BLOODSHED IN THE COAL MINES OF COLORADO

WALSENBERG, Colo. April 28.—Seven guards were killed at the Walsenberg mine during the night in fighting between the mine guards and coal strikers. The fighting continued this morning. Fifty soldiers are on their way to the scene of trouble. At Lafayette in the night last night the guards used machine guns and drove the strikers back. The strikers also attacked a German mine near Marshall but the machine guns drove them back.

ARMS LANDED BY NATIONALISTS

LONDON, April 28.—The Irish Nationalist volunteers, a body similar to the Ulster volunteers, made matters even last night by successfully landing a large consignment of arms. The weapons are said to have been brought from America. They were landed on the Donegal coast.

GOOD YEAR FOR F XES

In another column, the Dominion Publicity Agent in Charlottetown, Mr. J. E. B. McCready, makes an interesting statement regarding the Silver Fox prospects for the current year. Mr. McCready has been in communication with Dr. Pethick, Dominion Veterinary Inspector, and has been informed that the mortality among young foxes is lower this year than last, and that there is no epidemic or serious sickness affecting any of the fox ranches in the Province.

This is not only reassuring but highly satisfactory. The industry has reached such large proportions, so many people at home and abroad are interested financially and otherwise in foxes, that it is desirable the most authentic information concerning its progress or otherwise should be given in publicity. People are just beginning to realize the immense importance of the official Public Agency is to the Province, and the very valuable services being rendered by Mr. McCready as Government Agent. The amount of correspondence, not only in connection with the fox industry but almost everything concerning the welfare of the community, which the Publicity Agent has to handle daily would surprise the great majority of the business men of Charlottetown. At the present time especially Mr. McCready is being inundated by inquiries, and he has considered it advisable to avail himself of the press for the publication of a bulletin which will give to all and sundry much needed information upon a much discussed question.

Some people seeing the report of the regrettable loss of the Charles Dalton Silver Black Fox Co., Ltd., were naturally a little anxious about the litters of the other ranches. On the authority of the Dominion Veterinary Inspector Mr. McCready assures us that "there is every prospect of a larger crop of pups, in proportion to the number of breeders than there was last year." Not only so, but the loss, according to the same authority will not be, "in the aggregate in excess of that of previous seasons." This is most encouraging and will certainly be appreciated by the many interested in the prosperity of silver foxes.

It is hard that the Dalton Company should be singled out as the proverbial exception to prove the rule. It is so, however, and no crying or fretting will undo the "Act of God" which deprived the shareholders in that company of the huge dividend that was all but within their grasp. It is a great credit, and should prove a magnificent advertisement, that notwithstanding this great loss of litters, the company should still be in the happy position of being able to pay a dividend of from five to fifteen per cent. Perhaps the silver lining of the Dalton Company's cloud is the refreshing candour and commercial honesty of the Directors in taking the public into their confidence. How many directorates in industrial concerns faced with a similar blow would have been so straight-forward. The temptation, to which most other commercial boards would have succumbed, would have been to keep the loss secret and unloaded shares on an unsuspecting public. At the time of the discovery Dalton shares were changing hands at $140 in the confident belief that a fifty per cent. dividend would be declared in September. What easier than that the directors should take advantage of their inside knowledge and sell out the greater part of their holding? It would have been done, and is done every day, in such large centres as London, New York and Montreal, and the Directors who do so are considered smart, keen business men.

Fortunately for the Island, and especially fortunate for the Fox industry the directorates of our pioneer and leading companies are not composed of men of that stamp. There may be differences of opinion as to the wisdom of the Directorate in springing the surprise so suddenly on an unsuspecting public, but the underlying motives redound to their credit and we feel sure ultimately to the advantage of the whole island.

There is nothing gives more confidence and stability to an enterprise like straightforward dealing, and shareholders and investors generally will appreciate the fact that the Directors of the Charles Dalton Silver Black Fox Company hold more shares in the company now than they did a twelve-month ago, whereas had they been "slick" they could have unburdened themselves at a forty per cent. rate, though morally unjust profit.

