Conservative Candidates In Splendid Form At Clifton, Where the Campaign Issues Of New Zealand Butter And Washington-Made Potato Tariffs Were Convincingly Handled By Messrs. Myers And McLure.

The last political meeting of the series in the Queen's County Campaign was held last night at Clifton. The Conservative candidates, as at other meetings, were accorded a splendid reception and scored particularly on issues relevant to New Zealand butter and potato tariffs under the Dunning budget.

The hall was filled to capacity, many being unable to secure access. Mr. H. P. Found capably presided. Hon. John H. Myers, the first speaker, launched into a fighting address in criticism of the Dunning countervailing duties.

"Canada, through the Mackenzie King Government", he said "gave away her right to administer her tariffs and they have passed this right for the time being at least to the United States to make their tariff laws. That is the situation."

Mr. Myers cited the fact that barred meat has been placed on the free list under the British Preference. "I cannot see where they served the Canadian farmer by putting that on the free list," he declared amid applause.

July 11, 1930.
Miss Laura Graham,
Sea View, P. E. I.
Dear Miss Graham
I went to see Mr. Hyndman, the Chief Engineer, to discuss the matter we were talking to me about, with him. He did not hold out much encouragement for them ever completing the harbor, but gave notice of your claim and if they proceed further and do damage we can always present it.

If there is anything further you require me to do, let me know and I shall be glad to attend to it.

Yours Faithfully
(Sgd) GEORGE J. TWEEDY

"In my opinion," Mr. Myers continued, "the proposition was highly feasible and it is a shame to mislead the people. (Applause.) If Mr. McLure and I are given a chance, you will never get a letter like that: 'I can assure you of that' (Increased Applause.)

Mr. Myers in ten minutes rebuttal speech at the close dealt convincingly with the sudden volte face of the King Government toward British preference; also soldiers pensions, old age pensions, the Government's fiasco with regard to subsidized fish, collecting service and other matters brought up during the debate.

MR. MCLURE'S ADDRESS

Responding to enthusiastic applause, Mr. W. Chester S. McLure delivered one of the best speeches of the campaign.

"On every platform time after time," he said, "we have challenged our opponents to find out whether they had a policy, whether they had a platform, or a program, as it is sometimes called, either for the present or for the future; if they ever had any idea of being returned to power. We have never had any definite answer to that question. But they have given us different statements every night with regard to what their policy really was. At one time they would tell us that their policy was free trade. At another time they would tell us that it was free trade as in England; again they tell us that they believe in a low tariff. Another night they would tell us that their policy was one of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. And the other night they told us that their policy was intra Empire trade."

Mr. McLure drew loud applause in his summing up of the countervailing duties.

"Countervailing duties," he said, "simply means that we have given our putting on tariffs of our own leaving ourselves at the mercy of the United States."

"That is one thing we condemn the Government for—for not having a stable tariff policy," he declared.

Mr. McLure scored over Mr. Jenkins' reference to oleomargarine during the Conservative regime when he pointed out that Mr. Jenkins very probably sold it over his own counter at the time. "Why blame the Conservative Government for a war measure?" he asked amid applause.

The Conservative candidate dealt very fully and convincingly with the New Zealand butter issue. He then

THE POTATO SITUATION

Mr. Myers referred also to the countervailing duties on potatoes. "The part I cannot understand" he said, "is: We had a 35 cent Canadian tariff: Why didn't they leave it at that so that when their tariff, if they saw fit to drop it down, could not go below the 35 cent level? We have put potatoes on the free list. There may not be any danger in that under ordinary conditions, but there are certain conditions that would militate against our interests. Suppose that this year the United States had a large increase. The last crop report shows that there is a six per cent increase generally throughout the States and there is a 22 per cent increase over average in the Maine crop. Suppose the State of Maine had a very large surplus crop of potatoes that they could not dispose of in their own country, and Canada only had enough to supply their own market. There is nothing to prevent them putting their duty down and for a time swamp the Canadian market with American potatoes. You understand that Canadian duties are fixed by Parliament. It is not us with the United States. They can change their tariff from time to time to suit the occasion.

