Eating Oil

This is a growing and sane idea. It is olive oil that is becoming one of the important foods of the world.

Its value lies in the fact that it is all nutriment and is a kind of food that leaves no harmful waste in the system such as meat does. Instead it helps to expel the harmful waste, matter that results from using other foods.

Use all the olive oil you can, be careful about the quality only. That is insured by coming here for it. We handle a special brand that is absolutely pure and of fine flavor.

Price 50c pint.

STRIKE LEGISLATION.

New Zealand continues to struggle gallantly, even desperately, with the most difficult phases of the labor problem. Compulsory arbitration has been generally accounted a failure because of the extreme difficulty of enforcing an award to which the men object. The Government is undertaking, however, in a bill recently introduced, to strengthen the principle of compulsory arbitration in this respect, and the measure contains most drastic features looking to the enforcement of awards. The bill applies not to public utilities alone, as in the case of the Canadian Act, but to a vast number of other industries, though not to all; and a strike is forbidden not merely until after an investigation looking to settlement has taken place, as again in the case of Canada, but under any and all circumstances, subject to a penalty, in the case of every worker who is a party to the strike, of £10, and an additional fine of £1 for each week during which the strike may continue, and he be a party thereto. The corresponding penalties for a lockout are £200 for the initial offence, and £50 a week during its continuance. Moreover, the bill proposes penalties not only for aiding and abetting a strike or lockout, but for publishing any expression of approval of the same. It is in the collection of penalties, however, that the new bill is most severe. The fine will not be optional with imprisonment, this having been considered impracticable as well as undesirable, but, if the penalty remains unpaid, the amount will be deducted by the defaulter's employer from the wages of the striker as soon as he shall be earning any, and the defaulting worker may be followed from one employer to another until the fine is paid; while if the employer fails to deduct the amount of the penalty from the man's wages he can be sued for the same by the inspector of awards in the magistrate's court. If a judgment against a union or association is not satisfied within a month the individual members will be liable up to the amount of £5 each. No such drastic labor legislation has been anywhere previously attempted, and it is not surprising to hear that in some quarters it has been denounced as tyrannical. Yet it is not clear how compulsory arbitration can be in any other way enforced. It is doubtful if any Government could administer such a law as is now proposed, and it is probably but a final attempt to prop up the unpracticable system of compulsory arbitration before definitely abandoning it in favor, it may be, of the milder and more conciliatory, and certainly not less successful, law of Canada.—The Canadian Magazine.

THE TEMPLE.

Enter the temple beautiful! The house not made with hands! Rain-washed and green, wind-swept and clean,
Beneath the blue it stands,
And no cathedral anywhere
Stemeth so holy, or so fair.

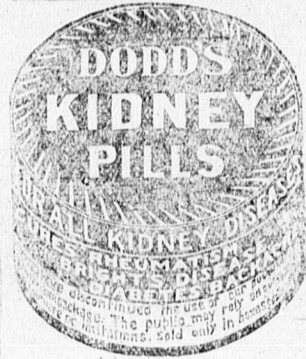

It hath no heavy gabled roof, no door,
No window bars shut out the stars—
With lock and key,
The aisles are wide and free—
Here through the night each altar light
Is just a moonbeam silver-white.

Silently as the temple grew at Solomon's command,
Still as things seen within a dream,
This rose from out the land;
And all the pillars, grey and high,
Lifted their arches to the sky.

Here is the perfume of the leaves,
The incense of the pine—
The magic scent that hath been rent
Within the tangled vines—
No censor filled with spices rare,
E'er swung such sweetness on the air.

And all the golden gloom of it holdeth
No haunting fear,
For it is blessed and giveth rest
To those who enter here—
Here is the evening—who can know
But God Himself walks to and fro.

And music past all mastering within
The chancel rings—
None could desire a sweeter choir
Than this—that soars and sings,
Till far the scented shadows creep—
And quiet darkness bringeth sleep.
