Golden Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

A more than ordinary event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, Flat River, on the evening of Monday, June 24th, when a very large number of relatives and friends assembled for the purpose of doing honor to Mr. McLean's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Angus McLean, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding day.

At the request of the friends of Mr. McLean's family, Rev. R. Hensley Stavert was asked to prepare an address of congratulation and to have a general oversight of the arrangements for the gathering and of the securing of a programme for the occasion.

In the earlier evening while the guests were assembling, some time was spent in music and social intercourse. Later the following program which occupied a good part of the remainder of the evening was well carried out:

Reading—Miss Marion McLennan.
Address of congratulation to Mr. and Mrs. McLean—Rev. R. Hensley Stavert.
Presentation of a beautiful chair to Mr. McLean—Mr. D. J. Riley.
Presentation of purse to Mrs. McLean—Rev. D. Lloyd Griffiths.

Reply to address by Mr. McLean in behalf of himself and Mrs. McLean.
Singing—"For They are, Jolly Good Fellows."
Addresses of Congratulation—Rev. D. Lloyd Griffiths, Captain Finlay McDougall and Mr. D. J. Riley.
Solo—Rev. D. Lloyd Griffiths. The words and music of this solo were especially prepared by Mr. Griffiths for the occasion, and so popular was this solo that Mr. Griffiths was requested to sing it again before the programme was brought to a close.

Instrumental music—Guitar and banjo—by Messrs. Charles Babbitt and Frank Ward.
Solo—F. vid Griffiths.
Gaelic Solo—Mr. Angus McLean.
Reading—Miss Marion McLennan.
Duet—Miss Florrie Beaton and Miss Marion McLennan.
Instrumental music—Messrs. Chas. Babbitt and Frank Ward.
Closing chorus by the choir.
A goodly number of the different selections were encored. Following the programme a bounteous repast was served by the ladies. Over one hundred guests sat down to the tables, which fairly groaned under the weight of the many tempting viands. It is worthy of note that among the many relatives and friends present on this occasion there were not only all of Mr. and Mrs. McLean's sons and daughters but also fifteen out of the sixteen grandchildren. Had it not been for an oversight, this one could also have been present.

Before dispersing a very hearty vote of thanks was extended to Miss Marion McLennan, to Rev. D. Lloyd Griffiths, to Mr. David Griffiths, to Messrs. Charles Babbitt and Frank Ward, to the ladies and to all others who had assisted in any way in making the entertainment such a success.
The vote of thanks was presented by Rev. R. Hensley Stavert and was graciously acknowledged by those of the various recipients who were present at that time. For certain reasons some of the performers had to leave at an early hour.
The very pleasant gathering was

HEALTH IN THE PALM OF YOUR HAND

It's as simple as that... getting rid of that headachy, half-well feeling that keeps so many people from enjoying life. This condition usually comes from some form of constipation. You can avoid it.

"The palm of your hand" refers to the way thousands of men and women take Eno's "Fruit Salt." They pour Eno into the palm of the hand and dash the pure, white powder into a glass of water... and drain the glass. It's a mighty healthful thing to do.

Eno quashes thirst, sweetens the stomach, neutralizes acids from foods. Eno frees the intestines from poisonous waste, cools the bloodstream, tones up the entire inner system. Eno is pleasant to take, gentle in action. Every effect of Eno's "Fruit Salt" is beneficial. Begin now to your health from the palm of your hand. Handy size 50c. Household size 85c.

then brought to a close by all joining hands and singing "Auld Lang Syne." The following is the address of congratulation:
Mr. and Mrs. Angus McLean,
Dear Friends:
To anyone who does any thinking whatever it is surely very evident that this is a restless world. Everything is in motion; nothing is at a standstill. We could not remain as we are, even if we would. No, time like an ever-rolling stream, is always bearing us on and ever on—never hesitating, never halting—on from this little life of life when for but a short season we each have pitched our tent—on down toward the vast depths of the great ocean of eternity.