We are told that if they have a big crop of potatoes in the United States, why would they want to lower their tariff and let other competitors work out. If they put potatoes on the free list for certain periods of the year they would be in a position to flood our markets. That is the position."

Mr. Myers dealt trenchantly with the issues of New Zealand butter and the federal highway scheme proposed by Hon. R. B. Bennett.

SIGNIFICANT LETTER

Mr. Myers referred to the fact that just before the election the Government placed a dredge at Sea View. The previous Conservative Government had been endeavoring to provide a boat harbor there. But how sincere was the present government? Mr. Myers proceeded to read the following letter:

Watches Half Brother Drown

(Special to The Guardian)
ADRIAN, N. Y., July 21—Francis Collins, 8, watched his half brother, William Brush, drown in the river near here yesterday. Francis said he thought the older boy was blowing bubbles to the surface for his amusement until finally the bubbles stopped rising. The body was recovered.

Thirty Injured In Car Panic

(Special to The Guardian)
NEW YORK, July 21—Thirty passengers were injured in a panic, one seriously, when a fuse blew out in a train standing at the Fulton Street elevated line, late last night. The cars were plunged in darkness and smoke drifted through the passengers clamored for the doors to be opened, and when this was done, rush in wild disorder for the exits. Two fire companies were summoned and firemen aided the escape of those trapped on the platform. The passengers trampled, pushed, and kicked each other in their mad scramble to get out.

Two Killed In Auto Accident

(Canadian Press)
OHIO, July 21—Two persons were seriously injured, when two automobiles collided near here over the week end. The dead are: Rene Blackburn, 15 and Emile Jarjour, 50 of Kenogami, Que. The injured were in the Hotel Dieu Hospital here today. Attending physicians said they were in a critical condition and may not recover. All were residents of Grande Bale and Kenogami.

"The Big Show Must Go On"

(Canadian Press)
MONCTON, N. B., July 21—"The show must go on." Four of the members of the crew are in the morgue and a score in the hospitals; gayly decorated circus wagons are nothing but wrecks, equipment of all sorts is destroyed, but Al G. Barnes Circus, which yesterday was involved in one of the worst railway accidents in the history of the Maritimes, will carry on and present as performance as advertised here tomorrow evening. The unconquerable spirit of the Circus has triumphed over death and disaster and while canvasmen mourn for their dead "buddies" and the list of performers will be lessened by the number in hospitals, the show will carry on. Only one day's performance will be omitted.

SIX PERSONS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Sir Edward Ward And Accident.

(Special to The Guardian)
LONDON, July 21—Six persons, including Sir Edward Ward and Lady Ednam, daughter-in-law of the Earl of Dudley, were killed this afternoon, when a Junkers airplane of the Walcott Air Lines, Limited, crashed at Meopham, four miles south of Gravesend. All of the occupants of the plane perished with the pilot, Col. Henderson. They were believed to be all well known society people.

The machine, which crashed at 3 p. m. into an orchard close to the village green, was an "air taxi" operated between Croydon and the fashionable French resort, Letouquet. The machine had left the airfield at Berck, near Letouquet, at 1 p. m. Inquiry at his house developed the information that Sir Edward Ward, one of Britain's conspicuous military figures, formerly Secretary of the

Town Abandoned As People Flock To Hear Bennett

(Special to The Guardian)
SIMCOE, Ont., July 21—The population of this town is about five thousand and nearly that many people crowded into the Armories here this afternoon to hear and cheer Hon. R. B. Bennett at his first meeting of the final week of the campaign. Virtually the entire population abandoned other occupations and took the afternoon off to hear the issues of the election discussed by the Conservative Leader. Long before the meeting was billed to start the crowd was gathered. Hundreds came from the country round about and from adjacent towns, the streets being filled with out of town motor cars.

SPEECH HALTED WITH CHEERS

Refreshed by a week end rest, Mr. Bennett was in excellent form, and the enthusiasm of the audience was in keeping. Time after time he was halted in his speech by waves of cheers. He proclaimed the policies which he promised to put in force the promotion of Canadian prosperity.