LOOKING AHEAD

Sir Charles Tupper, the veteran Canadian statesman, was recently interviewed by the Westminster Gazette (London), with reference to Canada's money borrowing.

Sir Charles said, "People say that Canada is going ahead too rapidly—that she is borrowing too much money. I am convinced that the progress is not more rapid than the conditions of the country warrant. The development of so large a country is a very serious matter, and, of course, it demands the employment of a great deal of money. I do not think the money of this country could be better expended than in the development of what will be the right arm of the Empire."
"Then you do not think that the money is being called for too fast?"
"Why too fast? There are no better investments to be found than in the Dominion of Canada or in any of its Provinces, from Nova Scotia to Vancouver. The money is being well expended there, and the development that is in progress is enormous. You cannot build up great cities with hundreds of thousands of population, in a wilderness, without very heavy expenditure. Investors can have no better security than the Government of Canada offers them, or than they can obtain from the Provinces and the great municipalities."

"I have a profound faith of the progress and prosperity of the Dominion. She will advance steadily until she will have no difficulty in competing successfully with the other great nations of the North American continent—the United States. One of the facts that must be borne in mind in considering the probable future of Canada is the great change that has taken place in this country in the value of money." Sir Charles went on, "When I came to England in 1888 for the first 3 per cent. loan that any Colony ever raised I received an average price for it of £35 1s. per cent. That would be impossible now owing to the increased value of money. That is an illustration, entirely irrespective of Canada's resources, of what I mean. This increase in the demand for money will tell in favor of Canada in the long run. Her progress and prosperity have surpassed those of any other country for several years now, and there are indications already that the recent general depression has left her vigor quite unimpaired. Her natural resources, you must remember, are almost unlimited, and only a very small portion of them has yet been tapped. They are practically inexhaustible."

Sir Charles' faith in his native country is magnificent and cannot fail to beget faith among British Capitalists and tell mightily in favor of Canada whose development demands enormous outlays.

RELATIVE VALUES

Character is admittedly man's or woman's most valuable possession. Even in this age of rampant commercialism, wealth, the otherwise omnipotent, cannot adjust its mantle in such fashion as to wholly hide a besmirched character. Society, magnificently tolerant where wealth flings its coins, cannot afford to countenance the discovery of a social crime even in one of its favorites, male or female—and particularly the latter. Openly as well as secretly the world admits the truth of the old adage, "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," and with all our modern greed, with all our thirst for wealth, few even of the most covetous would deliberately exchange their good name for gold.

And here is an anomaly: Should a man's material possessions be endangered, all his neighbors—rich and poor, good and bad alike—will rush to his assistance. If his life is in danger, if misfortune touches his property, or sickness or death threatens him or his, sympathy and kindness and help are poured in upon him unhesitatingly. But if his good name falls under suspicion, if scandal whispers ugly things about him—or more especially about her, the scandal is rolled as a sweet morsel under the tongue. There is no stampede of friends to save the good name that is threatened. The ugly whisper is repeated, is passed on from tongue to tongue, the good name is torn into shreds and dragged in the mud, regardless of the fact that it was a neighbor's most valuable possession, dearer than life or gold or even than kindred.

Is not the carelessness, to say nothing of the wickedness, with which people's faults and stumblings and even their falls are often discussed, an evidence of our want of appreciation of relative values? If the consequences were foreseen would we add our little assent to the lightly spoken word that is to develop into a scandal which will rob some man or woman of their good name? Would we not, if we weighed the consequences, as sternly repress the unkind remark which, if permitted to grow, would destroy a reputation, as we would quench the flames that would destroy our neighbor's property? "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," and therefore should be more sacredly guarded.

NOTES

Charlottetown's streets are now very creditable, thanks to the prompt action of the City Council during the past few days. An immense amount of work has been done, employment has been given to many laborers and our streets are once more a credit to the city and a joy to our automobilists and drivers. While "hand picking" the streets is necessarily slow and possibly more expensive in the end than the employment of machinery, the system has the advantage of giving employment to many who otherwise would be unemployed, and the cost is being distributed around the city. In any case citizens will rejoice that our streets are once more of the earth, earthy, and not in a fluid condition.

