A long musical program of a very high order and a short but complete paper on American music comprised the entertainment at the final meeting of the Women's Music Club held on Saturday, May 11th, in the lounge of the Canadian National Hotel. In her paper, "Music in the United States," Mrs. H. S. Henderson traced the development of music from its arrival with the English settlers in Jamestown. These settlers brought with them merry songs, love ditties, ballads and the countryside tunes, but the stern religious atmosphere of the New England colonies did more for the beginnings of American music than did the gay cavaliers. Out of the serious Psalm singing of the Puritans grew the latter day school, the real foundation of modern education in the colonies.

ANNIE PENLOPE, daughter of the late F. W. Hales and Margaret Jenkins, his wife, was born in Charlottetown eighty-one years ago, and spent the greater part of her life in this city. Fifty-three years ago she married Mr. T. C. James, Supt. of the A. A. Telegraph Company, and until a few years ago, she and Mrs. James left the Island to live at home with their daughters, who were well known in Charlottetown for her untiring kindness in time of trouble and her faithfulness in church work in St. Paul's Church in her early days and after her marriage in St. James Church. Many in our city elsewhere have reason to revere her unselfish hospitality and thoughtful care. It is not only her aged husband (89 years old) now confined to bed who will miss her loving companionship. She leaves to mourn, besides her husband, three daughters, Mrs. W. A. MacKay of Schomberg, Ont.; Mrs. R. Lowe of Wembley, Alberta, and Mrs. George Millar of Charlottetown. She was the mother of six children, and is survived by two brothers, F. W. Hales of Minnesota, and Arthur E. Hales of Grand Forks, B.C.

ROTARY CLUB—Yesterday was the King's Jubilee Day at the Charlottetown Rotary Club, and the speaker was Rotarian R. H. Rogers, former Chief Superintendent of Education, who gave an interesting and scholarly address on the King's reign, dealing with some of the outstanding events, including the various crises which he handied successfully with great tact and diplomacy, such as the Irish question both before and after the Great War, the general strike of 1926, the economic crisis in 1929, etc. He pointed out that the British crown has gained in prestige and moral influence while other crowns have been weakened. Our King fills a large place in the life of the government and the affection of the people, while other kings are in exile. The reason for this is that to the British people, the institution of monarchy is the symbol of their unity and is bound up with their most precious heritage, that rich reward of ordered liberty which their fathers won for them. For various reasons the wearers of the crown have exemplified those qualities of courage, steadfastness, humanity, honor and common sense, which mark the national character at its best. Past President, Hon. Dr. W. J. P. MacMillan presided. Rev. Hugh Miller was a guest. A number of patriotic songs were rendered by Mr. Leigh Dingwell, and patriotic choruses by the club.
