Spencer-Dickason Wedding

A wedding of wide interest took place in Centenary-Queen Square United Church on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Miss Rosalie Maud Dickason, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Olive Dickason, Carleton Street, became the bride of Gerald Read Spencer, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Spencer, Douglas Avenue, Rev. Arthur Organ, the minister, officiating, assisted by Rev. Dr. A. S. Rogers of Oxford, N.S.

The church was beautifully decorated with pink and white gladioli and snapdragons, and the pews reserved for the invited guests were marked with sweetheart roses and white satin bows. Mrs. F. Lansdowne Belyea presided at the organ and played for the professional "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin." During the signing of the register Mrs. Belyea played as an organ solo, "Romance" by Rubenstein. The recessional was Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Austin C. Parker, as matron of honor, and Gordon Spencer was his brother's groomsmen. The ushers were Sub-Lieutenant Gerald Elkin of Montreal, Clair Gilmour and Gerald T. Emerson.

Given in marriage by her father, the youthful bride made a charming picture in her white Joan Adams model gown which had a long bodice of Duchess lace finished at the hipline with petal applique. The very full skirt of double mousseline de soie fell gracefully to a mohair hem. The long fitted sleeves finished in points over her hands and she wore a hat, in flower effect of white carnations, finished with braided hand and loops of white velvet. Her ornament was a single strand of pearls which had belonged to her mother. Her bouquet was of Rapture roses and white bouvardia.

Mrs. Parker was wearing a gown of Chantilly lace in honey-dee shade over taffeta fashioned on similar lines to that of the bride. Her hat was a Pegge model to match her gown of braided grosgrain ribbon, in floral effect. She carried a bouquet of Johanna's and Token roses, and snapdragons.

Mrs. Dickason, mother of the bride, wore a redingote dress of Niagara blue crepe, the coat being semi-fitted, with trepunto embroidery trim. Her hat was of navy shantung straw and she wore navy accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses and bouvardia.

Mrs. Spencer, mother of the groom, was wearing a navy blue dress and redingote, the latter trimmed with ecor lace. Her navy blue hat had roses and forget-me-not floral trim, and her corsage was of pink roses and maidenhair fern.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 47 Carleton Street. The table in the diningroom had for adornment a large silver bowl of Madonna lilies and roses, and silver vases containing similar flowers. The material and window ledges were also banked with roses and snapdragons.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Spencer left by motor for Montreal and Ottawa and on their return will reside at 260 Germain Street. For travelling the bride chose a crepe dress of Angeline blue wool and a matching redingote with pockets trimmed with quilting. Her Georgeotte model hat was of blue felt trimmed with a brown veil, and she wore alligator pumps and carried an alligator bag. Her other accessories were brown.

The bride is a graduate of Macdonald College, St. Anne de Bellevue, Que., and Mount Allison University's. The groom is a graduate of Rethsaye Collegiate School and Mount Allison University, Sackville.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. G. J. Truefman of Sackville; Rev. Dr. J. MacFarlane of St. John's; Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Rogers, Oxford, N.S.; Miss Phyllis Dykeman, Toronto; Miss K. Emery, Montreal; George Melch, Toronto; Miss Ruth Mitchell, Woodstock; Henry Blanchard, Albert; Lieutenant and Mrs. Robert Likely, Moncton; Major R. McAlpine and Lieutenant Arthur deForest of Aldershot, N.S., and Miss Roberta Hill of Charlottetown.

Newsmen Sailed Open Boat In Dangerous Waters

(Batting to keep alive to tell the story of the German attack in Yugoslavia, four war correspondents took to sea in an open boat although they knew nothing about navigation. Robert St. John of The Associated Press tells of their perils.)

It was just a dirty, sooty fishing boat with a piece of canvas they called a sail and four cracked oars and a little outboard motor that worked all right if the sea was calm and there was no rain. There was room in the bottom for our typewriters and a couple of knapsacks, and for a lot more supplies than we were able to get.

Mine Spotting Difficult... Mine spotting was difficult because the water of the Adriatic is phosphorescent. The waves have a strange light, almost as though they were charged with millions of electric rays.

Plenty Liquid Supplies... The liquid supplies were more than adequate to begin with for some reason the Yugoslavs were perfectly willing to sell us all the bottled goods we could pay for.

A Close Call... A closer call was when an Italian convoy hove in sight. A big oil tanker and an 8,000-ton transport sailed by, but an Italian destroyer conveying the minesweeper around us suspiciously.

Met by Crowd—With Rifles... There was a crowd on the shore of Corfu to greet us. But as we got close we saw that they had rifles, and these rifles all pointed seaward.

Navigation a Big Problem... Navigation was our chief problem. We had no sea charts, but we did have a few automobile road maps of the coast line.

Helped HUSBAND IN LONG CAREER... LONDON, July 28.—(CP)— Wife of the man who developed radiocollene, Mrs. R. A. Watson Wait, wants to join the Women's Auxiliary Air Force so that she can put into practice some of the things she learned from her husband.

AUBURN NOTES... Mr. Francis Curran has returned home after visiting relatives in Auburn.

Holiday Appeal is Made for Queen's Canadian Fund

"We Might Be Under the Same Stress as Londoners"

A striking appeal for support through the holiday period for the Queen's Canadian Fund is published in the King's County Record, Sussex, N.B.

To this appeal the Directors of the Fund give an earnest endorsement. They feel that the King's County Record makes a case which should carry conviction to holiday-makers all through the Dominion.

"It is hoped that the thoughts of the holidays will not drive out of the minds of residents of Sussex and the country the need of those who get no holidays; and, indeed, who do not think of holidays while the battle rages."

Henry Ford Sees prosperity After war... DETROIT, July 28.—(AP)—Henry Ford, who will be 78 on Wednesday, believes that out of the war now affecting most of the world's peoples will come an era "filled with opportunity for everybody who can stop looking backward, face about and go forward."