But while all that has been said cannot be denied, yet it is not true that the real force of the facts here set forth does not at all times come home to the minds of most people as we would naturally suppose that it should.
No, it is only on some special occasion such as the beginning of a new year or the rolling around of a wedding anniversary, that we are brought to realize, as we should that these allotted years of ours have been gliding swiftly and silently by, never, never to return.

And as we assembled as thus we are this evening on this festive occasion, this fiftieth wedding anniversary, we cannot but pause briefly to do a little thinking along this line. We this evening can go in imagination back to the past and look into the days of fifty years ago. Now fifty years is a long time. Yes indeed, let me emphasize it, fifty years is a long time. Yet while this is very true, we would venture to believe that at this time, to our honoured guests, Mr. and Mrs. Angus McLean, this apparently long period of fifty years seems but a while. But be that as it will, the fact remains that these fifty years have gone by—yes, gone by forever.

In imagination then as we go back to these earlier days, we can see a certain young couple plighting their faith and truth to each other, vowing before God that they will stand by each other for better or for worse until that day shall roll around when death shall separate the one from the other.
A little later we can see them settled in a comfortable home taking up calmly and courageously all of the duties which belong to the different spheres of life, as we can see them making good along all lines.
At a somewhat later period we can see going out from that home a family of three sons and two daughters, all of whom have proven themselves to be worthy sons and daughters of a worthy father and a worthy mother.
And now this evening, as we thus look over all of these fifty years with their days of intermingled sunshine and shadow, and as we take note of all of the successes that this young couple of half-a-century ago have met with in the different spheres of life—in the home where love and harmony reigned supreme and out from which they have sent a noble family—in the community where both took a deep interest in all that pertained to its welfare and where both have always been held in the highest esteem—in the school where for forty-two years Mr. McLean served on the trustee board faithfully and well—and in the church where for forty-one years he graced the sacred office of the eldership; for fifty years he filled the office of Superintendent of the Sunday School, and for eighteen years he was treasurer of the Wood Islands congregation—in all of these different spheres of activity, having thus achieved great success, throughout all of these years, we one and all wish to extend to both Mr. and Mrs. McLean our heartiest congratulations—and with these hearty congratulations to couple our very best wishes for many years of continued success and happiness in the days which are yet before them.
And now in bidding you farewell, we all would join in saying to you as a parting word—"May the Lord bless you and keep you; may the Lord continue to make His face shine upon you; may the Lord lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace."
Signed on behalf of your many friends.

Ethiopia Bears National Glory From Many Wars

(By The Canadian Press)

With Italy pressing for the control of Ethiopia it is recalled history relates that just 2,800 years ago—about the middle of the eighth century B. C.—the ancient kingdom of Ethiopia conquered and ruled the fertile land of Egypt, thus turning the tables on the country, against whose people she had suffered prior to the 11th century B. C. when she gained her independence.

The next most prosperous and important period in Ethiopian history was that between the introduction of Christianity in the fourth century A. D. and the conquest of Egypt by the Mohammedans in the middle of the seventh century. Ethiopians possessed a rich territory, carried on a lucrative trade and had intercourse with India, Ceylon and the Greek Empire. After their expulsion from Arabia by the Mohammedans they lay practically forgotten by the outer world until the 15th century when Portuguese explorers and missionaries, seeking the fabled Christian kingdom of boundless wealth ruled by "Prester John," which they believed to be Ethiopia, settled there.

The fact that Ethiopia alone, of all the African peoples, accepted and retained a form of Christianity is no less remarkable today than it was to these explorers five centuries ago. Allegiance to the old Coptic faith or so-called "Alexandrian Church" against Catholicism, Protestantism and Mohammedanism has held firm throughout the centuries. The people as late as 1916 deposing the Emperor Lej Yasu, successor to Menelik II, or his leanings toward Mohammedanism.

