DAILY SELECTIONS FOR GUARDIAN READERS

Furnished by W. S. Louson

HE HADN'T TIME.
He hadn't time when the days were fair
And others were giving him praise,
To think of her, with her whitened hair
And her homely, old-fashioned ways;
He hadn't time to remember how
She had taught him his childhood's prayers
And smoothed the lines from his brow
When he fretted with boyish cares.
The little old town was so far away
And he had so much to do;
There were plans to be tried day after day.
And gains to be seeking, too;
There were others to charm with his gifts of speech,

There were others with cheering smiles;
There was pride to claim, there were heights to reach
At the end of so many miles.
He hadn't time when the fair winds blew
And his dreams were of proud surges,
When his hopes were high and his sorrows few,
To think of her loneliness;
But he found the time in the later days,
To wish that he might forget,
And to feel, while he listened to empty praise,
The ache of a vain regret.
—S. E. Kiser, in Chicago 'Record-Herald.'

NOT SATISFIED WITH GIFT TO VETERANS.
ST. CATHERINES, Ont., July 26.—At Queenston Heights in addressing the union picnic of the veterans of Toronto, St. Catherines and the Niagara district, Rev. Canon Kerr, chaplain of the Nineteenth Regiment, minimized the government recognition of the veterans. He said:—I am positively ashamed to mention it, a paltry sum of one hundred dollars tumbled out with a niggardly hand is the value our rulers have set upon defence of Canadian hearths and homes by the veterans of 1866.

MYSTERY SOLVED.
PRMBROKE, Ont., July 25.—The body of Sergeant Major Arthur Dunston, of Woodstock, N. B., was found by river men on the shore of the Ottawa River, three miles above this town, late yesterday. Identification was made by Captain Melville of Woodstock, N. B., who arrived here to take charge of the body.

Sergeant Major Dunston was with the New Brunswick troop, at the Petewawa military camp, in June last and on July 1 was missed from the camp. It is thought that sunstroke caused him to wander from the headquarters of his regiment, as there were no marks of violence on the body. The remains are being taken to Woodstock, for interment.

TRIED TO WALK FROM WINDSOR TO HAMILTON.

CHATHAM, Ont., July 25.—Weary and footsore, after walking fifty miles from Windsor, Mrs. Elizabeth Turner, aged 50, hobbled into Chatham this morning on the way to Hamilton, where a daughter is dangerously ill. She had only twelve cents in her pocket, and had undertaken to tramp the entire distance. Chief of Police Holmes secured her a railroad pass as far as London.

FIGHTING SHIPS AND CREWS.

Four battleships described as near-dreadnoughts have been taken out of the second line of our naval defence and placed in reserve—better known as the scrap pile—in order to enable the Navy Department to man new ships. These four warships are serviceable and comparatively new, having been put in commission since the battle of Santiago, while the lifetime of a battleship is rated at twenty years. But they might as well be classed among the obsolete, for experience tells us that once out of commission, always out. Even though an emergency should arise where the officers and men to fill the indispensable quotas?

Green crews of the grassiest hue might be drummed up out of the praries, it is true, but it is suspected that the navy is in greater straits for officers than men. The new naval bill now in progress of making provided for an increase of 4,000 sailors—half as many as saved for by the department—but as these reinforcements could not be whipped into shape by the time the new ships will be ready for service, it has been found necessary to strip the older vessels. But granting that the 4,000 recruits were available, where are the officers? The Naval Academy did not graduate one-tenth enough ensigns this year to make up the shortage of 2,000. Congress was asked to authorize, nor would they suffice to fill more than a fraction of the vacancies now existing.
