When purchasing materials for upholstering purpose, avoid long, loose threads on the surface. Select a close weave, preferably of smooth texture, and your furniture will wear longer.

Don't rub lard into flour with your hands when making pastry. Use a silver fork, which divides and mixes very quickly. This is easier than chopping lard in and saves using a chopping tray.

A rare visitor. A beautiful silver black fox which probably escaped from a ranch has been seen hereabouts ranging the woods and trotting along the highways.

"There are more things in Heaven and earth Horatios than are dreamt of in your philosophy."

What Horatio's philosophy was we know not but it is plainly hinted that it was deficient in some points. Even our best modern philosophy confesses itself incompetent to solve every question asked of it. The scientist will tell you many things about electricity for instance. He will define readily the term volt, he will tell you it means pressure and that ampere means rate of flow, that a volt multiplied by an empere equals one watt, and that 1,000 watts or a kilowatt equal 1 1-3 horsepower. This and much more he will tell you, but he will not presume to tell you what electricity is. And so will he confess his ignorance of many other things in nature, and as to the supernatural, the second-sight the occult, the mysteries of the invisible world, he will own up at once, if he is an honest man that he knows absolutely nothing. So great a man as Sir Walter Scott thought it not beneath his attention to bestow considerable thought to the study of the second sight and this is what he says "If force of evidence could authorize us to believe facts inconsistent with the general laws of nature, enough might be produced in favor of the existence of second sight." So no one need offer an apology for having an open mind on this subject and others of a like kind. But no one perhaps will pretend that these studies have a material, or monetary importance and still they may have a certain value if only to call forth the subtles powers of the intellect.

I humbly offer a case or two supplied directly by those who had the experience, and first consider this "A youth to fortune and to fame unknown," engaged in farm work fastened his horse securely with a good stout strong rope to a tree at noon hour. He then started towards the farm-house to have dinner; happening to look back he noticed the horse which he had left quietly eating his hay, tugging violently at the rope, which soon snapped in two with the strain. He went back to the animal, doubled the rope and again tied him securely, and went his way once more. He had gone but a few steps when he thought he would like to see how the horse would act the second time. With every symptom of extreme terror the beast was straining every nerve and sinew to gain his freedom which indeed he soon achieved by again severing the cords that bound his. Astounded the owner sought the cause. The animal had always been a quiet docile creature and apparently without fear of anything. His search for cause was absolutely futile. The matter remained a mystery, but to confirm the witchery of that tree the same man tied another of his horses the next year to the same tree with the same results. The mystery became still deeper and remains a mystery to this hour. This tree was one of many standing in a straight row. They have been lately cut down and all hauled away except this one tree which still lies where it fell. What there was about that tree to cause such terror to those two animals which never betrayed terror before or afterwards? Did they see an apparition of some kind only when tied to it? For once free, the fear was gone. If they saw nothing, dreadful which of their five senses convened the idea of horror or have they a sixth sense? Conjectures seem vain in the case. Other cases which readily occur to the mind might be given and some would make interesting reading. While some persons may consider such tales as the veriest nonsense and dismiss them all with a supercilious "pooh, pooh, there may be others who consider them proper food for thought and these not by any means the most benighted. At all events it is not nonsense that the phenomena above narrated were seen and noted well. We pass on to the more normal occurrences.

tituencies are defined in the Act by the various city wards which compose them. There are to be two Windsors—East and West—instead of one, the newly divided ridings taking in also the Walkerville and Sandwich sections of the Border Cities. There will be nine additional members in the new Legislature representing urban ridings, and two new members representing rural ridings, the latter South Cochrane and South York.

Ridings to Disappear.

Ten rural ridings will disappear. There were three Bruces; now there will be two, West Bruce being divided between North and South. Grey Centre is dropped, leaving Grey North and South. Huron Centre also goes—it seems to be tough sledding for the Centres. East Middlesex is taken in by the North and West (and the London city ridings.) Ssimcoe formerly boasted four rural seats in the Legislature, but now will have only three, the South and West Simcoes being amalgamated as Southwest. Wellington's three ridings become two—Northeast and Southeast of East, South and West. Durham, Northumberland and Norfolk, which formerly had each two seats in the House, are now reduced to one each. Lennox becomes merged with Frontenac.

Changes to City Names.

"Brantford" rises out of the former two Brant county seats and they are now named "Brantford" and "Brant County." There will also be "Peterborough City" and "Peterborough County" instead of Peterborough East and West.

