Masonic Supper At Port Hill
 Members of the Masonic Lodge at Port Hill were hosts at their annual goose supper to their wives and friends at their Lodge rooms. There were quite a number of privileged guests from Summerside present.
 Rev. Edwin White presided at the festive board and also at the program afterwards.
 The tables were very nicely decorated and the members did themselves proud in providing entertainment for their guests.

Excellent Double Bill At Capitol Summerside
 Two excellent pictures are on the bill of fare at the Capitol Theatre this week end and patrons are sure of a good laugh in "They Met in a Taxi" and "The Final Hour."
 "The Final Hour" is a powerful and dramatic story of a man who inspired by the love of a woman rises from poverty and despondency to the heights of his profession.
 Bellamy gives an unusually fine performance as John Vickery; a thoroughly believable characterization of a man who came back. Miss Churchill again reveals a sensitive histrionic talent which she adapts to her current role with excellent results.
 Direction of D. Ross Lederer is swift-paced and emotionally exciting. He receives able support from the fine cast of major players, among them Lina Basquette, John Gallaudet, Max Lawrence, George McKay and Elizabeth Risdon.
 "They Met in a Taxi" is a change from heavy drama to the light and airy escapade of one of the screens most entertaining quartet, Chester Morris, Fay Wray, Lionel Stander and Raymond Walburn.
 The story revolves about the colorful escapade of a beautiful dress model, posing as an escaping heiress-bridal, who turns out to be not a bride at all, but a girl accused of the theft of a valuable necklace.
 Among those whom Miss Wray involves in her strange adventure are Chester Morris, who is "picked" as Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bédoux, a newspaperman writing a society gossip column.
 "They Met in a Taxi" is farce melodrama and comedy agreeably concocted with just enough spice to keep every audience on its toes.

North Shore Hockey Gossip
 How about it Indian River? You certainly gave the other teams the necessary competition, and then some last year to make a successful league. Now we learn you are without an organizer. It would be a pity if you didn't enter a team this season because you have a fine bunch of boys out there. Good sports, with the "new" say die "Yankees" in hockey. If you do not enter, you will be kicking yourselves before the season is far gone and your followers will be all asking, why haven't you a team this year?
 The writer was talking to several of your boys this week and they are all anxious to have a team, but they have the same story: "We haven't any one to take over the reins. How about it Sid?" The boys need you, so why not help them out. We will be looking for developments out there shortly, so why put it off?

JAPS PLAN
 "Hindenburg line," roughly 30 miles west of the Japanese front and some 50 miles from Shanghai. Nanking is 25 to 150 miles beyond that line.
 As the war tides rolled westward Shanghai counted its losses, estimates of military casualties ran as high as 100,000 killed and wounded for both armies. Thousands of noncombatants had been killed by airbombs and shells, still more wounded. More than 1,000,000 Chinese had been made destitute refugees. Property losses from shellfire, bombing and conflagrations ran into hundreds of millions of dollars.
 Officials of the Shanghai municipal council—the British-American-Japanese-Chinese body that governs the International Settlement—began a campaign to root out anti-Japanese societies. Under its orders 600 Chinese coolies went through the settlement tearing down thousands of anti-Japanese placards.
 As a last gesture of defiance to the conquerors numerous Chinese flags appeared in the settlement today, Chinese observing the birthday of Sun Yat-Sen, father of the Chinese Republic. But all around the Settlement fluttered the Rising Sun banners of Shanghai's new masters.

plans as a new approach to the Anglo-Italian understanding which is the cornerstone of Britain's peace policy. The Earl of Perth, the British Ambassador, met Count Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister, in Rome, while Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent foreign undersecretary, conferred in London with Count Grandi, the Italian ambassador.
 The visit of Viscount Halifax, Lord President of the Council, to Germany where he will see Hitler was regarded as an important diplomatic gesture to Germany.
 Informed sources said Lord Halifax was not likely to raise any specific questions in Berlin on his "private" visit next week and warned against too much optimism.
 Temporarily Shelved
 With the troublesome Spanish civil war intervention problem temporarily quiet and Britain and the Insurgents agreed on a commercial accord, the situation was believed by diplomats to be favorable for a new effort to European stabilization.
 A swiftly moving events included a decision to convene the Non-Intervention subcommittee next Tuesday, by which time, informed sources said, favorable replies might be forthcoming from the two factions in Spain on the plan to evacuate foreign troops.
 Anglo-Italian banking circles said the possibility of a British loan to Italy was being considered in connection with the current diplomatic discussions, but authoritative sources denied negotiations were underway.
 Evening newspapers played up the announcement that Lord Halifax and Chancellor Hitler may confer and the prospects of improved Anglo-Italian relations.
 The political correspondent of the Evening News hinted that Great Britain might be prepared to recognize the Italian conquest of Ethiopia provided Italy undertook on its part to halt anti-British propaganda in Egypt and Palestine, to accept Great Britain's insistence on the importance of unhindered communications through the Mediterranean.

