PRODUCE

(Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, March 29—Easier trends in butter and egg prices prevailed on the Montreal produce and dairy market today. Cheese and potatoes held unchanged at their previous closing levels.

Holders of stored butter stock are disposing of their supplies at slightly under the market each day owing to the slow month-end demand in addition to the advancement of the season and commencement of summer production in volume in a short time. Carlots or less of no 1 grass make dipped three-quarter of a cent at 23 to 23¼ cents a pound. Reflecting the gain in production, receipts for the first three days of the week have aggregated 387 boxes as compared with 138 boxes in the same period last week. Offerings today were 186 boxes.

Increased arrivals from Ontario and the West caused fresh graded eggs in carlots or less to lose a cent a dozen today. Extras were quoted at 17 cents, firsts at 16 cents and seconds at 15 cents a dozen. Receipts totalled 2,036 cases.

Current Ontario colored cheese remained firm at 10¾ to 11 cents a pound. Arrivals were 32 boxes.

Potatoes were steady. New Brunswick or Prince Edward Island green mountains per 80 pound bag selling at 65 cents and Prince Edward Island green mountains per 90 pound bag at 70 to 75 cents.

LIBERAL

the portfolio of Public Works and Hon. Mr. MacNutt, on being promoted to the Agricultural portfolio. Mr. Stewart also congratulated the mover and seconder of the reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Answering Opposition criticism as to law enforcement, Mr Stewart said in his long experience in Charlottetown he had never found conditions better, if as good, as they have been during the past year or so. "I do not know of any city where property and life are so safe and sacred," he added. "Women and children can wander around this city at any hour of the day or night and they will not be molested. I think it is a great tribute to the young men and boys of this city that such conditions exist. Undoubtedly there is a little of "the ardent" sold in some places, but was there ever a time when it was not sold? I suggest that conditions are not as was outlined by some hon. speakers on the Opposition side."

Commends Road Work

Mr. Stewart expressed thanks for attention given by the Public Works Department during the past year to the roads in the Royalty. The work done last year is self evident. Some of the roads still require attention and these will doubtless be attended to next summer.

Mr. Stewart travelled considerably over the country roads and from his own experience would say that they were much better than in previous years. The road through Rustico to Cavendish, despite Opposition criticism, had been maintained in excellent condition.

Although the Oppositon charged the Government with certain extravagances and other matters, yet in the end many of the speakers had to take back the charges they had made, Mr. Stewart pointed out.

The members had visited the Falconwood hospital and had found the patients well fed and comfortable. The rebuilding of Falconwood had not yet been decided upon, but Mr. Stewart suggested that some work might be done at Falconwood this year to relieve the overcrowding that now exists.

He believed that there should be one building that could be devoted to the care of patients who might be cured. This would relieve the situation considerably.

Prince of Wales College

While the Prince of Wales College had cost a lot of money the Opposition had not shown where this money could have been spent to better purpose, Mr. Stewart said. They had said the Education Minister "was not extravagant but expensive." We all know that the most expensive article is the best in the long run, said the speaker, amid applause.

If full value is obtained by the youth of the land he did not think Prince of Wales College in twenty or thirty years time would be looked upon as an extravagance.

If the junior college plan is adopted at Prince of Wales College it should not be at the sole expense of the Government, Mr. Stewart continued. The students receiving the benefit of these advanced courses should also pay something.

The unemployed in Charlottetown, Mr. Stewart said, deserved great credit for the manner in which they have conducted themselves. They have endeavored to get work and while many of them have failed it is hoped that employment conditions during the year will improve.

Mr. Stewart approved of what had been said by Mr. Strong with regard to mentally defective children. In the reconstruction of Falconwood and Infirmary some provision should bbe made whereby these children could be cared for and their mental condition improved if possible so that they would not be a permanent charge on the Province.

MR. H. H. COX

Pleasure at seeing the Premier in his seat at the morning session was expressed by Mr. H. H. Cox, (Liberal, Second Kings,) the next speaker on the debate.

It was a "nice thing," he said, for the Education Minister to have the thanks of the Summerside School Board put on the Journals of the House. But what about thanking Mr. Lea for the ferries, the good roads, the Technical School and other work done under Liberal regime. If it included all the good work of the Opposition leader it would have to be "as big as the Insurance Act."

Mr. Cox went back to the days of the Bell Government, when they had a surplus on ordinary revenue. When the late Mr. Bell, in his wisdom, put on a paltry $2.00 poll tax.

MR. LEA: "Three."

MR. COX: "Was it three dollars?"

MR. LEA: "Three dollars, but the times were good then."

Mr. Cox said the Conservatives had been "cute" in opposing this "paltry tax" and as a consequence Liberals were defeated.

