ARREST ALLEGED LEADERS OF REVOLT PLOT

SEVEN BELIEVED ABOARD MISSING PLANE

OVERDUE IN FLIGHT FROM PICKLE LAKE

Believed Fog - Bound In Northwestern Ontario In Flight From Mining Centre.

(By The Canadian Press) SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont., Nov. 25—A search party tonight held secret the fate of a plane more than 24 hours overdue at this mining centre on a 120-mile hop from Pickle Lake.

A pilot, mechanic and a passenger list estimated from five to nine were in the Starratt Airways plane that left Pickle Lake at four p.m. EST Wednesday. Airways officials said five passengers and a two-man crew were the weight limits and they believed there were no more than seven occupants.

Meantime airmen at the airline's Hudson headquarters, 18 miles west of here, awaited improved flying conditions to launch a search for the missing plane. It was thought Pilot Ken Smith might have been forced down by fog.

The missing machine, a Fairchild 82, also carried Keith Gregson, chief engineer for the Airways firm.

The 120-mile journey usually takes about an hour. Smith, however, is believed to have become fog-bound and probably brought his plane down on one of the numerous lakes and streams which dot the country.

The Root Portage camp is 85 miles north of Hudson, but flying conditions were such that even this short hop would not be attempted immediately.

Company officials were unable to give the names of passengers aboard. It is believed they are members of Pickle Crow and Central Patricia gold mines staffs who make several trips over the route during the week.

The plane was fitted with skis for winter flying which started about a week ago when the lakes and rivers showed strong ice surfaces. Pilot Smith has lived in Hudson for the last two years, coming from Quebec to the northern Ontario mining country. Gregson has been with the firm for four years. Both are married.

Harry Millman Killed In Crowded Cocktail Grill

DETROIT, Nov. 25—(CP)—A multiplicity of motives and death of clues handicapped police search tonight for two gunmen who shot down Harry Millman, "one of the underworld" in a crowded 12th street cocktail grill early today.

Four men fell wounded and 60 Thanksgiving eve merry-makers were menaced by the barrage of 20 pistol shots. Two of the victims were employed in Millman's horse race handbook and the gunman deliberately turned their pistols on them after pumping nine bullets into Millman. The other victims were bystanders.

Millman, 27, was known as the last leader of Detroit's notorious Purple Gang, which was disrupted by the repeal of prohibition and by a blast of gunfire, and police said he had "lived on borrowed time." It was the second attempt on his life within three months. Police said there were "at least 20 tenable motives" for his slaying. The motive most generally accepted was reprisal for attempting to "muscle in" on other racketeers.

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) KINGSTON, Jamaica, Nov. 25—(CP Cable)—Torrential rains continued to pour down on Jamaica tonight as latest reports placed the death toll at approximately 70, with indications it would soar even higher before the flood waters receded.

The Chagres took 18 members of the other vessel's crew off her before bad weather drove them apart and was reported to be searching still for survivors. No signs of the Nollington Court or any of the missing men were seen today, the latest report declared, adding that there had been water in her engine room before the ships were parted by the storm.

Reports from Portland, on the western coast of this British West Indies colony, said that "scores of bodies had been recovered and signs would not run to Port Antonio for two or three months."

CANADA TRADE COMMISSIONER VISITS PROV.

Sees Possibility Of Developing Strawberry And Canned Chicken Trade With United Kingdom.

Prince Edward Island's trade with the United Kingdom, in common with the rest of Canada, could be greatly increased, Mr. J. H. English, Canadian Trade Commissioner for London, said last night. Canned chicken and strawberries, shipped to English jam factories preserved in sulphur dioxide were especially mentioned by the Trade Commissioner who yesterday interviewed government officials and producers and exporters interested in further developing this Province's trade with the Old Country. Mr. English arrived here Wednesday night and leaves today for Halifax. He will visit Saint John before returning to Montreal to complete the final month's work of a four months tour of the Dominion.

U. K. Is Best Market

"The United Kingdom is our best market because it is free for practically all Canadian goods," Mr. English said. In 1931, probably the lowest of the depression period, Canada's trade with the United Kingdom was 171 million dollars. In the next six years it increased until last year when it reached the 399 million dollar mark. It would be even bigger this year, the Commissioner believed.

