BOTTOMLEY FREED AFTER FIVE YEARS

Villagers Decorate for His Return Home—Will Try to Stage Come-Back.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The gate to Maidstone prison swung wide today for Horatio Bottomley, founder and formerly editor of the popular London weekly, "John Bull", Member of Parliament and violent critic of the United States, who has just completed five years of his seven-year sentence for theft of funds of the Victory Bond Club. To avoid the demonstration planned by many of his friends for the 67-year-old prisoner on his release, prison authorities let him go a week earlier than anticipated. Bottomley is in excellent health and eager to try a comeback. According to friends, his plans are laid on the scale of his old magnificence.

When Bottomley arrived at his home at Dicker, near Eastbourne, by motor this morning, he was greeted affectionately by his wife and servants. An ex-laborer on his farm, who was nearby when he alighted from the automobile, spread the news of the return of Bottomley, who is squire of the village.

Villagers immediately suspended work, hung flags from their houses and stood in clusters about Bottomley's mansion. As the news spread through the neighborhood, rubber-neck wagons full of the curious, began to converge on the Bottomley home.

Bottomley, however, received only a few callers. To one he said: "It has been a terrible experience, but I am so certain of rehabilitation that I would not have missed it. It has taught me much of life. I never felt fitter."

The ex-editor has written a book, entitled "My Life as Convict Number Thirteen." It is understood that he intends launching again into the publishing business. He has received hundreds of invitations to lecture on his prison experiences as well as many offers to go on the stage.

The village constable interviewed Bottomley soon after his arrival, as Bottomley will have to report to the police once a month during the unexpired two years of his seven-year sentence.

Bottomley takes the same pride in his personal appearance as of old, and is said to look ten years younger than when he entered prison. Today he was dressed in a natty gray suit, with soft gray hat to match, and the car in which he arrived was the last word in luxury.

Blood money claims of German princes

(By British United Press)

BERLIN, Aug. 1. — Emergency legislation passed when Germany became a Republic, to debar members of former ruling houses—prices, princelings and other privileged personalities claims against the States from whose ruler-ship they were deposed, has just expired.

If this legislation is not continued several of the German States will be faced with demands for sums, not merely enormous in themselves, but based on "rights" of the most grotesque character. Here is one example.

The princely house of Hesse demands a yearly income of over $150,000 as a commutation for the annexation by Prussia in 1866 of the Hessian privy purse.

The origin of the privy purse was nothing less—or more— that the so-called "blood-money" which England paid to the house of Hesse for the hire of mercenaries to serve against America in the War of Independence.

Fare more grotesque, however, are several claims based on mediaeval privileges; that is to say, going back to the days of serfdom.

For instance, any girl wishing to marry a man who was not one of her overlord's "subjects", had to pay for the privilege.

Another "right" on which claims are based is that under which the "subjects" of the lords of the manors had to contribute in kind to the marriage downies of the latters' sons and daughters, the compulsory gift usually taking the form of poultry or grain.

Unless the legislation which debars their claim is renewed by the Reichstag, they will probably succeed.

Outside Fur Dealers Will Have Their Taxes Doubled

(Canadian Press)

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 1. — Because of serious competition by fur dealers with their places of business outside the Province of Quebec, the Provincial Government has decided to double the yearly tax paid by the dealers resident outside Quebec who come here to buy or sell furs. This morning His Honor the Lieutenant Governor signed an order-in-council providing that the license be raised to $200 per year.

It is not the desire of the government to completely forbid fur merchants of other provinces and countries from coming here to do business but it is felt that it ought to be the policy of the government to give the fur dealers of this province a greater amount of protection from outside competition.

AIMEE'S MOTHER MAY NOW REVIVE KIDNAP INCIDENT

LOS ANGELES, August 1. —The red haired, comely Aimee Semple McPherson, whose business is religion of hard and fast tenets, and whose followers are legion, to-day faced possibility of another siege with the courts.

Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, Mrs. McPherson's mother, and aid in the work of Angelus Temple, made the threat because she did not like the way her daughter had treated her.

The older woman not only said she planned to take their difficulties to court, but she added the court might care to inquire further into the famous Carmel-by-the-Sea incident which first brought the woman evangelist national renown.

Mrs. Kennedy, herself, said she wanted to know what, if anything, her daughter had kept from her in accounting for her disappearance last year with a story of being kidnapped and carried into the desert.

While Mrs. Kennedy believed until recently that "sister told the truth", she is beginning to wonder whether some of the circumstances of Mrs. McPherson's kidnapping story are not incongruous.

Chamberlin Lands At Long Island Flying Field

(Canadian Press)

NEW YORK, N. Y., August 1. — The United States lines reported at 10 o'clock this morning that Clarence Chamberlin has alighted at Curtiss Field. After taking off from the deck of the liner Leviathian off Fire Island at 8.40 Chamberlin had intended to fly to Peterboro, N. J., but fog caused him to change his mind and land at the Long Island Flying Field.

Lloyd George Declares Conference Is Fiasco

(Canadian Press)

CAMBRIDGE, England, Aug. 1.—The Geneva conference has been conducted to an inevitable fiasco, declared former Premier Lloyd George, speaking at the Liberal summer school here today. He said he hardly cared to dwell on the possible effects of failure of Great Britain to come to terms with the United States on a shipbuilding program, but he hoped it would not be the beginning of rivalry which would alienate the two great nations "on whose goodwill and co-operation the peace of the world depends."

Mount Vesuvius In Violent Eruption

NAPLES, Aug. 1.—In the throes of its most violent eruption in 12 years, Mount Vesuvius yesterday hurled hundreds of tons of incandescent fragments far into the air, while a huge column of lava, often nearly filling the inner crate began to creep over the edge into "the Valley of Hell" towards the Bay of Naples. Although Professor Alessandro Malladra, head of the observatory renewed assurances that there was no imminent danger, part of the populations of the towns of Torre Annunsiata and Torre Delgreco and residents of the region lying below the valley began to make preparations for a quick flight to Naples should the column of lava continue its down-

Baldwin Sets New Fashion At Club Luncheon

(Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 1.—Premier Baldwin today set a new fashion. He appeared at the Canadian Club lunch wearing a lounge suit and light fawn vest. But it was hot, very hot. Mr. Baldwin stood it for a few minutes and then without ado took off his coat and hung it on the back of his chair. The crowd cheered. Mr. Balwin beamed his acknowledgement. One by one, down the line, the guests followed suit. Mayor Martin hesitated, but the cheering crowd insisted. He was helped out of his morning coat and that too went on the back of the chair. He leaned back. Clouds of smoke rose in the air. The Prime Minister of Great Britain spoke in his shirt sleeves.

Memories of Famous Palmist

(By British United Press)

LONDON, Aug. 1.—If the line of life which palmists study in the hands of their subjects bend outwards towards the opposite side of the palm, that person will end his days in a far-off land. So says "Cherio" the famous palmist, who describes how he predicted exile for Oscar Wilde, when his hands were passed through a curtain for his examination.

That was the night when Wilde had produced a successful play and there was a shout of ironical laughter when "Cherio" pronounced, "The left hand is the hand of a king who will send himself into a king who will send himself into exile and die in a strange land alone."

King Edward VII, when Prince of Wales, once had his hand read by Cheiro.

"I had no idea who my client was, as he was seated behind a curtain, but I just mentioned some of the most important dates in his life, when suddenly the curtain fell—and I was face to face with his Royal Highness.

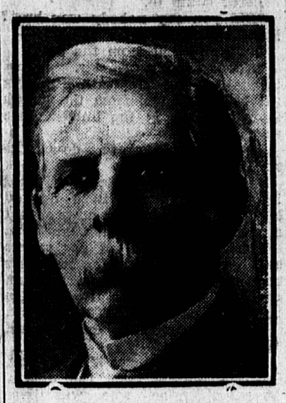
"In his own peculiarly charming way, he begged me not to be discomposed, and we then entered upon a long conversation upon the line of life. That was in 1891. He mentioned that he had noted very particularly that in the hand of his beloved eldest son, the Duke of Clarence, the life line was linked or broken into small fragments.

