CANADA'S FEATS AT AMSTERDAM ARE EULOGIZED

The return of Percy Williams to his home city of Vancouver lends interest to the following comments on the Olympic games, both from American sources.

Judge, the United States weekly, has the following editorial:

Safely Out of the Olympics

"The Olympics are over, the team is home and I am glad we are not plunged into war. Just to get the record straight it may be well to summarize a few final facts for those who were obfuscated by the extraordinarily stupid headlines in the American press during the games.

"While we did capture twenty-two first places, we did not win. Figuring all events on the usual basis of ten points for first place, five points for second and so on down to sixth place, the United States was in second place. The old war-torn Germany was first.

"The prediction that a nation blessed with prohibition would outdo the wickered people, who literally live on wine and beer, didn't work out at all.

"Our inferiority is ascribed to guzzling ice cream, hoofing it to jazz, riding in automobiles, and generally to living in soft luxury. Our trainer said there were getting to be too many college boy cut-ups on the team, crazy for publicity but quite incapable of taking training seriously.

"Nobody said that maybe our trouble was taking the whole thing too seriously. Only one or two happened to think of the bare possibility that maybe we just weren't fast enough. One of these was Jack Byler who said, 'We in the United States have swelled heads. We think we are the best but it has been proved that we are not the best. We are one nation and there are fifty other nations in the world.'

"Considering the beneficial effect of such self-criticisms, if they will only spread, one might wish that the Olympics were held every week or so. But considering the amount of bad feeling displayed at Amsterdam it is probably just as well for the world peace that there won't be another meeting until 1932."

Mark Kelly, sporting writer of the Los Angeles Examiner, pays this tribute to Canada:

"We are an outstanding nation in our achievements. But we are not a nation of supermen. This country of Canada, for instance, produces some mighty fine athletes."

Hail Hornsby As Greatest Hitter Known

Rogers Hornsby is heading toward another batting championship in the National League and he probably will lead the league with a mark of better than 350.

This is not news, perhaps, if it is an item of news only when a man bites a dog, but it seems at least to be a fitting subject for a story.

And the subject, in the language of the day, might be—"What a Man!"

Little Freddie Lindstrom, the very good third baseman of the New York Giants, was being congratulated recently on a batting average of .350.

He refused to take a bow.

"I'm lucky this year," he said. "Anyone, with the exception of Hornsby, who hits .350 is having a lot of luck. Hornsby isn't lucky. He's in a class by himself. The greatest right-hand hitter of all times."

HERE AND THERE

Jack Delaney's Re-entry Not Auspicious

Although Jack Delaney, Canadian light heavyweight, won his bout with Nando Tassi in Brooklyn last night in the eleventh round by a technical knockout, he did not convince his admirers that he has regained anything like his former form. Delaney was a terrific puncher when he was battling his way to the championship. Tassi, a rugged fellow without a good defense, was a mark for the Canadian, but the latter's blows did not carry their erstwhile crushing power. Last night's winner is now in his twenty-ninth year, and will have difficulty in getting back upon the pedestal he once occupied.

But They Are Quite Different Athletics

Peterboro's Examiner editorial: There are lean years in professional baseball as in other commercial enterprises. Much has been printed in regard to the record-breaking attendance at the doubleheader in New York a week ago Sunday, when 85,000 people, much the largest crowd in the history of baseball, saw New York and Philadelphia in action. Few people recall the fact that only twelve years ago the same two teams, playing a regular American League game, had the smallest crowd in the annals of professional ball. This game was played on Sept. 15, 1916, at Shibe Park, Philadelphia, and the paid admissions on that occasion actually numbered only 21,000. As a matter of fact, more hits were made by the Huggen and Athletics that day than there were people in the stands. The uncertainty of baseball as a business enterprise was surely never more clearly illustrated than by a comparison between these two records. Certainly any one who would have ventured to tell the owners of the Huggen and Athletics back on that dismal September day that twelve years from then 85,000 people would pay to see these clubs play on one afternoon would have been turned over to the police for an investigation into his mental condition.

