A TELEGRAM received in this city last evening conveyed the sad news of the death of Jean, second daughter of Charles Cuming of the Princess and beloved wife of Warren B. Delano of Taunton, Mass. The deceased was in her twenty-second year and leaves to mourn a sorrowing husband and two small children. (Ex. and Pat. please copy.)

ISLAND BOYS GET THERE.—The Guardian of the 14th inst. contains the description of a seven masted schooner, Thomas W. Lawson. This monster schooner, the largest of its kind ever built, was launched at the Fore River Ship & Engine Company's yard near Boston. The Guardian has learned with a feeling of pride that Wm. Godfrey, brother of Mrs. George Carr of this city, was foreman builder. His two brothers, David and Thomas, were also employed on the same work. Mr. Godfrey left the Island some years ago and has risen with strides to his present high position.

PLEASANT EVENTS.—St. Dunstan's Cathedral was the scene of an interesting event Tuesday the 5th, when Marin Blanchard and Miss Charlotte Gallant of this city were made husband and wife. Rev. Dr. Morrison officiated while Stanislaus, Blanchard played the wedding march. The bride was attended by Miss Annie Gallant while the groom was attended by John Rogers, Millvale. After a sumptuous breakfast the happy party drove to Rustico where a pleasant day was spent after which they returned to town. The presents were many and costly. The Guardian joins in congratulations.

ALTHOUGH the 82nd Battalion Band discoursed sweet music on Queen Square a goodly number of young people assembled at Inkerman, on Tuesday night, for a clam bake. Just at the finish of the bake the participants were surprised to find themselves surrounded by a party who were so well masqueraded that not one feature was distinguishable. As if by instinct both parties moved towards the lawn, which was well surrounded by trees. Here the masqueraders proceeded with their performance which happened to be a set of lancers, but two young gentlemen of the clam bakers decided that ten made a better set than eight. More of the bakers seeing how successful their companions had been, decided to enter the revelry also. The masqueraders not being being agreeable a fierce conflict ensued. Both parties were commanded by local militia officers, that of the masqueraders having seen active service in South Africa. The conflict resulted in sore ribs and the loss of a hat and numerous other articles belonging to the masqueraders while the bakers were victorious, escaping without a scratch. The bakers then proceeded with their games and wended their way homewards, amid song and laughter, about midnight. The losers may obtain their missing articles by applying at 18, Queen Street.
