YMCA Activities

Officials of the Y.M.C.A. announced that the Canadian Y.M.C.A. War Services will be continued in army camps and barracks areas, until June 30, 1946. At that time all services to armed forces personnel in Canada will end, but services to personnel overseas will be continued until the last man moves home. Certificates of War Services and Y.M.C.A. war service badges are being distributed by the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. to all its supervisors and hostesses who have been honorably released from their War Services. These certificates bear the signature of James Y. Murdoch, K.C., chairman of the Y.M.C.A. War Services Executive Committee; and John W. Beaton, Senior Secretary for War Services.

For the past nine months T. A. DeCook, of the National Council staff, has been actively engaged in securing information about post-war employment, and in counselling supervisors released in Canada and with respect to their post-war employment. In the total war period there were 176 men and 194 women applied for work with the Y.M.C.A. War Services. Of that number 365 men and 121 women were approved. The total number of actual appointments was 693 men, and 116 women. Postings for overseas service numbered 198 supervisors, 99 male civilians and 57 hostesses and managers. At the end of 1945 there were employed in Canada 122 in Newfoundland four, and overseas 126. By April 1, 1946 the number overseas had dwindled to 78. In Canada there were 53. Sixteen percent of the personnel of the Y.M.C.A. War Services were teachers prior to joining the Y.M.C.A. War Services; 15 percent were Y.M.C.A. Secretaries; 19.3 percent were managers and executives.

KIRKWALL, Scotland, April 17. —(CP) David Pirie Hay, 29, recalled from civilian life to face an army court-martial, was sentenced to seven days' military detention for taking part in a disturbance at a Kirkwall dance Jan. 12. He was acquitted on a charge of striking an officer on the same occasion. Hay was on demobilization leave when recalled. Army legal authorities said he was still subject to army discipline until the leave expired. After serving his detention he returned to civilian life.

Rustico And Vicinity

Miss Yvonne Buote, Rustico, left for Montreal on Friday morning.

Mr. Regis Doucette is again confined to hospital for treatment for his foot. His friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Reverend J. O. Pihre, parish priest of Rustico, motored to the city on Tuesday. —R

Residents of Rustico visiting the city during the past week were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gallant, A. P. Gallant, Mr. Herb Wyand, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar DesRoches.

The genial mail courier Mrs. E. Smith, reports the condition of roads on his mail route to be very unfavorable, some roads having snow enough for sleighs, others being devoid of snow altogether.

A large crowd attended the sale held on the property of St. John's Buntain, Rustico, on Saturday. The weather man was very generous and favored the occasion by providing such a beautiful day, which he people from far and near to attend. Numerous and varied articles were auctioned off bringing substantial returns.

The snow storm of the last week has kept a number of the young men of the district busily engaged in shovelling out the highway for motor traffic. This is the only means at their disposal of opening up the roads as the condition of the highways are too soft to allow snow plows on them. The shovelling done together with a helping hand from the weather man by means of rain and bright sunshine will it is hoped enable traffic to be resumed before long.

Newsman Reviews Nuernburg Trials BY ROSS MUNRO NUERNBURG, April 17 — (CP) — Coming back to the Nuernburg trials for the first time since their opening is like going to a movie and realizing it's one you saw 4-13 months ago. "This is where I came in," is the general reaction. The setting is just as it was last November except that they have put green velvet drapes over the long windows in the penalized courtroom to keep the draughts from the judge's necks. There is the same busling of interpreters talking in four languages in a floodlit room, and everyone sits with earphones listening with various degrees of interest. The accused in the dock look older, grayer and more drawn. However, Goering still dominates the defendants but he doesn't grin as much as he did. He sits with his chin in his fat hands watching every move and listening to every word, more attentive than any of the others. He remains blank as a statue and Ribbentrop, with heavy eyelids, appears to be the most scared man in the room. Keitel is always the unbending Prussian military chief and Karl Doenitz, Hitler's naval chief, never gives any impression except that of a frail, weak figure. Hans Fritzsche, former deputy propaganda chief, scarcely moves or speaks now before he talked to anyone near him in a youthful manner but now he's suddenly grown very old. "Seydlitz", whom Canadians look into custody in Holland, mopes and blinks Schacht chews gum awkwardly and mumbles to himself. Stuehrmer, the Jew-baiter stares and glares. The interpreters, who have had a tremendous burden, sit behind their glass windows looking as gray and as tired as the men in the dock. Justice Look Fresh.

performed brilliantly, forcing the former Nazi leader to admit many prosecution points. bald, self-assured, and chubby, Sir David is generally credited with doing the best job in the court. Robert Jackson, United States prosecutor, opened the trial bravely with his address to the court but in cross-examination he has been a disappointment even to the Americans. The trial droned on from spring toward summer and the attendance of correspondents falls off steadily. There now are about 40 compared with several hundred in the first month.
