Gene Stratton-Porter's "Girl Of The Limberlost" At The Prince Edward

Gene Stratton-Porter's famous novel of the Indiana swamplands, "A Girl of the Limberlost," is the current attraction at the Prince Edward Theatre, with the charming demure Marian Marsh in the title role, and presented in co-operation with the Knights of Columbus.

This screen version of the book which has been read by millions, as directed by Christy Cabanne follows very closely the lives of the Comstock and Sinton as depicted by Miss Porter in her classic.

The story deals with the struggles of Elinor Comstock to gain an education. Her strongest obstacle is the hatred of her mother who blames her for the death of her husband in the swamp adjoining their home.

Growing up in an atmosphere of hatred, there is one bright spot in her life, the love of "Uncle" Wesley and "Aunt" Margaret Sinton, their neighbors. The Sinton aid her in her efforts to gain an education by helping her with her moth collection which she sells for clothes and the money for tuition.

Miss Marsh made her debut on the screen about three years ago when she portrayed Tribby opposite John Barrymore in "Swengally" and recently returned from England where she was starred in pictures by the British International company.

Louise Dresser, as Mrs. Comstock, her mother, gives one of the most stirring characterizations of her brilliant career on the stage and screen, while Ralph Morgan as "Uncle" Sinton, is splendid in his sympathetic role.

Other stars include Eddy, Henry B. Wallhall, Ed Nugent, Robert Ellis, Barbara Bedford, Betty Blythe, GIGI Parrish and Tommy Bupp complete the excellent supporting cast.

Lionel Barrymore and Alice Brady in "Should Ladies Meet" At The Capitol.

Brilliant dialogue carries Alice Brady through another flicker which opened at the Capitol yesterday for a three day run, and titled "Should Ladies Behave." With Lionel Barrymore as her husband and Mary Carlisle as their daughter, Alice Brady finds life is rather limited. It seems that their marriage was one of those May and December marriages, and when fate brings the famous artist Max to her home, she is ready to desert her family for love with the artist. Unfortunately her sister is also in love with the artist and in a few hours her young nineteen year old daughter is ready to fall in his arms. Here we have three women in love with one man who cannot say no. Lionel Barrymore is the gruff old husband with his garden, and of course the honors go to him and Alice Brady.

ADDRESS AT ROTARY YESTERDAY—Mr. R. H. Rogers delivered an excellent address on the League of Nations and its activities at the Rotary luncheon yesterday afternoon. The speaker referred to the constitution of the League and the 58 nations who have bound themselves by mutual agreement called the League Covenant, which was formulated by the delegates to the peace conference following the Great War chiefly on the initiative of President Wilson. The only one of the great nations now outside the League is the United States, but Japan and Germany have given notice of withdrawing and do not at present participate in the League's major activities. The speaker then reviewed the major achievements of the League during the past fifteen years in preventing war, maintaining peace, also its services to health and morals, in controlling epidemics, in fighting the opium traffic, the white slave traffic, etc. He said a very great service has been rendered to human welfare and civilization by the system of mandates. Though the League has failed to obtain just settlement of the Manchurian question between Japan and China, it boldly and emphatically reasserted every principle that was at stake and condemned Japan for her violation of them. Its integrity stands and its moral force is unabated. Past District Governor and Past President Walter S. Grant, presided yesterday. The guest was Mr. T. D. Phillips, of the Marine Department. On motion it was decided to accept the suggestion of the District Governor of the dates of the district conference in St. John's, Newfoundland, this year be changed to July 9, 10, and 11th.

NEW PILOT

Frederick from his normal restrictions as Minister of the Crown, the resigned Minister of Trade and Commerce and Chairman of the probe, declared he would now be in a position to give even better service to the causes which he had espoused. "I have no intention, whatsoever," said Mr. Stevens, "of dropping my advocacy of remedial measures both in the industrial and agricultural realms."

Telegrams from all over Canada pledging unwavering support had been received by him during the week-end, he stated in conversation. Many of these wires had come from local Conservative sources and from several business organizations.

Asked if he had received the letter of Premier R. B. Bennett accepting his resignation, Mr. Stevens said: "Although it was dated Oct. 26 (Friday) I received the letter Saturday evening (Oct. 27). In due course, a full reply will be made to that letter based upon the evidence, completely answering the allegations of inaccuracies in the pamphlet on my speech before the study club of Conservative members."

A general rearrangement of the portfolios has been under consideration for some time it was learned and Mr. Bennett may take this occasion with the retirement of Hon. H. H. Stevens to put changes into effect.