He, Mr. Cox, had gone down to defeat along with the rest. The Conservatives came in, repealed the poll tax, and had a deficit on ordinary revenue of $49,000, despite the $80,000 "back taxes" they got from the Railway.

(Interjections on the part of other Opposition members during Mr. Cox's speech brought a rebuke from the Speaker, who asked that order and decorum be maintained.)

LIBERAL CAMPAIGN, 1927

Continuing, Mr. Cox said that in 1927 the Conservatives went to the country on a policy of Government Control. The Liberals, he declared, were "shrewder than that." "We went around the country, we talked to the mothers and we talked to the fathers. When they asked 'What are those Conservatives doing?' We said, 'Blood money! Putting liquor in every town, in every place they could.' We had the election and we swamped them so that they never talked back again That was all right. We went along nicely for four years until 1931. Then the Conservatives took over the Prohibition plank and with Prohibition and "Rigid Economy" they won the election."

He, Mr. Cox, liked to talk on prohibition. It was, he thought, a splendid subject to talk on. The Conservatives had promised better prohibition enforcement: "with trembling lips and a crocodile tear in his eye the present Minister of Education said he would enforce Prohibition better than the Liberals had done. 'What was the result? He knows there are about 67 bootleggers selling liquor in this city today. You can take a horse to water but you can't make him drink. You can force a man to do something he doesn't want to do but you can't have the same result as you can with the man that will go voluntarily and do it. While I believe the acting Premier is sincere, and while I believe he will do probably everything he can, still it is not the same avantage to him as if he had gone out first."

Mr. J. A. McDONALD: "So you don't believe in Prohibition."

The Government's "Rigid Economy" promises had been broken, Mr. Cox maintained. $16,000 had been spent in new appointments.

Hon. Dr. MacMILLAN: "Will you kindly enumerate the $16,000 of new appointments?"

Mr. Cox cited: Assistant jailor in Queens County, $480; in Prince County $300; in Kings County $50; superintendent of neglected children $300; three crown prosecutors, $1650; Minister of Health and Education $2,000; clerk, stenographer $720; clerk, education office $100; stenographer $20; three inspectors of schools $2700.

Hon. Dr. MacMILLAN: "Were those new appointments?"

Mr. COX: "Increases. Purchasing agent $1150; superintendent of Old Age Pensions ,$1800; three commissioners, $1200.

Mr. J. A. MacDONALD: "Commissioners of what?"

Mr. COX: "Office equipment $1500; wholesale vendor $300."

Hon. Mr. SHARP: "Might I ask if the "office equipment" is a new appointment?"

Mr. COX: "It's all new. You got chairs and a whole lot of things."

Continuing he said there was "another $531" which represented he didn't know what, but there it was.

The Minister of Public Works had smiled "away down his back" because expenses at Falconwood had been reduced $18,000 last year. Mr. Cox maintained the reduction should have been "about $70,000." in view of the coal they had on hand and the reduced price of supplies.

The new Prince of Wales College, Mr. Cox thought was "beautiful," but "too expensive" for the Province. What about Falconwood? Visiting the Falconwood patients along with the other Legislative members Mr. Cox had found everything well kept and the patients well cared for. At the Sims building the conditions were "not so good," but the best that could be expected." He stressed the need of many farmers and fishermen at the present time. The Government had done nothing for them, he said, except put a two cent tax on their gasoline.

Fires in the Jail, Mr. Cox contended, had not been properly dealt with. The culprit should be found and put in the penitentiary.

The Conservatives in opposition had made a great outcry about the Liberals buying $90,000 over the telephone. His colleague, Mr. McIntyre had happened to say "bought over the telephone" one day and they made a great to-do about that.

Mr. Lea: "Accepted over the telephone, you mean."

Mr. Cox maintained that the road machines "accepted over the telephone" by Mr. McIntyre had been of great service to the Province.

He would like to know how much money this Government had spent since coming into power.

Hon. Dr. MacMillan: "Have you got the Public Accounts?"

Mr. Cox: "Yes."

Hon. Dr. MacMillan: "I would suggest that the hon. member look them up and find out."

Mr. Cox: "Thank you But perhaps it ain't all in the Public Accounts."

He was pleased to see more foals on the roads last year; but this was not due to the Government; it was not because of their policy of horse raising but the farmers themselves were paying more attention to this subject.

MR. J. A. MCDONALD

Mr. J. Augustine McDonald, Councillor for Third Queens, was the next speaker. He congratulated the mover and seconder of the Draft Address on the manner in which they acquitted themselves. He was glad to note Premier Stewart's condition was improving and that he was able to attend the Legislature, which was indicative that he would again lead in the political affairs of the Province. He was pleasaed also that Dr. MacNeill, member-elect for 5th Prince, had recovered and that the Opposition leader's health had permitted him to resume his duties.