"I said I could not help regarding this as an unfavorable sign. At the time there was no suspicion that the second heir to the throne was delicate, but on January 14, the following year, he passed away after a short illness."

Cheiro read the palms of the King of Italy, and of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain. He advised Mr. Chamberlin to guard against overstrain as there were clear indications of a sudden collapse from mental overstrain, which afterwards struck him down at the zenith of his Tariff Reform campaign.

"Mr. Chamberlin said to me: 'I am very anxious about the career of my son Austen. If I obtain a print of his hand will you read it for me?' I agreed. In due course it arrived, and I saw the father. I explained broadly the indications upon the hand of the son as follows:

"He will fill some of the highest positions in parliamentary life. It appears to me that the zenith of his career will be in 1925. In that year he will secure a great international triumph; he one day will be leader in the House of Commons. These predictions were written down by Mr. Chamberlin and were found carefully treasured at the time of his death."



Hon. Haughton Lennox of the supreme Court of Ontario, who died recently after a short illness. Born in 1850, he was called to the Bar in 1878, was chairman of the Dominion Government Railway committee in 1911 and was elevated to the bench the following year.

Fight on Cancer Slowly Progresses

LONDON, Aug. 1. —Extraordinary moving picture films showing the growth of cancer cells were mentioned in the report submitted to the annual meeting of the British Empire Cancer Campaign at the House of Lords.

"The films," writes the "Daily News" Medical Correspondent, "resemble those of a flower unfolding.

"Perhaps we are on the eve of great discoveries that will do away with the present methods of treatment—X-rays, surgery, lead and radium. At any moment a weak spot may be found and a breakthrough may occur.

"Meanwhile steady progress is being made in the capture of outposts."

Hopeful Tendency

The "concentrated attack which is being made on the cancer problem from many different angles," was referred to by Sir Thomas Horder at the meeting. Although the campaign was far from the point at which it could even pause in its efforts, said Sir Thomas, there was apparent a more hopeful tendency in recent research than had been the case before.

In studying the growth of living cancer cells by moving pictures the cells must be kept in a special container to abolish the vibration of passing traffic, which would spoil the photographs.

This container is placed on a concrete bet, which is in turn placed on layers of sorbo sponge, resting on a large block of concrete let into the ground. The whole structure is isolated from the floor of the room in which the photographs are taken.

Two Day Films

Over the top of the observation incubator is a moving picture camera. The mechanism for opening and closing the shutter and for turning the film around once is all controlled by means of an electric clock. Photographs can be taken at intervals of 10 seconds, 30 seconds or one minute. The photographs are taken over a period of time up to two days. In order to show the result on a moving-picture screen the film must of necessity speed up as much as 960 times.

Though all the blood-tests suggested have so far been found wanting, much is hoped from Dr. Lumsden's work on natural and acquired resistence to the disease, of which Lord Cave says, in his preface to the report: "If these researches can be confirmed, it is obvious that they may prove to be of outstanding importance in connection with the problem."

Work On Hudson Bay Line Is Progressing

(Canadian Press)

LIMESTONE RIVER, Man., Aug. 1. —The rail trip of Hon. Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways, and his party of experts which will inspect the terminal developments at Port Nelson and Fort Churchill ended here Saturday.

Work of reconditioning the Hudson Bay line is progressing rapidly. The road to Mile 214 is approaching excellent shape and time equivalent to that on the trans-ontinental line of the government railway, was made over the stretches of road. Fifteen hundred men are employed in the task of getting the railway in first class condition, while thirteen locomotives and three shovels are bringing in construction material and clearing the right-of-way.