Departments which were heavy in former years have become much less onerous and others have grown in activity. Immigration is less, the railways and canals, minister regarded as so capable and aggressive as Hon. R. J. Manion would doubtless be called upon to head a heavier department in any rearrangement. Another department might be coupled with it such as Hon. Wesley Gordon has labor in addition to Immigration.

There has been divided opinion as to whether the activities of the several departments were divided to the best advantage. Many arguments have been advanced for example that the grain board should be under agriculture instead of trade and commerce. Also the suggestion has been made that the soldiers settlement branch should be under agriculture.

In case a shuffle should be decided upon several switches of branches might be expected. Mr. Hanson has been head of the railway committee of the House of Commons for several years and this year was chairman of the important banking committee. Accordingly he would quite suitably fit into one of several portfolios if the Prime Minister decided to select him, observers claim.

URGES GRAIN EXCHANGE RESTRICTIONS

Careful Analysis of the System of Futures Trading Presented By John I. McFarland.

(C. F. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—Although the imposition of regulations on futures trading in wheat on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange is expected shortly no immediate action will likely be taken. Steps to restrict trading in such a way as to prevent huge bear raids on the grain market by large speculators are recommended by John I. McFarland, general manager of the Central Selling Agency for the Western wheat pools.

In a statement released today from the office of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Mr. McFarland urges the need of restrictions but makes no suggestion as to the form they should take. The statement contains a careful analysis of the system of futures trading as it has grown up through the years and follows a conference between Mr. McFarland and the Prime Minister last week.

Acted as Agent

During the past four years Mr. McFarland has acted as agent for the federal government in supporting the wheat market. With the use of a government guaranteed bank account he has bought all futures offered for sale on the Winnipeg Exchange in order to prevent a slump in the market when farmers were selling their wheat and there were not enough speculative buyers to take up the futures sold in hedging operations.

Although the price benefit to the people of the Dominion through the Bennett Government's market support cannot be computed, Mr. McFarland says unprejudiced observers of world market conditions have placed it at upwards of $300,000,000 Without government support during these four years, he adds, the futures systems would have failed in its essential function because there was no substantial speculative buying of futures.

Futures Systems

The idea of the futures system, he says, is to provide a method of carrying the ownership of wheat from the time it leaves the farmer's hands until it reaches the consumer. Large amounts of cattle are tied up in storage facilities. Dealers and millers of wheat borrow money from the banks to carry their stocks but the banks insist on the "hedging" of all purchases in order to avoid risk of loss. This is the selling of a quantity of wheat equal to the amount purchased for delivery at a future date.

This means the buyer of the futures has to bear the risk of a decline in prices. Futures buyers fall into two classes, small traders and large professional speculators. The latter, backed by substantial sums of money, are able to pour millions of bushels of wheat they do not own on an open futures market such as the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, force prices down, wipe out the farmer's equity in the grain in his hands and force small traders to sell out to them at a loss.

Mr. McFarland says that the public as well as to the producers of this country steps should be taken to restrict and control the operations of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, said Mr. McFarland. "Furthermore, such a system of control will prevent a recurrence of the heavy sales of futures in the Winnipeg Exchange as occurred in the last few months."

remained hopeful the concessions on the part of the Japanese might open the way to some sort of agreement.

In view of the seriousness of the situation the British and United States delegations devoted all their time to discussion of the Japanese phase of the conference and did not take up the technical difference in their own plans, which are understood to be formidable.

Although the Japanese have not supported their demands with figures, they have told the other two powers what they want.

1. The principle of naval equality must be recognized. This would automatically abolish the old 5-5-3 ratio system.

2. There must be a reduction or abolition of what they term offensive ships.

3. A maximum limitation of world tonnage system must replace the ratio system.

The Oriental delegates have made it clear that these principles must be accepted before a compromise can be considered on technical points, such as definitions of "defensive" ships.

TRAWLER TAKEN IN TOW

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

BOSTON, Oct. 29.—The steam trawler Exeter was headed for Gloucester in tow of a coast guard cutter tonight, her makeshift crew glad that a stiff battle with wind and waves was mostly over.

Yesterday, with storm warnings hung along the coast and a high wind singing weird songs in the rigging, the rudder of the Exeter became disabled and the craft, then 80 miles due east of Nantucket, drifted seaward.

The liner Transylvania happened by and reported her plight to the coast guard headquarters whereupon the patrol boat Harriet Lane was dispatched to her aid. The Lane, however, became disabled herself and was forced to turn about. The Cayuga then took up the mission.