Help For Montserrat

(Special to The Guardian)
MONCTON, Sept. 21.—Sixteen tons of foodstuffs for the storm-tossed people of the British West India Islands of Montserrat were placed aboard the Canadian Volunteer of the Canadian National Steamships sailing from Halifax this morning, the Canadian National having issued instructions immediately conditions in the British Isles became known that all relief supplies would be carried South on the boats of the Canadian National Steamship Company free of charge.

The supplies are being shipped by the Canadian Red Cross Society through the Halifax Representative of the Nova Scotia Division. The principal items in the foodstuffs were dried and pickled fish, corn meal and flour. Montserrat is one of the most attractive of the British Islands of the Caribbean, it has an area of about thirty two square miles and a population of twelve thousand in rather handy fashion over a pretty island. It is one of the Leeward group with headquarters of the government on the island of Antigua and therefore comes within the Canadian West Indies trade treaty.

The message received at Halifax two or three days ago was to the effect that there were eighty thousand people homeless as the result of the hurricane which recently swept that part of the south and an appalling loss of life and property. The Canadian National Railways immediately responded by placing all possible shipping facilities at the disposal of those who desired to send supplies.

Wins World's Tennis Title

(Canadian Press)
NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Karel Kozelup, of Checho-Slovakia, professional tennis champion of Europe, won the world title today by defeating Vincent Richards, American pro king, for the third straight time. The scores went 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. The title went to Kozelup when today's victory coupled with two straight conquests on European courts, gave him three wins.

Bob Seymour Cuts Maine Track Mark

FARMINGTON, Me., Sept. 23.—Bob Seymour, 2:05 1-2, pacing gelding, owned by W. H. Bird, of River, Mass., broke the track record for the second time this week when he stepped in a 2:07 3-4 in the free-for-all, the feature of the closing day of the Franklin county fair which he won in straight heats.

Henry Clukey of Dexter, Me., had the speed of the 2:15 class with Dagastan. The 2:27 class for Franklin county horses was raced in two divisions, both being won by F. C. Colburn of Farmington, with Maxine Earl and Jocke F.

The summary:

Boicker Wins Marathon

(Canadian Press)
HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 22.—Clifford Bricker, Canada's best marathoner, won the third annual Olympic club marathon here today in a rather handy fashion over a field of eighteen runners, which included Clarence DeMar, five time winner of the Boston marathon. Bricker never relinquished the lead from the start and completed the distance of 26 miles 258 yards in the good time of 2 hours and 44 minutes 24 2-5 seconds. When Bricker entered the Stadium, where he was ten minutes in front of DeMar.

Turkey's Ghost

KAUNAS, September, 21.—Do turkeys have ghosts? This engaging question has excited the entire city of Kaunas, especially the diplomatic colony, who deny such a possibility.

The Lithuanian population, who are excitedly discussing the drama which occurred in the garden of the British Consulate here.

Leonard Parrish, the British Consul, is a chicken fancier and keeps a small flock of white Leghorns. The Consul thinks there is something entrancing in a flock of white chickens moving over a bright green lawn.

Many others in the diplomatic colony are of the same opinion, for a walk through the park which is appointed to watch the chickens proves a pleasant recreation after an ordinary day in Kaunas where, quoting the lines of a Lithuanian poet, "The pigs meander down the street, safe because they're Kosher meat."

But Mr. Parrish had a turkey, and when his son arrived from England for a visit the turkey suffered the fate of the fatted calf.

From the kitchen where the cook was preparing the turkey for the loved, came a series of shrieks which startled the neighborhood.

The agitated Lithuanian cook continued to shriek and pointed through the window. There on the lawn was striding about a white turkey.

Mr. Parrish, to calm the cook, went into the garden and led a cock and fastened it to a tree. Inquiries among the neighbors, and even advertisements in the papers, failed to find the owner.

The cook will have nothing to do with the turkey which is getting appetizingly plump through the ministrations of Mr. Parrish's family. The cook claims that the turkey is the ghost of the one she killed. The population supports her claim.

