CHRISTMAS SHOPPING NOW IN FULL SWING

Christmas shopping began in earnest yesterday with a vigorous send-off from every tradesman and storekeeper who is alive to the possibilities that accrue in taking time by the forelock. For too many years the public of every civilized country have, more from habit than design, left the matter of selecting Christmas and New Year gifts till the last few days preceding the world-wide festival. Then the rush starts in and both customer and store assistants suffer, the former from the disadvantage of choosing from depleted stocks, hurriedly and without due consideration; while the latter have to bear the heavy penalty of long hours, often under intense compulsion, resulting in faded nerves and possibly undimmed health. An advance opportunity was afforded yesterday to allow all and sundry to see what is to be seen in every line of merchandise at a time when there is ample choice of material and ample time to decide. Shopkeepers both in this city and elsewhere have planned to make this a day of generous savings to both town and country purchasers of economical inclinations. The Railway Company lent its aid in offering cheap excursion fares all over the Island. A number of the most interesting firms in the way of making their window displays both attractive and interesting. A special effort made at this season is sure to bring rich rewards in increased sales and wider patronage. A stroll round the principal shops at this time is well worth while, and the following are a few of the bargains available. Notable offerings in elegant furs, costume cloth lengths in seasonable materials, ladies' coats and suits, ray hued sweaters, all at substantial reductions, are suggestive of most acceptable presents. The military note is everywhere apparent. Khaki is featured in many of the leading shops. Raincoats, suits, puttees, handkerchiefs, etc., offer an extensive choice, while such iridescent articles for both home and overseas service as flash lights, wrist watches, pocket cameras, pipes and cases, etc., are among the lines featured as gifts to the boys, wherever they may be. Charming dressing gowns, fancy collars, scarves, and neckwear, gloves, and every luxury of feminine adornment are prominent in the plethora of styles in many of the shops. Men's winter coats at remarkable reductions, sweaters of every hue and style, ties and hosiery in infinite choice make a strong appeal to the discerning eye. Several windows for hard service solicit the notice of every passer-by. Books for all ages and tastes in both gorgeous and sombre-bound bindings are lavishly displayed in some of the big shops, while dainty stationery, the big shops, in infinite variety tempt the gift seeker at every turn. Music for lovers of every form of harmony, and musical instruments of the most delightful and modern type lure the singer and instrumentalist alike at this merriest time of the year. There is to be any less plentiful owing to the stoppage of the German supply. The choice for both boys and girls is more ample this year than ever. From now until the new year business will be brisk and the consideration of selection of Christmas and New Year gifts will be a matter of universal interest.

BALKAN SITUATION DEVELOPING FAST

Germans and Bulgarians have Reached Greek Border and Threaten to Outflank Anglo-French Forces. French Forces have Withdrawn to Stronger Positions.

(Special to The Guardian) LONDON, Dec. 8.—The situation in the Balkans is developing rapidly. The Germans and Bulgarians have reached Kenali, on the Greek border, ten miles South of Monastir, thus threatening an outflanking movement against the Anglo-French forces, while the Bulgarians, who also are supposed to be supported by Germans, have attacked the Allies' extreme right wing near Strumitza. Under pressure the French have withdrawn from the Krivokapi salt and by last accounts had taken up a position at Demleka-Pou in a deep gorge about 20 miles from the Greek frontier through which the Saloniki Railway runs. Here they were attacked by the Bulgarians who according to French reports, were repulsed. The plans of neither the Allies nor the Germans are clear but apparently the Germans are determined on crushing the little force which went to the assistance of the Serbians which has been still reinforced. The retirement of the Allies to Demleka has led to a report that they intended to abandon the Balkan enterprise entirely, but the continued landing of troops at Saloniki would seem to deny any such intention, while there is a very strong military opinion here that Saloniki should be held as a base for future operations in the near East. There is little news from the other points. The Germans scored minor successes in Champagne, capturing about 500 yards of a French trench, part of which has been retained. The British have received reinforcement at Kut El Amara where they are making a stand in their retreat from Ctesiphon and the Italians who for the past two weeks have been on the offensive are now engaged in meeting the Austrian counter-attacks. The offensive of the Allies in the East apparently did not materialize while throughout Russia wintry weather has put a stop to all but small ventures.

82ND REGIMENT BAND KINDLY REMEMBERED BY CO. A, 105TH BATT.

