To Stop Licenses For Sugar Imports

Sufficient for Domestic Use if Care is Exercised by Customers.

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—No more licenses for export of sugar from Canada are being issued, and old contracts which called for the shipment of sugar to the United States have been cancelled by the Canadian Trade Commission, it was learned this morning. Export of sugar along the border points, which was permitted to some extent in the past, has also been stopped, despite the many hundreds of requests for sugar being received by the Trade Commission.

At the offices of the Commission this morning it was stated that if care is exercised by the consumers, there is sufficient sugar in Canada for domestic use, provided there are no strikes or transportation tie-ups. Canada is one of the best situated countries of the world in this respect, it was stated, and in addition to the 1919 requirements being safeguarded, refineries in Canada have advised the Commission that the needs of 1920 now appear to be well covered in regard to raw material.

Files Crowded With Sugar Orders

All wholesale grocers report an inability to catch up with their sugar orders as they have more orders on their files than they can fill. They have more orders on their books than ever before, and the best they can do is to try to keep their customers going with a little sugar from day to day and thereby give each one a little. It is impossible for them to deliver as formerly when they could fill 10 or 20 barrel orders without difficulty. It is now a case of sending a barrel or two to each customer to keep the trade supplied. The situation does not seem to be easing up to any extent. Buyers have been here recently from Boston endeavoring to buy sugar for the United States, but we understand were unsuccessful in their efforts.—Maritime Merchant.

California Has Lots of Oranges to Market

More oranges remain to be shipped from California during the present crop year than at the same date in any previous year, according to the California Fruit Growers' Exchange. These oranges are of the popular Valencia variety, which ripens in the summer and fall months. The trade can count on a liberal supply of California Valencias to brighten up their fruit display until the time the new crop of navel oranges is available. Strikes and a continual shortage of refrigerator cars during the past few months have hampered usual shipments, and it has been impossible for the growers to pick and ship as many oranges lately as they desired to for this season. California's Valencia crop is increasing steadily and rapidly because of new acreage coming into bearing, but no difficulty has been encountered in marketing these increased crops, as the public's appetite for good oranges seems boundless.
