The HOUSEWIFE and HER ACTIVITIES

We all of us have a Road to take: That road is the Road of Life; We each of us have a share of joy And each have a share of strife.

But since we all must travel that road In sunny or stormy weather, We each can lighten the other's load, If we all pull along together.

Never place meat directly on ice, as the ice will draw out the flavor. Simply set on a plate, cover with wax paper, and place in the coolest place in the ice-box.

THE REMOVAL OF STAINS FROM CARPETS

The removal of stains from carpets requires careful treatment. If the nature of the stain is unknown try washing it with warm water or apply a paste of carbonate of soda. When dry brush off with a hard brush of the vacuum cleaner.

For ink, coffee and tea stains mop up at once with clean blotting paper, then rub with a fresh half lemon. If the stain has become dry rub heated skim milk and vinegar in a circular motion, then rinse with fresh warm vinegar water.

Soot can be lifted off gently by slipping stiff paper or cardboard under it then sprinkle with dry salt and brush up.

Grease should be scraped off with a blunt knife. Cover with blotting or brown paper and press the spot with a hot iron, being careful not to touch the carpet with the iron.

When paint gets into the carpet rub with turpentine, and if obstinate apply fuller's earth. Repeat the process if necessary and brush up with a hard brush. To remove varnish rub with methylated spirits until all the varnish is gone.

CURE FOR THE HICCUGHS

Say the following three times over with one breath—the hiccoughs will disappear: When a twist twisting would twist him a twist, For twisting a twist three times he will twist, But if one of the twists untwists the twist, The twist untwisting untwists the twist.

Keep brown sugar in the refrigerator or in a cool place covered with a damp cloth, or in a tightly closed glass jar and it will not harden.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

When frying cold potatoes, slice them and dredge thoroughly with flour. There is practically no waste from this, and the flavor is certainly improved.

Old photographs may be revived by carefully sponging them over with clean cotton wool dipped in methylated spirit. This method will revive the prints nicely and will not injure the surface.

Before beating eggs, rinse out the bowl in cold water, and leave a little water in it. When the eggs are poured out of the bowl, they will come out cleanly, preventing waste, and making washing-up easier.

When darning socks and stockings it is a good plan to make a few runs from corner to corner of the darn, making a cross on it. The darned part will wear longer.

BURNED EDGES

If the cake is burned a bit on its edges, do not spoil it by being over the charred portions. Rub a fine grater lightly over the black places, holding it so the crumbs will fall off. Then see on the new surface and make no apologies.

MOTHER LOVE IS TRACED TO SMALL GLAND

New scientific research described by Dr. Oscar Riddle, Cold Spring Harbor research worker, told of an amazing substance which created the so-called "mother love" instinct in animals.

The material is a hormone found in the anterior portion of a tiny gland, the pituitary, located at the base of the brain. Dr. Riddle calls the substance prolactin.

Virgin rats, injected with prolactin, very soon showed signs of having the maternal instinct associated only with animals which have recently mated. Fowls reacted similarly.

This is the first real demonstration of the functions of these chemical substances called hormones. The fact that they can actually create instincts, sentiments, and consciousness of a particular kind is of great importance in their future practical application to human beings.

WAYS WITH FLOWERS

"Ways with flowers are never-ending this year—the words are those of a writer on fashions. "Apple-green taffeta with a cluster of white flowers and a white hat, or pale yellow crepe organza or silk with love-in-a-mist and pale pink poppies can be very lovely," she explains.

Even the tailored suits accept a cambric flower to correspond with the lingerie bow. A very unusual frock in white crepe with a design of pink and green water lilies had three large lilies of the colours and their leaves finishing the low décolletage.

Accounted among the Jubilee revivals is the return of the button-hole of flowers which is to be worn with the slim-fitting suit and silver fox. Mixed buttonholes for women are being made up of the iris and the hyacinth.

A woman florist gives a hint as to the preservation of these button-holes of real flowers. Put into an air-tight box, instead of a glass of water, it is said that they will last for days, since oxygen causes flowers to fade rapidly.

Nail polishes must now match the season's colours—the idea is sponsored by the exclusive Parisian houses.