His sister, too, Miss Mildred Bennett, received a great ovation when she responded to an invitation to give the opening address. This county of Norfolk produces a tobacco crop worth between five and seven million dollars annually. It has fifteen thousand acres under cultivation to the finest grades of Virginia tobacco. It is claimed it would have three times the acreage if there was a little more protection on tobacco.

The Conservative leader enters the last week of the campaign convinced that the people of Canada have made up their minds to have a change of Government to (give Canada a chance) under the policies he has enunciated. I have never seen such signs of determination to victory for the Conservative Party in the whole of my career, he told his Simcoe audience. He had received telegraph messages today indicating that the sweep of electoral sentiment extended from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In British Columbia, no Liberal seat was in prospect. The Government had held three seats in Alberta in the last Parliament and would not have them in the next. In Saskatchewan the Liberal machine was creaking and trembling and out of gas. Similar reports came from

Big Change In Sentiment In The Prov. Of Quebec

Enormous Conservative Meetings With Great Enthusiasm, While Liberal Speakers Are Severely Heckled—Without Actually Witnessing Meetings, It Is Impossible To Realize The Change.

(Special to The Guardian)

MONTREAL, Que., July 21—In no part of Canada has there been a more remarkable change in sentiment than in Quebec. Enormous Conservative meetings with great enthusiasm, while Liberal speakers are severely heckled, is a marked change from the conditions prevailing in 1921, 1925 and 1926. Without actually witnessing meetings in rural Quebec, it is impossible to realize the change. Liberal speakers, members of the last Parliament, one Senator, J. P. B. Casgrain, one Minister, Hon. Fernand Rinfret and others have tried to revive the old issue of conscription and "soldiers for India," but in the main they have not been well received. No doubt further appeals of this character will be made as the fight nears the end, but it is felt that Quebec will register its opinion on economic issues, and if so then the Conservatives may expect substantial results.

Unfortunately, Premier Taschereau raised the race and religious issues yesterday. A situation has been created through Premier King's newly developed Imperialism, while in Ontario he is appealing as the defender of Britain and urging the British preference in support of Imperialism in Quebec. His supporters do not speak of British preference and denounce Mr. Bennett as the servant of the British and the betrayer of Canada autonomy.

Premier King speaks tonight here and the broadcasting of his speech is confided to the province of Quebec, so it is evident he intends leaving his (Imperial) speeches in Ontario.

The campaign in this Province is devoid of the bitterness of previous contests. In the cities the issues are depressed business and unemployment, while in the country this being a dairy province, butter, decreased farm values and competition in the home market are much discussed. There is also the issue of Old Age Pensions. The Liberal Provincial Government won't accept, the present system and Quebec aged people are looking to Mr. Bennett's proposal for a national system to place them on a parity with the aged people of Ontario and the Western Provinces.

In the six constituencies along the Ottawa River it is conceded Sir George Perley will win easily in Argenteuil, and that the Conservatives have excellent prospects in Wright and Two Mountains. In the eastern townships, Chateau-Guay, Huntingdon and Stanstead look like sure Conservative gains and the prospects in Sherbrooke and Missisquoi-Brome are very bright. Montreal City returned R. S. White; Mount Royal, C. H. Cahon, St. Lawrence-St. George and Leslie G. Bell, St. Antoine at the last election and there is no doubt of their re-election. John Sullivan is expected to redeem Et. Annes and in three other Montreal seats, the Conservatives appear to be waging winning fights. Outside of Montreal, Bagot, Yamaska and Chambly-Vercheres are close fights.

New Zealand Hard Hit In Wool Market

(Special to The Guardian)
WELLINGTON, New Zealand, July 21—New Zealand, like Australia, has been hit a severe blow by the world depression in wool prices. It was revealed today that gross receipts of New Zealand wool sales this year were almost $35,000,000 below last year's yield. Wool forms by far the largest part of New Zealand's exports, the value of the wool exported in 1929 being more than $80,000,000.

Straight Party Fight In Calgary

(Canadian Press)
CALGARY, July 21—Hon. R. B. Bennett will face a straight party fight in Calgary West in the General Elections. In nomination proceedings today the papers of the Conservative leader and C. C. McLaurin, Liberal standard bearer, were the only ones filed.