Since May, 1926, 600.000 ties have been replaced and millions of feet of timber brought in for building operations and bridge work. Thirty miles of new track have been laid at the present rail terminal and the main line extended. Two modern engine terminals have been completed at the Pas and Dowden and 650.000 yards of excavation work undertaken to lift sunken road beds.

All agricultural and experimental stations along the railway report favorable results with the tests. Wheat and potatoes have progressed beyond fondest expectations.

Rickard Gets Permission To Stage Fight In Chicago

(Canadian Press)

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 1. —The southpark board today voted 4 to 1 to permit Tex Rickard to stage the Tunney-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight in Soldier's Field, September 15th. Rickard had agreed to give the board $100,000 for the use of the field, build the seats and stand all other expenses. He also agreed to limit the price from $40 to $5, waiving a demand for a $50 to $6. Rickard wants to use the field on Sept. 15th, and in the event of rain, stage the fight the following night.

Bishop Tells Of His Experiences

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Bishop Manning of New York, during his recent visit to London told a number of stories of his experiences which vastly amused his English colleagues.

Bishop Manning said that he once was invited by a negro preacher to speak at his church. After a lengthy peroration, the colored clergyman introduced him to the congregation as a "Sounding Brass and a Tinkling Cymbal."

At another time, the Bishop recalled that a woman disagreed with something he had said in the pulpit. She waited for him after church and said to him hotly: "I am a christian woman, which it is evident you are not."

Marketing Board Did Tremendous Work

LONDON, Aug. 1—As a document of Empire interest the first report of the Empire Marketing Board is almost as important as the report of the 1926 Imperial Conference.

Where the Imperial Conference report was political, the Marketing Board's report is economic. It is really Part Two of the record of the attempt to combine the autonomy of the parts of the Empire with the unity of the whole.

The Empire Marketing Board is the executive organ of the Imperial Economic Committee and thus an essential part of the new and experimental machinery which is promoting the unity of the Empire. It is endeavoring to do for the trade of the Empire what the committee of Imperial Defence does for its military and Naval protection.

It was set up in May, 1926 with capital of $5,000,000 set aside by the Imperial Government. British taxpayers have been gratified to find that the utility of the board's work has become so well known as to attract to this amount another $1,150,000, which has been contributed by such agencies as the Rockefeller Institute, the Empire Cotton Growing Corporation, and various Dominion Governments.

The Board's most conspicuous work of course is its advertising of Empire produce. But behind the scenes the Board is doing very valuable work in raising the productivity and quality of Empire goods. Thus it is conducting at Farnham, an attempt to fight plant parasites with insect parasites; it is grappling with the Empire-wide problem of lack of mineral content in otherwise perfect pastures, it has saved thousands of pounds by the single discovery that apples must have air in transit, and that the pests which destroy raisins are themselves destroyable.

Coming to its most obvious work —publicity—the Board has met with criticism. But the criticisms are groundless. Only about 15 percent. of the Board's expenditures is devoted to single parts of the Empire. The rest is devoted to objects which will benefit indiscriminately all parts of the Empire. The Board has actually discovered a way in which the state can benefit industry without exciting the prejudices (or the jealousy of one part of the Empire against another, or even of one firm against another.

The effect of the publicity campaign, to which the example of the King and Queen in ordering a Christmas pudding of Empire ingredients has been a great encouragement, has been that in certain lines of Empire goods there has been an actual shortage, and the Board is preparing a series of seasonal menus so as to protect quality from undue or untimely demand.

Baldwin Will Celebrate 60th Birthday

(Special to the Guardian)

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 1. — Premier Baldwin will celebrate his sixtieth birthday in Ottawa on Wednesday. He comes to the Canadian capital by special invitation of the Prime Minister, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. His own Diamond Jubilee and the Diamond Jubilee of Canada by a happy coincidence occur in the same year.

Mr. Baldwin bears hearty greetings and cordial good wishes from the mother land to the Great dominion which has been built on this continent by men of British and French origin, and it is his earnest prayer that Canada will march forward in accordance with the highest traditions of these two great places.