A new peach shade in dress should be accompanied by cyclamen nail polish by day and night. Navy blue gowns may choose either Chinese red, tomato, fire-engine red, or blush rose. With sky blue go or blood (not a very pleasant name!), cyclamen, or blush rose, with sapphire or rose pearl for evenings. So now you know!

WHAT'S AN ORATOR

A negro met an acquaintance of his, also colored, on the street one day and was surprised to see that his friend had on a new suit, new hat, new shoes and other evidences of prosperity.

"Hey, boy," said he, "how come you dressed up dis way? Is you got a job?"

"I got somethin' better'n a job" replied the other. "I got a profession—'Ise an orator."

"What's an orator?" "Don't you know?" replied the respondent one in surprise. "Well, I'll tell you what an orator is. If you walk up to an ordinary nigger and ask him how much was two and two he'd say 'four'—but, if you was to ask one of our orators how much was two and two, we'd say, 'When in the course of human events it becomes necessary to take de numeral of the second denomination and add it to de figger two, I say unto you and I says it without fear of successful contradiction, de result will invariably be four.' Dat's an orator."

QUICK TOMATO BROTH

1 can tomato juice (1 1/2 size) 2 bouillon cubes or 2 teaspoons bouillon cordial. 1 onion 1 tablespoon chopped parsley 1 teaspoon butter 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce Hot water. Chop the onion fine. Heat the butter in a saucepan. Add the onion and simmer until light brown. Add 2 cups of hot water. Simmer until the onions are tender. Add the 2 bouillon cubes. Add the tomato juice, then the parsley. Simmer for 10 minutes. Add the Worcestershire sauce and serve in bouillon cups.

BEEF AND HORSE RADISH SALAD

1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin 2 tablespoons cold water 2 cups boiling water 1/2 cup lemon juice 1/2 cup sugar 1 1/2 tablespoons horseradish 1 tablespoon vinegar 1/2 teaspoon salt Several dashes of Worcestershire sauce 1/2 cup chopped cabbage 1/2 cup chopped beets Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in boiling water. Add lemon juice, sugar, horseradish, vinegar and salt. Stir in Worcestershire sauce. Cool until slightly thickened. Add chopped cabbage and beets. Pour into mould and chill until firm. Serve on watercress with a mayonnaise dressing.

BUTTERSCOTCH ICE BOX COOKIES

1 cup butter 2 cups light brown sugar 2 eggs, unbeaten 3 1/2 cups bread flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon baking soda 1/2 teaspoon baking powder 1 teaspoon vanilla Sift soda with flour, baking powder and salt. Cream the shortening, add sugar gradually, beating between additions. Add eggs and mix well. Add dry ingredients a little at a time, mixing well after each addition. Form the dough in cookie-size rolls, then wrap in heavy wax paper. Or, mould the dough in a small bread pan. Chill for several hours, or overnight. Cut in one-eighth inch slices, arrange on cookie sheet, and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 to 400 deg. F.) until delicately browned. When baked, place on a cake cooler and do not pile until the cookies are cold.

Usually, these cookies are made with the addition of chopped walnut meats or pecans.

Hostess—Dear me! The conversation is flagging dreadfully. What can we do to amuse these people?" Host—"I don't know, I'm sure, unless we go into the other room for a while to give them a chance to talk about us."

What's the Matter With Friends That They Don't Respond? Asks Woman Who Longs to be Popular—How Can Woman Who Allows Boys to Use Herself and Daughter as Doormat Hope to Command Their Respect?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a middle-aged woman and I don't know whether I am just a victim of self-pity or am plain "touchy" about my friends. I have tried to play square and have never failed to help them in every emergency. I am worried when they are in trouble and put myself out to help them. But am I popular? No! Although I want to be in the swim of things I am just another woman who fills in at a luncheon or a card game. I don't click. Is it because I don't brag, shout, scream, say complimentary things to people's faces and catty things behind their backs? Tell me, does it pay to be a hypocrite, or to be true to one's ideals? I'd love to be popular, but although I have a few friends who are true to me I am never singled out or fussed over. Why is this? K. M. C.

Answer: If you have only one friend on whose faithfulness and affection you can depend, you are fortunate. If you have two or three whose hands you can reach out and touch in the dark, you are rich beyond the dreams of avarice. All of us have many pleasant acquaintances, men and women who are intelligent and agreeable and whose society we enjoy.