PURSE OF $253 PRESENTED SUPPER AT KOSY KORNER

The members of the 82nd Regiment Band were the guests of Colonel Allen at a pleasant supper and entertainment in "Kozy Korner" last evening when a rare time was spent. They were presented by the Colonel, on behalf of "A" Company of the 105th Overseas Regiment, with a cheque for $253, in recognition of their splendid and invaluable services. The 82nd Band has done admirable work, representing real sacrifice in many instances, since the outbreak of the war, and its members have always been ready to do their best, and do it cheerfully, when requested, very often voluntarily offering their services, without the slightest hesitation. That the Regiment appreciates the splendid efforts of the Band was shown at last night's function. Shortly before 8 o'clock the Band assembled in the Armoures and there rendered a splendid programme, playing all the patriotic and popular airs in their brilliant style. About 8.30 Colonel Allen made a brief address, in which he remarked on the excellent service which the 82nd Band had rendered the Regiment, who, he stated, had fully recognized and appreciated the fact. "A" Company had deemed it only fit and proper that they should show their appreciation in a tangible way, and he would call on the chaplain of the Regiment, Major Fullerton, to present the members of the Band with a gift from the Company. Colonel Campbell said he expressed the sentiments of every man and non-commissioned officer in "A" Company when he said that the services of the 82nd Band were thoroughly appreciated. It would have made a big difference in the work of the company had no hand been available, and the members of the 82nd were always willing and ready, no matter how thick the mud or inclement the weather. They were always on hand, ready to do their bit to help the work along. Their services were of inestimable value, not only in playing the men to Church on Sunday, but in going about the country attending recruiting meetings held late into the night, and being cheerful and pleasant over it. Colonel Allen's action would meet with the approval of every man in "A" Company. Major Fullerton, in presenting the cheque, said that the finest procession of the soldiers would fall exceedingly flat and make no impression unless they were helped by the Band—and when he said the band meant a band. There was no doubt that the 82nd Band was one of the finest, if not the finest band that had ever been in this province. (Cheers.) As chairman of the Patriotic Society he thought the Band had done effective work in connection with recruiting. He complimented the Band on their efficiency and said he had much pleasure in making the presentation. Bananator McFarlane made a suitable reply. The Band and officers of the Regiment then adjourned to the "Kozy Korner" where an excellent supper was served, and cigars and cigarettes were afterwards passed around. A number of toasts were drunk. Major Fullerton presided. Brief speeches were given and the Band played a number of selections. In the course of the addresses the fact was brought out that 3 sergeants and about 20 men of Capt. McNutt's company were in the Regiment, while Colonel Allen stated that one officer and 15 men were at the front from Co. A. This is a creditable record. The toast list was as follows:—The King, proposed by the chairman; the Army and Navy, proposed by the chairman, replied to by Col. Campbell; the Band, proposed by the chairman, replied to by Col. Allen; the Band, in connection with Captain McNutt, replied to by Capt. McNutt; Colonel Allen, proposed by Col. Campbell, replied to by Col. Allen. The entertainment was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

THE SEDITION CASE IN ST. JOHN, N. B.

(Special to The Guardian.) ST. JOHN, Dec. 8.—The nature of Wilfrid Gribble's alleged seditious utterances was revealed this afternoon when in his preliminary examination in the Police Court, George H. Worden told of the meeting he attended. Gribble called King George a "puppet." He said the legend, "Your King and Country Need You," should read "Your King and Country Bleed You." He referred to young men who donned the khaki as "slaves to Britain" and said that one might as well be a German slave. Gribble also related an incident when he, a soldier and an officer in one of the regiments, met Col. McAvity of the 26th. The soldier saluted, but the officer did not say, "I have no use for that sort of man." Gribble also claimed that many of the soldiers were forced to enlist by the Socialists who answered the call to arms were "no good to our order as we can't trust them." Worden said that Gribble's references were freely applauded by other Socialists at the meeting. The case was adjourned until to-morrow afternoon, after the police magistrate had refused bail for the prisoner.

SERGENT KNIGHT, WAR VETERAN, NOW IN CHITOWN

Sergeant Knight of Halifax, who is to address the recruiting meeting in Prince of Wales College Hall to-morrow evening arrived in Charlottetown last night. Sergt. Knight is a veteran of the war and the bearer of honourable scars and wounds, some of them still unhealed. In an interview last night, which was necessarily brief owing to the lateness of the hour, he informed a Guardian representative that he was in the United States at the time of the outbreak of the war. Anticipating the outbreak he left immediately for the Old Country with the intention of joining the First Gordon Highlanders. He arrived in Glasgow on August 5th, joined the Gordon Highlanders the same day and within five weeks the Regiment was ordered to the front. They were not long on the Continent when they had the privilege they longed for of engaging the enemy. He was in a number of battles and had many close calls, some of which "got him" and out of which he escaped with his life, but not with a whole skin. At the battle of Cambrai he received bullet wounds through both thighs. Luckily the bone was not touched, but they were so serious that he was confined to a hospital in England for six months. His story is a particularly interesting one and will be told to-morrow night in Prince of Wales College Hall. He is an enthusiastic and eloquent speaker, and his address may be looked forward to as a thrillingly interesting one. He was born in Halifax and educated in Dalhousie College. Although still suffering from his wounds, which include almost all the varieties known in war—

PRESIDENT WILSON ADDRESSES CONGRESS

In Unmeasured Terms He Denounces Naturalized Americans who by their Acts have Endangered American Neutrality and Declares they Must be Crushed Out.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—President Wilson, in his annual address to Congress yesterday, dealing mainly with national defence, proclaimed an advanced Americanism, growing from the guardianship of the Monroe Doctrine to "the full and honorable association," of all the Americans. Although, in the longest address he has yet delivered to Congress, the President touched upon a variety of subjects, the predominating note was the necessity of a policy of military preparedness to meet the readjustments of the next generation as they will affect the American Continent. He emphasized his point by saying: "Unless you take it with your view and permit the full significance of it to command your thought, I cannot find the right light in which to set forth the particular matter that lies at the very front of my whole thought, as I address you to-day. I mean national defence. The point was not overshadowed when the President, in his most unmeasured terms he ever has employed before Congress, denounced naturalized Americans who, by their sympathies for the European belligerents, have endangered American neutrality. While Congress cheered him loudly, he referred to them as having "poured the poison of disloyalty into the very arteries of our national life," and as those who "would turn in malign reaction against the Government and the people who had welcomed and nurtured them." With evidence of deep feeling the President expressed "the even deeper humiliation and scorn which every self-possessed and thoughtfully patriotic American must feel when he thinks of them and of the discredit they are daily bringing upon us." While the President's outline of the administration plan for the army and navy passed without a ripple of applause, and his references to pan-Americanism were only punctuated with evidence of approval, Republicans and Democrats alike, joined in an emphatic demonstration at his words of condemnation for those he assailed so unreservedly.

ITALIANS ENGAGED IN HEAVY BATTLES

(Special to The Guardian.) ROME, Dec. 8.—The War Office today made public the following: Along the whole front there has been great activity by the enemies' artillery to which our batteries effectively replied. The enemy are also making use of asphyxiating gas. Monday afternoon intense preparation by artillery was followed by enemy attacks against our positions North of Tre, in the valley of Ledro, and to the East of Piazza in Terragnon valley. The attacks were repulsed. On the Caruso front, despite adverse weather conditions, our infantry is maintaining its aggressive attitude. bullet, bayonet, shrapnel, mine, etc.—he is in good speaking form and those who want to know more about war than they now do should make it a point to hear him to-morrow night.

LETTER FROM COL. INGS APPEAL FOR ONE THOUSAND PAIRS OF SOCKS

Major Bartlett has received the following letter from Col. Ings from "Somewhere in France," in which he gives some interesting details of life at the front, and appeals to "the good people of P. E. I." to send his regiment "say a thousand pairs of good thick woolen socks." Mrs. Ings and Mrs. Bartlett have undertaken to endeavour to comply with the Colonel's request, and will be glad if the ladies of the Island will rally to their assistance. The letter is, in part, as follows: "I am very glad that Col. Peake was so successful with his battery. The Island will, I am sure, be proud of them both now and later. There are no better men in our armies to-day than the 'Spud Islanders.' My own lot in this regiment are first-rate chaps—never up for 'office' and always in at the finish. We have a splendid regiment ready for anything our O. C. Col. Shaw is a splendid chap. He is fairly young (35), was in South Africa, seven years in R. N. W. M. P. and latterly in Lord Strathcona Horse. He is a fine sportsman and very popular around. My only fear is that he will be taken away from us for a higher appointment. Since coming over here we have been shifted about a good deal. In a few days more we move up again to the trenches for a fortnight. We shall probably be having a warm-time then. The day before yesterday we had a most amusing time. It was a football match between the officers of our own and other regiments. It was a burlesque. All were dressed up in outlandish rigs. The challenged team arrived in a Tally-Ho (which consisted of a G. S. wagon drawn by draft team) and it was an odd scene. The charging bells were ringing, big guns firing, rain pouring, and still everyone shouting and laughing at the antics of the players. The serious side of war makes no impression on any one here. The soldiers are the happiest and jolliest crew on ever saw. I had a party and we had a concert in the neighbouring town. The performers belonged to a Winnipeg medical unit. It was easily the best amateur show I ever attended. The only ladies present were a few nurses, so the jokes went down like rain. With a few minutes' occasional cold we are all very fit and really enjoying life. It is strange how readily we grow accustomed to mud and dirty surroundings. Even the horses are in good condition. I myself am surprised to find how well I feel. I can ride all day and keep it on my end on the route marches, but of course I do not at my age expect to stand the wet and cold in the marches as well as the younger chaps. The weather has been a little finer lately, frost every night, but not very cold. We have had a few good billets just now, but hardly expect to be as well off again. Our greatest lack is socks. The issue is not as good as our old-fashioned Canadian socks. The good people of P. E. I. would be esteemed great benefactors if they could send us a thousand pairs of good thick woolen socks. Care of the men's feet is our greatest problem. I am, Sir, etc., A. ERNEST INGS."
