IN MEMORIAM

MRS. PETER FERGUSON

There passed peacefully to her eternal reward at her home, 177 St. John's St., Charlottetown, P. E. I., on Feb. 1st, 1927, Mrs. Peter Ferguson, formerly Miss Ramsay of Hamilton in her twenty sixth year. She had been laid aside from the active duties of life for four years and six months, the result of an accident, but she was a patient and kind, always looking to her Master whom she loved, and faithfully served in her health. She was a faithful member of Summerside Presbyterian Church, and her health permitted her to be one of our best workers and givers in the W.M.S. of Summerside and through her efforts as president, it grew in membership and zeal for the Master's work. She will be greatly missed in her home by her aged husband, and her son Hugh John and his wife, and so tenderly and lovingly nursed and cared for through her long tedious illness. She also leaves to mourn their loss, two little grand-children, Waldron and Marion Ferguson, whom she loved. Her funeral was largely attended, friends from far and near came to pay their last respects to one they loved. Rev. Mr. Harrison of Clifton spoke comforting words to the friends, and exhorted all present to live the life, and they would be prepared for death. Mrs. Green assisted by the members of Summerside and New London choirs sang the deceased's favorite hymns, The Lord's My Shepherd, Asleep in Jesus, Interment at Summerside beside her daughter who died several years ago, there to wait the final Resurrection of the just.

IDA M. WEBSTER.

The sad news of the sudden passing away of Miss Ida M. Webster, in the P. E. I. Hospital, Charlottetown, on the 15th, inst., came as a great shock to her many friends. For six years, she was the beloved Deaconess of the First Church Truro, where she did a magnificent work.

She was a graduate of the Missionary and Deaconess Training Home in Toronto, and also a graduate nurse, and a licensed teacher. In all the positions she occupied she endeavored herself to her acquaintances. In the prime of life she was called away, but her influence survives, and her works do follow her.

She is survived by her father, two sisters and two brothers, who mourn the loss of one who was universally loved for her fine Christian qualities and excellent work.

The funeral which took place at her home in Marie, on the 18th, was largely attended, and the service at the house, was conducted by Rev. J. M. McLeod and Rev. John Mutch, Truro, assisted by the Rev. Ewen MacDougall, Charlottetown.

Representatives were present from Truro, who spoke in the highest terms of her work in the congregation. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Midgell, beside her mother who predeceased her about a year and a half ago.

Mr. Mutch conducted the service at the grave, in the presence of a large number of sympathizing friends.

A memorial service was held on Sunday (20th) in Truro, and in the congregation of St. Peter's Bay, when reference was made to Miss Webster's fine Christian character and successful labors.

Much sympathy is felt for the family in their sore bereavement. There were many floral tributes from friends and societies.

"She hath done what she could."

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR THE LATE MISS IDA M. WEBSTER

First United Church Truro Sunday March 20 - A Crowded Auditorium of Sympathizing People.

As she went into First United Church, Sunday morning, for the Memorial Service in honor of the late Miss Ida M. Webster, Deaconess of that church for the past six years, his eye was caught by the pulpit, fittingly draped in black and before the altar stood on the Communion Table, a vase of Easter Lilies, emblem of the victory over death. People gathered by hundreds, until the galleries were well filled and chairs had to be brought into the auditorium. The presence of so many numbers was one of the evidences of the hold which Miss Webster had won on the affections and esteem of the people, not only of First Church but of Truro. Some seventy Canadian Girls in Training, of whom Miss Webster had been the leader, marched in and occupied the front pews.

After the call to worship and the invocation, the congregation sang "O God our help in ages past." This was followed by the responsive reading of the 91st Psalm, in the prayer books were given for the privilege of First Church and Truro have been vouchsafed in the presence and work of Miss Webster.

The minister then read the passage in Colossians, from which Miss Webster had addressed the congregation here last Sunday evening in Truro—Col. 1:3-12.

The choir sang, "Sunset and Evening Star," and their conduct of the service of praise throughout was most impressive.

After the announcement and offering the congregation sang, "For all the saints." This was followed by the sermon in which the minister, Rev. John Mutch, took the story of Dorcas as his text. He pointed out that Miss Webster had been a veritable Dorcas, and told little of her work among the poor. In regard to this, he said, he did not put it first. Her greatest contribution had been spiritual rather than material benefits. He illustrated by her work among the

Joe, The Waif Is Prettily Staged

The Grand River Dramatic Club under the direction of Mr. Lenus McDonald, presented the six act comedy drama "Joe the Waif" in Maple Leaf hall, Grand River, on Thursday March 17th, 1927. A capacity house greeted the players and accorded them unstinted applause. The play throughout was crowded with tense situations relieved by side-splitting comedy which kept the large audience in the best of humor. Time and again the players were obliged to interrupt their parts while the crowd expressed their hilarious approval.

