Safe Fat Reduction

Reduce, reduce, reduce, is the slogan of all fat people. Get thin, be slim, is the cry of society and fashion. The overfat wring their hands in mortification and helplessness; revolting at nauseating drugs, afraid of violent exercise, dreading the unwelcome and unsatisfying diet, until they hit upon the harmless Marmola Tablets which quickly and safely reduce weight at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week without any change in the mode of life. The ideal figure is soon obtained, with a smoother skin and a better appetite and health improved. Marmola Tablets contain all the ingredients which made the Marmola Prescription famous.

It behooves you to learn the satisfactory, beneficial effects of this great, safe fat reducer by giving to your druggist the reasonable price, one dollar, for a good size box or sending a like amount to the Marmola Co., 95 Garfield Building, Detroit, Mich., with a request that they mail to you a full box of Marmola Prescription Tablets.

JUST A GIRL

BY JANE PHELPS

A WONDERFUL EVENING.

Chapter 144.

I felt at times that I would like to harness the days and hours so that they would not pass so swiftly. Oh, why didn't I say a year instead of six months? A year would have been none too long to decide what I wanted to do all the rest of my life!

I was very nearly home when the sound of my name caused me to turn. Mr. Claxton, in his roadster, was beside the curb.

"Jump in and we'll take a ride—it is early for dinner. Or will you dine with me?"

"I'll take a ride anyway," I answered joyfully. I felt a bit reckless, I was so exasperated with myself because of my indecision.

I looked at the man beside me. And I saw the kind of a man that a woman would love—almost any woman. A lean, capable looking man, with kind eyes and a laughing mouth.

"I must get back at a little after six. Mother will be waiting dinner for me."

"You shall do exactly as you wish, but—if you will dine with me, I will telephone your Mother."

"All right— I will," I yielded.

He stopped his car at a corner drug store and telephoned. Then he drove on. We talked easily. For the first time I absolutely forgot that he was my employer—that I worked in his office.

We had dinner at a quaint little place in the suburbs—just a simple dinner, but I thought food never had tasted so good. I laughed because of my appetite, and like all young things laughed for no reason at all save that I was happy.

There was dancing, and Mr. Claxton asked me to dance.

"I haven't danced in so long I am afraid I shall be very awkard," I told him.

"I'll risk it."

He danced wonderfully, and after a moment all my old love for it came back with a rush, and I knew that I danced as well as I ever did. I was glad. I wanted to do things well that night. I felt ridiculously young and terribly happy, and chatted and laughed just as I had used to with the boys at home.

It was 11 o'clock when we started home.

"It won't hurt you—tomorrow is Saturday and we won't need you. Sleep late," he said kindly, yet with the little masterful way I knew so well.

I climbed the stairs lightly. Quietly I went in. But Mother was waiting. I had hoped she would go to bed.

"Did you have a good time, Dear?" she asked.

"Wonderful! I did enjoy myself so!" Then I told her where we went, that we danced, and all about my lovely evening.

"That is the sort of good times you should have often. Your eyes shine like stars, and you look five years younger."

"Is that all? I feel a thousand years younger. I feel like a child. And, Mother dear, I am not to go down tomorrow. So we can all sleep late—that is, if Aunt will let us." It was quite a joke that Aunt Susan rose with the chickens, although she had left them at home.

"I'll tell her to let you sleep."

"You, too, Mother. You aren't used to late hours nowadays, you know. I feel guilty that you stayed up for me."

"You needn't. I enjoyed thinking you were having a good time, although it seemed strange to have you go without a chaperon."

"The days of a chaperon have gone from my life forever. And, Mother, I don't really think they are necessary except for very young girls, even where it is possible to have them."

Mother made no reply. I knew she didn't agree with me. But she kissed me fondly before I had left her, and told me once more she was glad I had had a good time.

In my room, lying on the bureau, was a letter from Kenneth Lawrence. Mother had forgotten to mention it.

"I won't open in until morning," I said as I took it up. "I'll just go to sleep thinking what a nice time I have had with—Frank."

To be continued.

Tell The World This Women Says

THAT LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND MADE ME A WELL WOMAN

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I suffered with female troubles for years, was sick most of the time, was not able to do my own housework, and I could not get help from doctors. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the newspapers, and took six bottles, and am a well woman. You can use my name to tell the world the good your medicine has done me as I shall praise it always."—Mrs. A. L. DEVINE, 647 St. Paul Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Women who suffer from any form of weakness, as indicated by displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, backache, headaches, nervousness or "the blues," should do as Mrs. DeVine did, and give Lydia E. Pinham's Vegetable Compound a thorough trial.

For over forty years this famous remedy, which contains the curative, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, has been correcting just such ailments. If you have mysterious complications write for advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

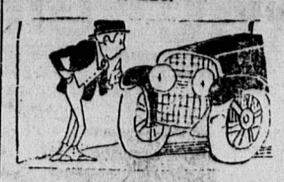
A BALKY GENERATOR.

V writes: My generator will not charge the battery at any engine speed. Have put in new brushes and tightened the terminals, but the trouble still remains. How can it be remedied?

Answer: The generator may not be working or the current may not flow, because the relay does not connect it to circuit or there may be a poor connection. To see if the generator is active, connect one terminal of a lamp bulb to its binding post and the other to the frame. If the lamp burns when the engine is run, the generator generates. If not, the brushes do not make good communitator contact (try pressing down on them slightly) or the field coils or armature is burned out—more likely the former, from running the generator disconnected from the battery. In case the generator seems all right, examine the relay to see if the contacts come together properly, when the engine gets up to speed. If not, and cleaning them does no good, it should be attended to at a service station. Are you sure that the ammeter indicates properly? Its needle may be stuck and charging may be taking place without its being shown.

Questions of general interest to motorists will be answered in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address Albert L. Clough, caer of our office.

GEARS NOISY IN CLIMBING HILLS.



A. A. L. writes: When I first had my car it ran quietly, but now, when going up a hill, it makes a groaning or growling noise. Can you tell me the cause of this and the remedy?

Answer: This is probably gear noise, produced by lack of lubrication of the gear teeth or by the gears being out of correct mesh. Noise arising from this cause is not very noticeable when a car is running light, but when the gear-teeth are under heavy pressure, as when climbing a hill, it is very pronounced. If there is plenty of oil or grease in your transmisison-case, rear-axle housing and universal-joints, we thing that you will find the noise to be due to an incorrect adjustment between the bevel-pinion and ring gear in the rear axle. Either too deep or too shallow meshing of these gear teeth wil make them noisy and, of course, there is a possibility of the teeth having been injured. Your instruction book will inform you how to make the required adjustment.

"I want," she began impressively, "to talk to you about them eggs I had last week. They weren't anything like as fresh as they might have been." "That's strange," replied the grocer, who thought himself something of a wit. "We always have an almanac hanging up in the chicken run to keep the hens up to date." "Oh!" came the retort, with crushing emphasis. "Then all I have to say is that somebody with brains about as addled as them eggs has been misleadin' the hens with last year's calendar. Just you hang up a 1920 card and maybe them chickens 'ull start working overtime to catch up to it!"