But these are fair-weather friends, not the real friends who ride out the storm with us and on whose faith and loyalty we can depend, no matter what befalls us. Nor is this as unfair as it sounds. Probably these people give us as much in real liking as we give them, they would do as much for us as we would do for them, and we are quits when we mutually make life pleasant and gay for each other. Think it over and you will realize that you get a lot of fun and entertainment in going to the luncheons and the bridge parties of women even if you know that they have no profound affection for you, and that while they might send flowers to your funeral, they would never break a date to attend it.

You ask if it pays to be a hypocrite. Certainly not if you mean taking advantage of kissing a sister to stab her in the back, but I have found that so often women make the charge of hypocrisy a blanket indictment to cover all of the amenities of life.

They consider it hypocrisy, for instance, to be tactful and to keep off other people's toes instead of dancing a war dance on them. They think it is hypocritical to pay a compliment, or to say anything pleasant and agreeable.

I have known women who thought it hypocritical to tell another woman that she had on a pretty dress, or that she played a good game of bridge, or that her baby was a darling, but they would have accounted it unto themselves for righteousness to spoil another woman's pleasure in her new hat by telling her it was too young for her, that her bridge was rotten, or that her child was a spoiled brat.

I once knew a woman who was in a perpetual argument and when I asked her why she always went to the mat with everybody and got herself disliked, she replied that she felt like a hypocrite if she didn't express herself every time she disagreed with any one else's opinion.

"Perhaps in trying not to be hypocritical you lean over backward and antagonize people by telling them truths which they resent hearing and to which it is none of your business to call their attention, anyway."

But the secret of popularity is a mystery that none can explain. Some fortunate individuals are born with the magic that draws every one they meet to them. Every eye brightens at their coming and every hand gives them a glad welcome.

They may not be half so good and kind and unselfish as those who are passed over. They may not be half so good friends. But somehow they get the affection that is denied their superiors and the attentions they do not deserve. They just click, and that's all there is to it.

So I should advise you to quit pitying yourself because you are not a social waltz and people do not make a fuss over you wherever you go. You might as well feel that you are misused because you are not a cinema star or "Miss America."

Be thankful that you are lucky enough to have a few real friends, and they enjoy your chop-for-a-chop acquaintances and get as much pleasure as you can out of them. DOROTHY DIX.

A GIRL'S MOTHER.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What's the matter with the modern young men? They seem not to know even the elementary rules of good manners. After making a girl wait for a long time they stand her up without even offering any excuse or letting her know that they are not coming. Perhaps weeks after she spent an evening waiting for the boy who did not come he will casually say: "Oh, I intended calling you up and telling you that the affair was off, but I forgot it." We often have boys call up a half hour before the dinner which has been prepared for them, and have them say that they are not coming. They don't bother even to make any excuse. My daughter very seldom has a letter answered. Boys go off to college and make her promise to write to them, which she does, but they don't take the time to answer. What's the matter with them? Why didn't their mothers teach them the decent things in life? A GIRL'S MOTHER.

Answer: I don't know why mothers don't teach their boys good manners, nor do I know why girls' mothers don't teach their daughters to have enough self-respect to resent the boys' lack of manners.

For the thing that is the matter with the boys is that they are spoiled rotten by the girls, who are so anxious to have dates that they will permit the boys to put any sort of affront upon them. If the girls had enough spunk and backbone to stage a rebellion, they could make boys treat them with the respect that men used to show to women.

Do you suppose that a boy would dare to break a date with a girl without adequate cause if he knew that the next time he wanted to take her daughter very seldom has a letter answered. Boys go off to college and make her promise to write to them, which she does, but they don't take the time to answer. What's the matter with them? Why didn't their mothers teach them the decent things in life? A GIRL'S MOTHER.

When I see a mother making her house a restaurant for boys who don't even speak to her as they would to a head waiter, or a cook, I don't wonder that they treat her like a servant. And when I hear of girls writing to boys first and keeping on deluging them with letters that they don't even answer, I am not surprised that boys get such cases of the swelled head that when they notice a girl at all they do it with the condescending air of the Sultan throwing his handkerchief to the favorite of the hour.

I am not defending the manners of the young men of today. Heaven knows they have none to defend, but it is because girls make themselves so cheap that young men hold themselves so dear. DOROTHY DIX.