Good Racing at Sackville

SACKVILLE, Sept. 21.—There was a big crowd on hand at the exhibition grounds this afternoon to witness the horse races run in connection with the annual fair. The racing was the best seen here in years and although there were only two classes, the 2:40 and the 2:24, both were hotly contested and furnished many thrills in addition to close finishes which proved intensely interesting to the spectators. There was very little scoring and starter H. J. Allen, of Upper Cape, is to be complimented on the fine manner in which he handled the horsemanship.

Golden Peter, the promising gelding owned by Whit. Horsman, of Moncton, carried off the blue ribbon in the 2:40 class, while Just Tramp, a former Moncton owned horse, now belonging to Ben LeBlanc, of Memramcook, took the 2:24 in three straight, although the other entries made him step some in each heat.

Following are the classes in detail.

2:40 Class

Golden Peter, White Horsman, Moncton (Horsman) 4 1 1 1
Marjorie S. Abbey Hebert, Shediac (Rockford) 1 2 3 3

CAN HIT THE BALL

Hornsby is a personality about which there are no mediums. You either think well of him or have a violent dislike for him. He has an air of cool-blooded independence about him that gives no ground. No, not any.

But, above all, it will have to be handed to him that he can hit the ball. He has been hitting consistently and regularly since 1916, when he joined the 300 class, and has never had a slump in his career average for his thirteen years in the major leagues is .350. And that simply can't be luck.

Not including the current season, Hornsby has been the champion batter of the National League six times. Ty Cobb was the champion batter in the American League twelve times. But giving Ty Cobb due credit, Hornsby got his hits with the bat and not with his legs.

INJURY WAS HANDICAP

His worst year in recent years was in 1926, when, saddled with the management of a team that he drove into a world's championship and handicapped with an injured back that would have forced a less-courageous player to the bench, he batted a poor .217. His best year was in 1924 when he clubbed .424.

His record since 1915, shown in the following table, tells the story:

1915—St. Louis	246
1916—St. Louis	313
1917—St. Louis	327
1918—St. Louis	218
1919—St. Louis	281
*1920—St. Louis	370
*1921—St. Louis	397
*1922—St. Louis	401
*1923—St. Louis	394
*1924—St. Louis	424
*1925—St. Louis	403
1926—St. Louis	317
1927—New York	361

*Champion.

Stan Raymore, writing in the Toronto Star, carries a tribute to Bobby Kerr, as the greatest of any Canadian athlete. Raymore writes as follows:

"In view of the recent presence in the city of Percy Williams, the record of Bobby Kerr is worthy of attention. Bobby Kerr's record is possibly the greatest of any Canadian athlete."

Bobby Kerr ran his first race in open competition in 1902, and his last at Stamford Bridge, London, England, in 1919. During these seventeen years he competed in over 400 races and won over 350 prizes.

May Have Another Team Says Runner

MONTEAL, Sept. 23.—With the influx today of hockey leaders assembled here for the National Hockey League board meeting to be held tomorrow, a report became current that a Toronto syndicate providing proper arrangements could be made, ready to take over the Pittsburgh franchise and players and operate as a second team in Toronto. Before such a move could be made the consent of the Maple Leafs, the N. H. L. club at present operating the Toronto territory, would have to be obtained.

In connection with the Pittsburgh club and its uncertain affairs, there was also a suggestion thrown out to Boston and operated as a second club in the Hub, one of the strongest hockey centres in the N. H. L. circuit where an immense new rink will be available this year.

Punches Nemis' Shoulder Out

SYDNEY, Sept. 23.—Johnny Nemis fought the last three rounds of his battle with McKenna with his right shoulder partly disabled, it became known here tonight. A terrific blow from McKenna in the seventh frame put the shoulder partly out of joint, accounting for Nemis' failure to take advantage of several chin openings afforded by McKenna, a fact which puzzled Waterford fans at the time.

After the fight Johnny was too far gone to realize what was wrong with him, but a few hours later Dr. D. J. Hartigan was called, discovered the trouble and pulled the arm back into place. The Nemis brothers kept the incident dark because they feared any mention of it would be taken as an attempt at an alibi, but the news leaked out tonight. Strange to say, Nemis, hitherto an unpopular fighter, has suddenly sprung into high esteem throughout the colliery districts on account of the way he fought his losing battle with Jack.