The three centuries from the 18th to the 20th are mainly a record of warring tribes and states, with the rulers of the three divisions—Tigre (northern) Amhara (central) and Shoa (southern), striving against each other for the title of Negus Negusti (King of Kings). The most outstanding figure in this later period was Emperor Menelik II, who succeeded to the throne in 1889. Against him the British in 1897 were forced to resort to arms to effect the release of British and European consuls and missionaries whom he imprisoned when he received no acknowledgment of a letter of Queen Victoria's in 1885 regarding invading Egyptians. In 1898, defeated and discouraged, with his subjects in rebellion against his cruel and tyrannical rule, Theodore took his own life. An interesting fact is that his only legitimate son, Almayahu, was afterwards sent to England according to his father's wishes. He came to school at Rugby, but died at the age of 18 on Nov. 14, 1879, and is buried in St. George's Chapel, Windsor.

There were frequent wars with Egypt from 1872 to 1882, from which Ethiopia emerged victorious, and signed the Ucciali Treaty with Italy in 1889, making Ethiopia virtually an Italian protectorate signed by Menelik II, son of Theodore's immediate predecessor and grandson of Selahie Selassie, formerly ruler of Shoa, was repudiated by him a year later in repudiating to construct a dam at this spot. Although negotiations have been frequent nothing definite has yet been accomplished.

In 1906 was signed the Anglo-Italian agreement which is figuring so prominently in the present Italo-Ethiopian dispute. The three powers bound themselves to maintain "intact the integrity of Ethiopia" and "the political and territorial status quo," and in concert to safeguard their own interests if later were disturbed. Menelik, to whom the text was afterwards communicated, declared that the agreement must in no way limit his own sovereign rights. In 1923 Ethiopia, the only country in Africa neutral during the war, was admitted to the League of Nations, after having passed a decree making slavery punishable by death.
"Perpetual friendship" was vowed in an Italo-Abyssinian treaty signed at Addis Ababa in 1928, which provided for arbitration in all disputes arising between the two countries.
Halle Selassie II, the grand-nephew of Menelik II, succeeded the latter's daughter, Empress Waizera Zaiditu, in 1930. He claims direct descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba through their son Menelik, the first ruler of Ethiopia. In 1924, as Ras Tafari Makonnen, the present Emperor visited England and conferred with Prime Minister MacDonald concerning the Tsana project.

Brilliant Student Dies In Accident

MONTREAL, Aug. 28.—Word was received at McGill University today of the death of Allan B. Latham, M.A., brilliant graduate of McGill and only son of Prof. G. W. Latham, of the department of English. Professor Latham's son was killed in an accident which happened at 10 a. m. yesterday at Moravia, N.Y., the summer home of Professor Latham.

A winner of Moyses Travelling Scholarship which took him overseas for advanced study, Mr. Latham had an outstanding record of scholarship in his studies in economics and political science, majoring in two subjects, political science and German.
During his undergraduate studies he won the McKenzie scholarship. He obtained his B. A. degree with honors in 1926 and was awarded the governor's graduate fellowship in economics and political science. He continued his studies as a graduate student and at the end of one year was awarded his Master's degree in economics and political science and one of the Moyses Travelling Scholarships for study abroad.
Upon completion of his studies abroad he obtained an appointment at Williams College, in U. S. A. where he taught economics.
The news of his death came as a shock to the many friends of the family at McGill University. In addition to his parents, he is survived by a sister, now married and living in the United States.

Government Aid for Forest Fire Victims

FREDERICTON, N. B., Aug. 27.—Representation has been made to the federal government for financial assistance in the reestablishment of some 100 families in eastern Gloucester County who were left destitute by forest fires last week, Premier Dwyer said tonight.
"So complete has been the loss that governmental assistance, federal, provincial and municipal, must be forthcoming," the Premier stated. "Representations have already been made to the federal government for financial assistance, and I am confident of receiving the same generous response as was extended to the stricken areas of Saskatchewan where crops alone were destroyed, whereas in this province our inhabitants escaped only with their lives."
In reviewing conditions in the fire-stricken area, Premier Dwyer commended the New Brunswick division of the Canadian Red Cross Society for their ready assistance, and appealed to all charitable organizations throughout the province to follow their example.