While no official intimation has been forming, it is regarded as altogether probable that the Canadian Government will pay special honor to the British Premier upon the occasion of his birthday.

Dog amock in School playground

(By British United Press)

LONDON, Aug. 1.— Nineteen children, two teachers and a policeman were bitten by a dog which rank amok in the playground at the Priory Girls' School, Worksop, the other day. The policeman caught the dog after wading through the River Ryton in pursuit.

When the girls were playing in the school grounds, a woman with a dog of the retriever type came in through an old cemtery adjoining.

The dog flew at one of the girls and bit her, and the woman, apparently frightened, dropped the leash.

The dog then ran wild and rushed among the children snapping right and left. The girls screamed and fled and several fell in faints.

Teachers did all they could to frighten the beast away, but two of them were attacked. Mrs. D'arcy, wife of the Vicar of Worksop, made a blow at it with a stick, but it evaded her, and several men employed near by came to their assistance.

The dog dodged them and continued its attack on the girls.

It was then that the policemen arrived, and the dog went for him at once, biting him through the trouser-leg, but he knocked it down with his truncheon.

The animal quickly got up again, however, and got over the wall into the River Ryton, which flows beside the school grounds.

The policeman clambered over the wall in pursuit, splashed across the shallow river, caught the dog by the leash, and stunned it.

QUEEN MARIE MAY SOON JOIN NUNS' RETREAT

Has Given Herself Up Completely to Religion — Ferdinand Also Became Intensely Pious in last Months of Life.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 1.—Queen Marie, who since King Ferdinand's death has given herself up completely to religion, may soon join a convent, her friends believe.

Ever since the Queen came to Rumania 35 years ago, she has been fascinated by the old Rumanian monasteries and convents, which are among the most picturesque in Europe, and is familiar with their history, architecture and decorations.

There is a pretty sixteenth century convent near the Queen's castle in Bran, in the bosom of the Carpathian Mountains, where ever since King Ferdinand's illness a year ago she has spent much time in meditation, prayer and communion with the resident nuns.

Now that she must yield the throne and sovereign rights to the regency, some of the Queen's friends predict that soon she will join the nuns in this quiet sanctuary, in memory of her dead spouse. He himself, during the last months of his life, became intensely pious, placing all faith in God, when medical science failed to help him.

Queen Marie, who inherits the piety of her Russian forbears, frequently has said that relief and consolation from the ills and disappointments of this life can only be found in the cloistered peace of a convent far removed from the evil and restless outside world. The Rumanian peasantry, who are deeply attached to Queen Marie, have expressed strong opposition to her giving herself up to a life of seclusion in a convent. They do not wish to lose one who has always been a defender of their interests.

WANT 2-CENT INCREASE IN MAPLE SUGAR DUTY

OTTAWA, Ont., August 1. —Application has been made to the United States Tariff Board for an increase of two cents per pound on the maple sugar duty. The following information has been received by the Department of Trade and Commerce here from the Canadian Legation at Washington.

"In connection with the United States Tariff Commissioner's investigations on the difference in costs of production of maple sugar and maple syrup, public hearings which opened in Washington on July 19 were terminated on July 20, after the interests which had sought a re-adjustment in the present tariff rates of four cents per pound on both products had agreed unanimously in a proposal to the Tariff Commission for an increase of two cents per pound in the tariff on maple sugar, and that no changes be made in the existing rate of four cents per pound applicable to maple syrup.

"According to the cost studies prepared for the Commission, the combined operating and marketing costs (exclusive of container and transportation costs) of producing maple sugar is in Vermont State $1.25 per gallon and in the Province of Quebec, 95 cents per gallon (United States standard gallon is used in each case for comparison.)

"The Tariff Commission has set August 15 as the date for interested parties to exchange their briefs, and August 25 has been fixed as the date for the filing of briefs with the Commission."
