L. S. McInnis, although taken by surprise, replied in her usual gracious manner, thanking the members for their thoughtfulness. She also acknowledged a letter received from the Summerside subdivision kindly inviting the annual diocesan convention to meet this year in Summerside. Ice cream and cake were the treats after which a pleasant social hour was spent. The members on departing wished Mrs. McInnis a pleasant journey.

—PRETTY WEDDING—St. Simon and St. Jude Church, Tignish, was the scene of a most beautiful wedding on July 3rd. The bride was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald, Summerside. The groom was Mr. Mann, son of Fraser and the late Mrs. Mann, Rev. J. A. MacDonald performed the double ring ceremony. The bride attended to dress, a gown of dusky rose, wearing a hat with a large beaded brim and a corsage of white carnations was given in marriage by her father. Her bridesmaid was her sister, Fairlie dressed in powder blue. Mr. Lloyd Ready, Tignish, was the groomsmen. The ushers were Walter and Cecil Bernard. The children of Mary rendered appropriate hymns during the nuptial mass. The ceremony luncheon was served at the bride's home. Mrs. C. F. Morrissey, was assisted in serving by Misses Joan Bernard, Jeanette Kinch, Georgene Hemphill and Mrs. Eugene Perry. Mr. and Mrs. Mann left by motor on a honeymoon trip through the day.

—TRAVELLING THE BRIDE wore a navy blue gown with navy and white accessories. The couple were the recipients of many valuable gifts including silver, linen, cut-glass and cheques.

—NOTICE—Owing to the fact that I am leaving the province on Military Service on or about July 20th, I am compelled to request immediate payment or settlement of all accounts owing me. Accounts not paid or settled before that date will be handed to my solicitors for collection.

J. A. MacPHEE, M. D., Summerside.

TO-DAY

ROBT. TAYLOR and LANA TURNER in "JOHNNY EAGER" with Edward Arnold

Also Traveltalk Shows at 7.15-9.15 Matinee Tuesday at 3

CAPITOL SUMMERSIDE

Taylor and Turner Offer Sterling Performances in "Johnny Eager"

Told with a relentless honesty, given striking dramatic imagery in the direction of Mervyn LeRoy and offering the best work by far of two box-office attractions—Robert Taylor and Lana Turner—"Johnny Eager" came to the Capitol screen on Friday afternoon.

The picture is a most engrossing portrait of a gangster, thus giving the picture the memorable "Little Caesar" quality.

From the very first moment in which Taylor, ex-convict posing as a reformed taxi driver, meets Miss Turner, daughter of the prosecutor Bruce Bernard, Roy Tanon, Ralph and Reginald Compton, Stanley Tanton and Fred Mills.

—MALPEQUE W. M. S.—The Malpeque United Church, W. M. S. were entertained at the home of Mrs. Chester Simpson for the July meeting. The meeting was held in the parlour of the home. Hymn 405 was sung, and followed with prayer. Roll call was responded to in the words of a Scripture verse. Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. Mrs. Preston Green read the correspondence. Various other secretaries reported. It was discussed and decided to have the annual meeting at the Manse. The annual meeting was conducted by Mrs. G. W. Ramsay. Prayers were offered by Mrs. Elmer Taylor and Mrs. J. K. MacGowan. The Temperance program in form of a court case, the case for total abstinence against moderation, was most interesting. Mrs. Preston Green, clerk. Mrs. Simpson, chairman. Witnesses were Mrs. Keith Donald, Mrs. Wm. Burns, Mrs. Ralph Beaton, Mrs. E. Bryenton, Mrs. W. Ramsay, and Mrs. Crowds. Meeting closed with hymns and benediction. A social hour followed, and dainty refreshments served.

—FRIENDS OF Mrs. Reginald Reeves of Freetown are glad to see her out again after being confined to her home with pneumonia.

—Mr. D. B. MacDonald of North Bedouque was a visitor to Summerside on Friday.

PERSONALS

—The friends of Mrs. Reginald Reeves of Freetown are glad to see her out again after being confined to her home with pneumonia.

—Mr. D. B. MacDonald of North Bedouque was a visitor to Summerside on Friday.

DANGER GROWS

(Continued from page 1)

Important Volga river linking the Caucasus with central Russia.

