NO WORD YET FROM VATICAN ON WAR.

ON THE ITALIAN FRONTIER, via Chiasso, May 27.—Pope Benedict thus far has made no pronouncement with regard to Italy's entry into the war, though it is reported that a Papal document will be issued shortly. The Osservatore Romano, the organ of the Vatican, has remained silent concerning the opening of hostilities, having only published a decree of the congregation of rites permitting military chaplains to recite in their masses the prayer "In Time of War." Thirty portable altars have been sent to the front for use in the military camps.
As in former time the Vatican will have an absolutely independent postal and telegraphic services, and couriers from the Papal government will be allowed to pass freely through Italy without the slightest interference on the part of the Italian government. The ambassadors accredited to the Vatican, and those to the Quirinal, will be able to leave Rome or Italy at their pleasure.

WITCHCRAFT IN NOVA SCOTIA.

The Grand Jury on the 26th inst., sitting in Guysboro County, Nova Scotia, had before them a bill charging Fanny Dismal with witchcraft. They ignored the bill, but the woman was brought before Chief Justice Graham, who previous to discharging her sought to obtain a promise from her that she would abandon her Salem practices. Fanny refused. The Halifax Chronicle reports the proceedings in these words:—
It was a particular surprise to the public that the Grand Jury found no bill in the witchcraft case. His Lordship afterwards had the accused, Fanny Dismal, brought before him and strongly reprimanded her for the practices, which the evidence in the lower court showed she had been using. His Lordship endeavoured to extract a promise from Fanny that she would discontinue these practices with the Bible and key, but Fanny refused to commit herself to any such agreement, and after receiving her discharge went joy riding by way of a celebration.

APPEAL FOR THE ISLAND PATRIOTIC FUND

The people of Prince Edward Island have every reason to be proud of the generous response to the appeal for funds to provide a Field Kitchen and Ambulance to represent the Island. Sufficient subscriptions have been received for the purpose and still others are coming in. The intention of the Guardian to withdraw the appeal on Saturday, but yesterday an urgent request was made to the Guardian by a number of ladies to take up the appeal by Captain Walker for financial aid in the Prince Edward Island ward in the Field Hospital at Le Touquet, France. In the letter, which was addressed to Rev. Dr. Fullerton, and which the Guardian published yesterday, Captain Walker, of Charlottetown, and who is now Hospital Quartermaster at Le Touquet said:—
Personally I have done the best I have been able for Prince Edward Island Ward in the way of procuring everything possible to add to its efficiency. I regret however that those at home have not found a way open through a few dollars to the relief of the Island. The over-sight I am sure has not been intentional for I know in these strenuous times all have so many cares to occupy their thoughts both at home and abroad. Even in the midst of them, though I feel that they have not forgotten us and are doing noble work, which we are daily carrying out, here at the seat of hostilities.
At the present time the outlook for an early termination of the war is not a very favorable one. We have already had a number of our own boys of the First Contingent in the Hospital since the gallant action in which they made their famous dash, in recovering the guns and trenches from the enemy at Ypres.
In our corps, which is now 200 strong, we have but three Islanders, Nursing Sister McLean, of Souris, Willie Hughes, Quartermaster-Sergeant and myself. Both the former are enjoying the best of health.

FROM FRANCE

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Harvey Toombs, Charlottetown, from her brother, Mr. Stephen F. Robinson, who is now at the front with the Canadian contingent:—
Front, April 29th, 1915.
My Dear Sister,—Since I decided to write this letter things have become a little uncomfortable. It is now 11:30 p.m. and two of us are standing in a dug-out. The evening has been very quiet, but now the shells are bursting very close. Our dug-out is shrapnel-proof, but nothing will save us if a "Jack Johnson" hits it. They will dig a hole ten feet deep, so if one gets stuck in it he will be safe from shell fire. The shells which are similar to our 4.7s.
The past week has been a bad one, since 4:30 p.m. on April 22nd until now. But I believe the enemy is well spent and it will only be a short while before we shall be advancing. Below are a few remarks on the week's fighting, which is no doubt the longest battle that has been fought on this frontier:—
Thursday, April 22nd, 4:30 p.m. The enemy who had massed an enormous number of troops in this district started a heavy artillery bombardment all along the line, and at the same time poured poisonous gases into the lines of the French troops. The Canadian Division, which was in front of about five and one half miles. The Germans poured in and were first stopped by the 10th Battalion, who were called up and met them at 7 p.m., driving them back. Before two a.m. on April 23rd the whole Canadian Division was in the fight, driving the Germans back and holding them in places. At four p.m. on the 23rd, they had to face the gases and in a couple of places had to retire to keep a straight line, and for other reasons, which you will hear later.
On the night of the 24th we were reinforced by the Irish Fusiliers, the Northumberland Fusiliers, and the Canadians, who succeeded in driving the enemy back to almost their original position.
On the night of the 25th our men were taken out of the trenches, and an average over sixty per cent, were among the casualties.
On April 26th at 1:30 p.m. I met the Third Brigade going back to the trenches, about six hundred strong, out of over five thousand. They were a hard-looking lot, clothes covered with blood and mud, unshaven, but looking fit. The 2nd and 3rd Brigades also went in on the same night and on the night of the 27th all came out again.
On the morning of the 28th reinforcements arrived from England and on the same night the First Brigade were out as a work party for us, connecting up an advance line of trenches,

SIR CHARLES HIBBARD TUPPER'S SONS ALL IN ACTIVE SERVICE ONE CRITICALLY WOUNDED

Mounted Rifles now preparing. My other son is in the Mounted Police and volunteered at the outset and has not yet been allowed to leave. "In all this time of stress, and when the blows are coming heavily, my comfort and strength is in the Highland character of my dear wife. I never thought so highly of her until this awful war came upon us. Not a word to discourage her or her darlings going to the front, and not a word of regret now that they have gone, and yet her silent agony is inexpressible and how widespread is the suffering and how widespread the spirit throughout not only Canada, but the Empire. God send us victory at last!"
If the mothers and fathers all had the spirit manifested by the above sacrifice there would be no talk of conscription.

TO REMAIN ANOTHER YEAR IN ARCTIC.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Donald MacMillan, the explorer, who was sent to the Arctic two years ago by scientific societies of this city, will spend another year in the Far North. He sent word in a despatch to the Tribune, through the American Consul-General in Copenhagen, Denmark, who forwarded the message to-day:—
"I have decided to remain a third year in the Arctic to complete my work among the Smith Sound Eskimos," the despatch read. "I am getting some very important results and much that is in variance with which we have learned in regard to these people. I shall return by way of Copenhagen in 1916. All other members of the expedition will return to America this summer. All is well."
