BLIND AND DEAF LEARNS TYPEWRITER

Blind and deaf, Miss Maude Wickliff, of Pataskala, is in many respects a Helen Keller. Self-educated largely, she enjoys many of life's pleasures and comforts. Her disposition is winning.

As a tribute from friends, a post card shower was arranged in her honor for her thirty-first birthday.

One of her accomplishments is ability to operate a typewriter. Recently upon being asked to give a sketch of herself, she wrote the following on her machine:

"Having been asked for a little sketch of my life, I now write down a few facts about myself and what I have accomplished, which, though it seems very little in comparison to what other deaf-blind have done and are doing, has at least brought comforting rays of sunshine into my heart, enabling me to bear my sad lot with some degree of cheerfulness.

I was born in Licking county, Ohio, on the 5th of July, 1880. My mother died when I was little more than two years old, leaving me in the care of her parents, and especially of her only sister, to whom I owe both a mother's care and a mother's love. I was never healthy and strong; and for this reason and because my sight was always defective I never attended school. However I was taught to read at a very early age, and I remember that I made quick work of my first reader.

"I was very fond of reading from the start, but I must confess that I cared little for study. Nor was study ever forced upon me. As a child I was thought to be good at reciting, and I frequently appeared at public gatherings where speaking was in order. I also gave a few entertainments myself, assisted by my brother. My one ambition then was to make the stage the scene of my life work.

"But all my hopes of such a career were shattered at the age of nine, I suddenly lost my hearing, which had been perfect up to that time.

"I need not say how sad and lonely my life was after that. But I did enjoy one blessing. My sight was for some years much improved, so that I could keep myself company a good part of the time by reading. Gradually, however, my sight also failed. Then I learned to read by touch, that was nearly ten years ago; I first learned to read line letter; later to read and write the New York point system. Alphabets and writing materials were furnished by the State School for the blind and friends helped me. I am particularly grateful to the late Mr. A. H. Bruce, a blind gentleman, for the practical assistance and kindly encouragement he gave me at that time. I never had the pleasure of meeting him personally, nor have I ever visited the State School for the blind.

"In 1904 I learned the English Braille system, being taught by a deaf blind lady of Chicago, Ill. As soon as I could get a Braille slate I learned to write this system. I read largely in Braille, too, but do not regret it, simply because I have a profound dislike for the type.

"With a writing board and lead pencil I can write a little script, but not a good, legible hand by any means. I correspond a good deal in the embossed types, having made friends with several interesting blind people in different States and in Canada.