THE FOX OUTLOOK

Sir.—Inquiries having been made from outside the Island in regard to the crop of young foxes this year and the mortality as compared with other years, Dr. Pethick, Dominion Veterinary Inspector, or his assistant, has visited a great number of ranches from Alberton, the birthplace of the industry, to the Eastern section of Queen's County, a district including 75 per cent of the ranches in the Island. On being interviewed by me, Dr. Pethick states that the mortality this season is lower than last year, and that there is no epidemic or serious sickness affecting foxes existing in the district. As happens every year, losses of some litters have been reported, in a single case very heavy, but not in the aggregate in excess of that of previous seasons and there is every prospect of a larger crop of pups, in proportion to the number of breeders than there was last year.

This information is confirmed by numerous inquiries of individual ranches and from the personal knowledge of many expert fox breeders. The stability of the industry is evidenced by the fact that there has been a single failure since the beginning of any fox company established, that the capital in every case is intact, including the one which sustained the heaviest loss this season. This record together with the fact that so little money is tied up in the ranch and operating plant of a fox company, is unparalleled in any other industry.

The directors of the company that sustained the heaviest loss are confident that they will be able to pay a dividend this year.

I am Sir,
J. E. B. MCCREADY,
Publicity Agent for P. E. Island,
Charlottetown, April 28, 1914.

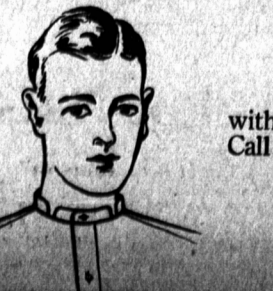

AID TO C. N. RAILWAY

OTTAWA, April 28.—The Conservative Caucus today was the largest of the session. It had to do chiefly with the Canadian Northern Aid Bill principally in the matter of security. That the Government will make a vote for that has long been assured. It will be about $45,000,000 secured as follows:—
1.—Upon a consolidation of the main lines in Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia.
2.—Forty per cent of common stock to be handed to the Government.
3.—Further block of 15 per cent. to be held for the Government in Trust until the Company is able to do its own financing.

application to the Court, and it could not be done as a matter of course. But anything of the kind practically could be done by consent. Mr. Lyons said that the difficulty that he saw was that it would be hard to get people to deposit their money in institutions of this kind at the same three per cent. rate that they would get in banks, where they would be well guarded. The rate of interest would have to be much higher to induce people to put their money into a trust company. The Premier said that the rate of interest would be higher. Three per cent. was not a reasonable rate of interest at all upon any investment. The amount of interest to be paid upon deposits would have to be determined by the board of directors and by the circumstances existing in this province. So far as security went, a trust company established here with a proper board of directors should offer as good security as any of the chartered banks. It was essential to its success that there should be on the board of directors such a select body of men as would secure the confidence of the investing public.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED.

In reply to Mr. Grant, who wanted to know whether the company would be able, in addition to borrowing and lending money and handling trusts, to transact a general brokerage business and underwrite stocks, the Premier said that the powers given to the company were just as wide as any trust company in Canada was given. Mr. Grant then said that he thought there was a big opening in this province for such a company, and in the opportunity it would be able to give for the development of industrial enterprises, it would be a splendid thing for the Island. He would give it his hearty support.

Mr. Holm expressed himself in a similar strain, and Mr. Wedlock, as one of those who had canvassed in regard to the petition for the Act, said that every encouragement had been received from the people generally with regard to the establishment of such a business.

After a few remarks by Mr. Wilkinson expressive of his support of the movement and its timeliness, on the motion of Mr. Wedlock—motion was carried that a committee of seven (three for Queen's, and two each for Prince and King's) be appointed to solicit subscriptions of stock for the company, with power to add to its number.

Mr. McDonald said that though the attendance was small it was no reflection upon the support the project had received; it had been favourably considered by the leading financial men of the province, who had promised their support.

The meeting next appointed, as a committee to appoint the committee in the terms of the previous resolution, Messrs. Martin (chairman), McDonald, Rogers, W. Matheson and Wedlock.

The proceedings then terminated.