Bedaux's Sale From N'rd For England
 (C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
 MONTREAL, Nov. 12—(W.R.)—Mrs. Charles E. Jones, whom the Montreal Star, "definitely identified" as Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bédoux, sailed today for England on the liner Duchess of Bedford.
 Tickets for "Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Jones and valet" were purchased only a short time before the liner sailed and steamship booking authorities said they knew the party only by the names given.
 The Star ship news reporter, however, said he had "definitely identified" the former host of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in France who was to have served as advisor to the former King on the planned visit to the United States.
 Passenger lists showed the state room "119" of the liner "vacant" but it was filled with baggage when visited by reporters, and a letter was found to have been booked by the "Jones" party. has decided to fill the centre position once more. Any time when the boys were down one last season, Coach Simms would yank a man and put Cooke on with orders to tie it up, and he usually complied.
 The boys are all welcoming George "Stub" Simms home, and wish him a pleasant vacation. Stub was very popular with all who knew him, and we wish him the same popularity in Pugwash, where he was transferred some-time ago.
 The frost is quietly settling in and we hope that those in charge have the surface in the rink ready for ice making.

Anti-Communist Pact Adherents Make China Bid?
 sions granted to "decadent" nations.
 After defeat of his troops at Shanghai, General Chiang must accept such "cooperation" or submit to military downfall, according to general opinion here.
 The present movement is held particularly opportune for presentation of the alternative to General Chiang who, it is said, has not completely closed the door to the mediation proposal attributed to Chancellor Hitler.
 The Japanese Government apparently is determined not to permit the Brussels Far Eastern conference to undertake such mediation.
 The six major peace conditions were outlined to Havas as follows:
 1. China's adherence to the Italo-German-Japanese anti-Communist pact.
 2. Maintenance of Nanking's nominal sovereignty over all China.
 3. Demilitarization of all Chinese provinces north of the Yellow River by a broad interpretation of the 1935 Sino-Japanese agreement which included abolition of local armies and consolidation of administrative autonomy.
 4. Withdrawal by Japan—as compensation for fulfillment of point three—of all her troops north of the Yellow River after a period of several years.
 5. Slight extension of the demilitarization of the Shanghai region provided in the agreement of 1932.
 6. Recognition by the Nanking Government of "the free disposition of the Mongol and Manchu minorities" which would entail de facto recognition of the independence of Manchoukuo and Japanese-controlled Inner Mongolia.
 At the same time Chinese adherence to the Anti-Communist pact would imply the following measures:
 1. The presence of Italian, German and Japanese advisers in the Nanking Government's diplomatic, economic and military services.
 2. Reorganization of the Chinese armies and the "anti-Communist defence corps", deprived of any offensive arms.
 3. Utilization of strategic bases in China by the anti-Communist powers.
 4. Economic cooperation between China, Japan and Italy.
 5. Elimination of "undesirable" foreign influences by "the recovery of China's integrity" from Anglo-French-Soviet "encroachments."
 Japanese authorities, Havas' informants said, could make the terms palatable to public opinion here by pointing out that China's adherence to the anti-Communist pact would mean Nanking's definite renunciation of anti-Japanese "agitation" and of support from Geneva, London and Moscow.
 "They added that General Chiang could present the conditions for his part, as a "moral victory" since it would link China with powerful nations. Germany and Italy, they pointed out, could prevent a Japanese "grab" of territory and also protect Japan from a Chinese change of heart.
 Although General Chiang has stated that the primary condition to a peaceful settlement is re-establishment of the status quo before the North China incident which precipitated the war these sources stressed that this status quo already comprised some demilitarization in North China and the Shanghai area.
 "What are you going to wear to the fancy dress party?"
 "I dunno," replied Mr. Cumrox.
 "I guess I'll go as a clown and then if I do something that makes the guests snicker maybe mother ain't the girls' I think I'm doing it a purpose."

conference and her denial of the applicability of the Nine-Power Treaty of 1922 under which it was convened were considered categorical and final. Her rejection was contained in a resolution which reached the conference through the Belgian Foreign Minister.
 "Tonight many delegates were asking: What is the United States Government prepared to do about the war in the Far East?"
 Delegates showed particular interest in the opening of the Washington Congress next Monday and speculated on chances Roosevelt would give.
 "The Japanese note was a reply to the conference's feeler of Nov. 6, when Japan was asked whether she would name envoys to discuss her war with China with representatives of "a smaller number of powers" than the 19 making up this conference.
 Japan declared her operations in China were in self-defence and were outside the scope of the Nine-Power Treaty—in which Japan and other powers undertook to respect China's territorial integrity.
 The consensus here was that Tokyo's reply indicated that the militant group was supreme in Japan. Italy's adherence last Saturday to the Japanese-German Anti-Communist Treaty also was believed to have strengthened Japan's determination to ignore the Nine-Power Treaty.

Economic Aid To China?
 Some move to help China defend herself against Japanese invasion by sending war material or opening credits seemed to be the course generally favored here.
 In British circles it was indicated that Foreign Secretary Eden planned to make a "strong speech" when the conference meets tomorrow.