Boguchar is 50 miles east of a line drawn due north of Rostov, the southern anchor of the Red line, which thus far has held the Germans pushing along the Sea of Azov. Rostov, which the Germans reached last year and then had to leave, is the key to the high-water mark of eastward invasion.

The crumpling of Voronezh, which the Germans had claimed they captured nearly a week ago, would release a still larger Nazi flood over the steppes of ancient Vichy Russia.

A Vichy radio broadcast heard in London said Nazi troops already had occupied Boguchar, and also had captured Voroshilovgrad, 30 miles southeast of Lischivsk in the direction of Stalin-grad.

The Lancasters had to fly hour after hour through treacherous waters over the North Sea and deep into the home preserves of the Nazi Air Force to reach their target.

Part of the bombing was apparently slipped in toward Danzig from the north as a Swedish announcement in Stockholm said 10 British bombers had crossed the west coast of Sweden Saturday evening.

It seldom gets dark before midnight along the Baltic at this season and the bombers had ample light to choose their targets and press home their attack.

In a further extension of the blazing R.A.F. offensive, a steady stream of R.A.F. planes swept over across the channel today to strike at targets in northern France.

Spitfires flying in layers at varying heights headed for Boulogne and Cap Gris Nez in the liveliest traffic over the channel in weeks.

A lone German plane appeared in the southeast coast but was driven Japanese soldiers and Chinese civilians.

Stress Jap Sources

In its announcement, the External Affairs Department was careful to use such words as "claimed" and "reported" to stress that the report came from Japanese sources. But the account tended to bear out recent government announcements and letters received by private individuals from persons who escaped Hong Kong that conditions have improved since January.

Recently, the department announced it had received information that Canadian prisoners were receiving a "substantial" ration of rice, supplemented by other foods and that little disease existed in one camp where prisoners are held.

Public concern for the fate of prisoners at Hong Kong reached its high point in March when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said the Japanese army in Hong Kong had been guilty of "wholesale atrocities."

Since then the Canadian government has made extensive efforts to obtain information on the lot of Canadian soldiers and to obtain permission for food shipments to Hong Kong. Several weeks ago, Lourenco Marques, Portuguese East Africa, carrying a large quantity of food, clothing and medical supplies for Canadian prisoners at Hong Kong.

The ship has been granted safe passage by belligerent nations. The Canadian contingent to Hong Kong arrived in mid-November last year and numbered 1,087 officers and men. The Japanese announced that 1,689 Canadian soldiers had been taken prisoners and a few subsequently were reported to have died while in Japanese custody.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Axis planes were damaged.

The toll of the giant Junkers-52 in two days thus rose to at least 15. These are capable of carrying 40 to 60 troops. British authorities said they believed the Junkers were carrying Rommel's headquarters and his staff. It was conceivable that 600 or more highly trained Nazi troops had been destroyed in these air actions alone.

Bombers concentrated on a mass of enemy vehicles and shipping at Matruh, leaving a large fire that burned for four hours. Small Axis ships moving between Tobruk and Matruh were attacked successfully and a daylight attack was pressed home on Bengasi where direct hits were scored on the waterfront and shipping.

Australians in Battle

The Australians of the jaunty cocked hats and dashing courage, were disclosed to have entered the battle. Their Prime Minister, John Curtin, said they were "elementally still in the Middle East" and left behind when the bulk of the Aussies were repatriated to meet the Japanese menace to their homeland. Superb fighters, the Australians were partly responsible for the early desert successes under General Sir Archibald Wavell.

The British Nile Army under Sir Claude Auchinleck appeared to have risen like a phoenix from the ashes of the disaster of Tobruk and Libya in which 50,000 men—perhaps half its front-line force—were lost.

It is striking hard and repeatedly with reinforcements from the Middle East, intent upon giving Rommel's weary men no rest nor time to regroup for another stab at Alexandria and the fertile Nile Valley.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of the United States army forces in the European theatre, visited the force

held secretly. These grand-scale second-front manoeuvres were held secretly and were witnessed by only 30 or 40 senior commanders. Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McHugh, commander of the Canadian army in Britain, and Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his second in command, were on the beaches to watch the landings.

Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the special services, also watched the landings. Bernard Paget, general officer commanding in India, and Maj.-Gen. Bernard Montgomery, a special service expert.

There were also several senior United States army and naval officers among the observers and on one occasion Maj.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower