Hold Parents' Day At Saint Joseph's Convent

Education Week at St. Joseph's Convent was brought to a successful close on Friday afternoon when the school doors opened to receive more than one hundred and fifty parents. The guests assembled at 1:30 p. m. in the entrance hall where an interesting display of the pupils work attracted favorable attention. Prominent among maps, sewing, art-work, and writing were Education Week posters explaining the aim and value of this relative-ly new celebration. The visitors were then formed into three groups and were conducted through the school by the principal, and the teachers of the senior grades. The parents were thus given an opportunity of seeing their children at work in their beautiful classrooms. At 3:15 p. m. the guests were invited to the music-room where, after singing a song of welcome, the pupils of Grade IX and X ably discussed Education Week in its various phases. Compositions on the value of education were also read. The parents then joined the pupils in the familiar old song, "School Days," after which cake and coffee were daintily served by the senior pupils. Mr. J. P. Leightner, in a few well-chosen words, fittingly expressed the appreciation of the visitors. A delightful half-hour followed in which parents and teachers met in friendly interchange of ideas. The guests then dispersed all expressing regret that Education Week comes only once a year.

Leightner, in a few well-chosen words, fittingly expressed the appreciation of the visitors. A delightful half-hour followed in which parents and teachers met in friendly interchange of ideas. The guests then dispersed all expressing regret that Education Week comes only once a year.

THE BAPTIST CHURCH

In his morning sermon the Rev. Harvey L. Denton B. D. discussed "The Case for Temperance." It was not the speaker indicated, his purpose to establish a "Chamber of Horrors" at this time on the question, feeling assured that most of the hearers were fully informed from that point of view. The case for temperance may be found in the possibilities of youth, and their blighting by intemperance. Tragic indeed is the picture of those who endowed with every talent commence life in the very dawn of success. Taking this wrong turn bright dreams and high promise have been dragged in the sodden mire of drunkenness. The safe road for youth is found in establishing the strong habit of total temperance. The case is further found in the need for happy and prosperous homes. The Christian home is the unit of sound so-

ACE RADIO ANNOUNCERS LIKE Herb May MUST GUARD THEIR THROATS

Herbert May, who was picked in a recent magazine poll as the most popular announcer in Canadian radio, and who was recently invited to join the staff of the Columbia Broadcasting System in Hollywood, has this to say: "I've smoked Buckingham's for years. If a cigarette irritated my throat, I'd have to give them up. But Buckingham's don't. In fact that's why I stay with Buckingham's. They are so easy on my throat."

WHEN an ace radio announcer like Herb May publicly expresses his preference for Buckingham's, that means a lot. Singers and speakers everywhere are just as loyal to Buckingham. They like the distinctive Buckingham taste—the extra mildness. 62 varieties and classifications of the finest leaf, scientifically blended for taste, make a Buckingham.