The great responsibility resting on public men, both in Government and Opposition, in these serious times, was next referred to.

Mr. MacDonald commented on the fact that in the Opposition leader's absence last week the hon. member from Rustico had moved over into his seat and in his first "rehearsal" did not do too badly. Evidently he was preparaing for what might happen in case of the Opposition leader being removed to a higher sphere.

A warm tribute was paid to Hon. Mr. Sharp as former Minister of Agriculture and the opinion was expressed that Mr. Sharp will carry into the Public Works department the same disinterested zeal as he had shown in his former capacity. The Minister of Public Works in this Province is possibly more closely in touch with the people than any Minister in Canada, Mr. MacDonald pointed out.

The speaker also congratulated Hon. Mr. MacNutt on his elevation to the portfolio of Agriculture.

Emphasis was then placed by Mr. McDonald on the importance of the agreements negotiated last year at the Imperial Economic Conference. He cited as one example the fact that vessels cannot now accommodate the cattle shipments from Canada to Great Britain, where previously there had been practically none. The people of Great Britain, formerly free traders, had voted strongly for trade preferences within the Empire.

Empire Trade Benefits

At the Dominion-Provincial Conference, Mr. MacDonald continued, this Province had been well represented. It was stated that the assurance had been received from Premier Bennett to appoint a commission to enquire into Maritime subsidy claims and Mr. MacDonald was sure that this promise, like other promises made by Mr. Bennett would be fulfilled at the earlies. opportunity.

Mr. MacDonald called attention to the fact that insurance costs were reduced on Prince of Wales College by reason of the fact that the new building was a fireproof structure. This, he said, was good business. It had been complained that alterations had been made in the original plans, but these changes had been made at the request of the college faculty. At the formal opening of the College, visiting educationists had expressed surprise that the new College had been constructed so cheaply.

The Opposition leader, when in power, had undertaken to establish a Technical School. That institution cost a lot of money. At that time the Conservatives warned Mr. Lea that it was costing the Province too much for the value received.

Government Expenditures

All Governments throughout Canada have gone too far in their expenditures, Mr. MacDonald continued. In this connection he cited figures prepared by the Chamber of Commerce and recently published in the press, which showed a steady and alarming increase in debts ordinary, both for the Dominion and the Provinces. Other figures showed that the crops, in proportion to expenditures, were decreasing. This meant that retrenchment in expenditure, was necessary. If we go on borrowing, the speaker could see no end but that of bankruptcy. He agreed that everything must be done to encourage our farming and fishing industries, and expressed the firm belief that with our sturdy population these industtries would come through successfully.

Replying to Opposition statements that the Liberals had had "in hand" the question of dental care of children, Mr. McDonald said it was like many other things "which they had in hand and about which they did nothing." In the same way they had made provision for a portfolio of Health and Education; yet when the Stewart Government filled the portfolio they opposed the appointment.

Mr. Allen: "We never objected to the appointment of a Minister of Education."

Mr. MacDonald: "If you didn't do it, some of your supporters did on the platfo- "

Education

Mr. McDonald did not believe our educational system today is as sound as the system of some years ago. They have now introduced the phonetic system from United States. Mr. MacDonald referred in this connection to his own experience as a school teacher and as a parent. He was afraid the "three R's" are being neglected at the present time in favor of modern but less substantial methods.

The grading system in the Charlottetown and Summerside public schools was also wrong, Mr. MacDonald believed. A bright child must stay in the same class in short division with the drone, until the latter has mastered the subject, and this Mr. MacDonald believed was an injustice to the ambitious child and a wrong method of procedure.

Too Many Pensions

Mr. MacDonald referred to the numerous pensions lists. The time will come when half of the people will be on pensions and the other will be working to pay for them. How is it, he asked, that people who work for a Government always want to saddle the Government with pension payments in their old days? The principle was wrong. The store clerk, the professional man, the farmer, the fisherman—these people work hard all their lives and do not receive pensions

Mr. MacDonald made it clear that he was not referring to war veterans' pensions, which he believed were fully merited.

Reference had been made by the member from Murray Harbor (Mr J. A. Campbell) to the Conservative Opposition having opposed the building of the Provincial Sanatorium. His statements in this connection, Mr. McDonald said were not correct

Poll Tax Collections

The Opposition members had lauded the Bell Government poll tax and had criticised the Conservatives for repealing it. Why, however, Mr. MacDonald asked, did they not collect this tax when they themselves were in power?

Mr. Lea: "We collected as great a percentage of that as of the land tax."