As revised, the Ontario provincial electoral districts for the next election will be listed as follows:

Addington, Algoma.

Brant County, Brantford, Brockville, Bruce North, Bruce South.

Carleton, Cochrane North, Cochrane South.

Dufferin, Dundas, Durham.

Misses Nellie, Connie and Augusto McIntyre motored to Charlottetown Saturday on return to Boston. These young ladies have been spending the summer with their father, Mr. Wallace McIntyre, Savage Harbor. On Thursday night a number of their friends gathered and a delightful evening was spent, marred only by saying "farewell."

The body of Mr. Frank Young, son of Charles Young, Red Point, was brought to Souris Tuesday evening, and conveyed to his former home. Mr. Young was killed in an accident in Derry, N.H., when the blocking of a gasoline tank in some manner gave way and the tank fell on his skull, death being almost instantaneous. The flowers accompanying the remains wer magnificent. Funeral will be held Friday, undertaker T. L. Dingwell in charge.

The marriage of Mr. W. Edgar Francis, son of Mr. John Francis, Fortune, and Miss Ruby Ching, daughter of the late Benj. Ching, Elmira, took place in Souris Wednesday, Oct. 6th, Rev. E. Lockhart performing the ceremony. The bridal party had dinner at the Cox Hotel, leaving immediately after on a motor trip, and returning Saturday evening to Fortune. A chiviari party called on them later and a most delightful serenade was the result. Mr. Francis and bride greeted the callers and treated all, after which all dispersed to their homes singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." Mr. and Mrs. Francis were the recipients of a number of beautiful presents.

On Friday evening a delightful dance was given by Mr. and Mrs. Allan Morrison, Mt. Stewart, in honor of their son, George, and wife, Boston, who spent the summer with them, and are returning next week. A large number of guests were present, and music for the evening was furnished by Mr. Larry Smith, in his own inimitable style. (Mr. Smith won second place in the recent contest at the Strand July 12th). At twelve o'clock a very toothsome lunch was partaken of by all, after which dancing was resumed for another hour, and then farewells were exchanged as the "morning after the night before" was coming, and potato digging must not be neglected.

To visitors approaching Souris by the Sea from the western entrance a very picturesque view is enfolded—the placid winding river on the one hand and the lapping waves on the other. Driving farther along the curving beach road, birds such as gulls and cranes may be seen flying overhead, and in the distance to the right a sail may be descried—next the breakwater, the Range Light and the white lighthouse looming up, and glancing to the left one notices the red brick Convent and R. C. Church standing out conspicuously on the elevated ground. If one happens to be coming in to the town about train time—the "snorting monster" may just be lengthening around the curved track, or if by chance one should arrive at sunset the beauty of all is enhanced. At night also,—that is a moonlight night—the effect is wonderful for though the sights mentioned may not be seen—still, the water with the reflection of the moonlight, the electric lights of the town, the Red Range Light on the breakwater and the revolving light sending out its welcome (to mariners) shafts, all combine to make a most wonderful picture. Small wonder indeed that tourists are attracted, and that those who spend one summer in Souris will spend many.

WHO WON THE MOVIE CHANNEL SWIM?

WIN New 1927 Chevrolet Coach $1800.00 IN PRIZES

It is said that the New York Standard Newspaper offered a prize of $50,000 for a swimming race across the English Channel, open to women Moving Picture stars only. Many entered the race. They started on the French coast and finished at Dover, England. The race was finished at night and the results kept secret. Radio Broadcasting Station WPLG broadcast the results but the operator just to have some fun and keep the interested multitudes in suspense, announced the names of the first seven in a funny way. Instead of giving out their right names, he jumbled up the letters of their names so that they sounded ridiculous. For instance he gave number 5 as "Nan grows o sail" instead of Gloria Swanson, and he told his radio audience to put the letters of each name in their proper order and they would spell the names of each of the first seven to land at Dover. Underneath the pictures above are the jumbled names of the movie stars just as the radio announcer gave them. If you can put the letters in their right order you will have the names of the seven stars. See if you can do it. It is not easy, but patience and diligence will help you. Below is printed the names of all of the famous movie stars who swam in the race. The names of the seven shown above are amongst these.

Puzzle out the results if you can and write down all the stars' names on a piece of paper in the order in which they finished the race and send it to compete for the big prizes.