There were seven trade commissioners located at various important centres in the United Kingdom. One located at London and really represents the south eastern counties with a total population of 14 million people, a tremendous market itself," Mr. English said. The duties of trade com-

The inquest was conducted by Dr. R. W. Neil of nearby Preceville. Eleven witnesses were heard.

17 Are Missing Aboard Sinking British Freighter

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 25—Seventeen mariners were missing tonight aboard the sinking British freighter Nollington Court.

The steamer Chagres, which took off 18 tonight, lost sight of the stricken vessel off Haiti in a rain squall and its fate was undetermined.

Tropical radio here picked up the following message from the Chagres' radio operator, who added he had not slept for 50 hours:

"Don't know what happened to steamship Nollington Court. We were standing by when rain squall came up. She had no lights and disappeared in three hours. We searched but not sighted. May have gone ashore on Tortuga Island but could not see them."

The Chagres broadcast a warning that the freighter's load of heavy logs had been jettisoned and they were a menace to navigation.

Rome Alleges French Minister States War With Italy Inevitable.

(A. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) PARIS, Nov. 25—The Naval Ministry declared tonight Rome press reports Cesar Campinchi, Minister of the Navy, had forecast war with Italy were a "complete invention."

The statement said that Campinchi made no speech at Toulon Oct. 23—the day the Italian press said he spoke—and that in a speech he made there the previous day he made no mention of foreign affairs.

EMBASSY GUARDED

ROME, Nov. 25—An extra, precautionary police guard was stationed about the French Embassy tonight as a result of published reports the French naval minister had forecast inevitable war between France and Italy.

Cesar Campinchi, the French Minister of the Navy, was quoted in the Rome press as saying in a speech at Toulon Oct. 23:

"Why, hide it? War with Italy not only is destined, it is necessary. We will have the Fascist hide!"

Campinchi was quoted as saying Italy had designs on Corsica, the French island in the Mediterranean, and adding "it is necessary for Italy to cease the infamous comedy of an unredemmed Corsica, of an Italian Corsica that awaits liberation."

Fascist officials said "there is great danger in Italy over the speech," but no diplomatic protest was contemplated.

Virginio Gayda, the authoritative Fascist editor, denied the Corsica charges. He wrote that "once more Europe and Roosevelt, on the subject of critical distractions on the subject of authoritarian regimes and their pretended aggressiveness," were informed the France of the Popular Front Government "plots aggression against Fascist Italy."

DUDE COWBOYS STAGE FATAL TRAIN HOLDUP

Former Nova Scotian And Brooklyn Companion Captured—Switchman Killed.

(By The Associated Press) DEMMING, N. M., Nov. 25—Two gaudily dressed "Brooklyn cowboys" attempted a desert train robbery which cost the life of a switchman today but were floored by the fists of enraged passengers and trainmen.

The fantastic "wild west" gunplay of the young tenderfoot aboard the Southern Pacific's Apache Limited resulted in the fatal shooting of W. L. Smith of El Paso.

Lashed to car seats, they were brought here where they identified themselves as Henry Lorenz, 22, formerly of Manitowish, Wis., and Harry Dwyer, 27, of Digby County, Nova Scotia.

Clanking at their torn and bloodied cowboy regalia, Sheriff R. G. Francy said:

"They hadn't ever been in the cow country until five or six weeks ago, and from what Lorenz says he has lived in Brooklyn since 1935."

The two boarded the train at El Paso about midnight.

As the train approached Mt. Smith, one of them drew a gun and forced Conductor W. M. Holmway to the front of the train, where the other robber waited. Brakeman Jim Veisr was added under compulsion of a pointed pistol.

"The fellow pulled a gun on me when I came into the day coach," the Conductor said afterward.

"I thought he was drunk. I tried to kid him out of it. I didn't think it was a holdup, and besides I was afraid that gun was going off when that amateur's hands started shaking."

"Quit your kidding, I told him. The robber said he wasn't kidding and showed the gun into my stomach and said it was a holdup. He told me to raise my hands and backed me into the head end of the car."

When he got me into the head of the car a woman stepped out of the dressing room. The bandit's hands were already shaking, and when he saw the woman he darn near jumped out of his skin. He didn't know anything about hand-