Miss Kathleen Fraught in the title role proved herself an actress of exceptional ability and captivated the audience with her winning impersonation of the waif.

Mrs. Stella Roberts, the intriguing and disdainful wife of Emmar Roberts was most admirably portrayed by Miss Edna Murphy, whose histrionic talent was evident throughout the play.

Patsy, the colored maid, who with Adonias (Mr. Albert McDonald) also colored, provided the most of the humour of the play, was taken by Mr. Willard McLellan. Their witty remarks and ludicrous actions brought forth rounds of applause each time they appeared.

Emmanuel Roberts, the kindly old uncle was skilfully acted by Mr. Carl McDonald, who sustained his reputation as an actor of unusual ability.

Harry Metcalf, the man who holds the secret which eventually brings wealth and happiness to Joe was cleverly played by Mr. Celestino McLellan.

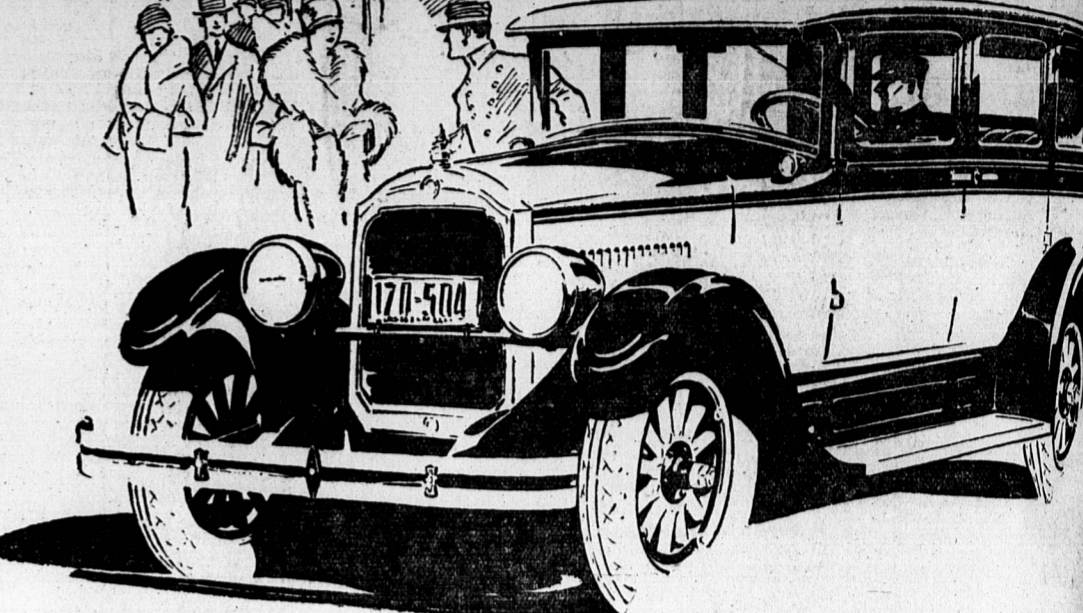

Rudolph Ferguson, the sporty good-for-nothing son of Mrs. Roberts was admirably taken by Mr. Harold McIntyre, while the arm of the law was fittingly upheld by Mr. Emmet Fraught.

Too much praise cannot be given this troupe of young players, most of them in their teens, for the admirable manner in which they presented the play. Most of them had never before braved the footlights and yet they had the poise and manner of professionals, while their costumes left nothing to be desired.

Now should we forget the untiring zeal of Mr. McDonald, the director, to whose tactful direction and skilful management much of the success was due.

Between the acts of the play several specialties were introduced by Mr. Leo Fraught, and each brought forth rounds of applause and demands for an encore. The Rev. John A. McDonald, in his opening remarks welcomed the large audience and assured them that

G. A. Musitano has a first-class fare back to England, but his marriage to Miss Joyce Bradford, a society girl and daughter of a prominent stock broker, is definitely off. For on the very eve of society wedding investigation showed, it was said, that Musitano, sometimes known as G. A. L. son of London and Shanghai, and Halifax manager of a Montreal brokerage firm, had a wife in London with a young son. Other rumors were said to have uncovered a still further spouse, a Russian princess in the Philippines. Miss Bradford is shown above with her groom-might-have been.
